CURB MARKET.

New York, Feb. 17.—Irregular price fluctuations marked trading in curb market securities today, with public utility issues scoring brisk rallies after a recent period of reaction. Losses and gains in other groups were about evenly divided with the market generally exhibiting a tendency to recover from yesterday's unsettlement.

Electric Bond & Share stock made a good showing in the public utility section, jumping 4 1-4 points to 60 1-2 on a large turnover.

Lehigh Power securities regained a part of yesterday's sharp loss, selling as high as 91, and National Power & Light scored a similar gain in moving up to 10.

Another advance in Mid-Continent crude oil prices stimulated a rally in some of the oil shares. Prairie Oil and Gas responded with a two-point gain and Magnolia Petroleum also developed greater strength.

Radio issues generally were heavy. Dubilier fell back 1 3-4 points to a new low record and Ware and Music Master also lost ground.

METAL MARKET.

New York, Feb. 17.—Copper nominal; electrolytic spot and nearby 14 3-4. Asked futures 14 3-4@14 7-8. Tin easy; spot and nearby 57.25; futures 57.50. Iron steady; prices unchanged; lead easy; prices unchanged; lead easy; spot 9.25@9.50. Zinc easy; East St. Louis spot and futures 7.52@7.55. Antimony, spot 21.50.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Feb. 17.—Bonds offered good resistance to selling pressure today, and prices made irregular recovery from yesterday's drastic decline. The trend of trading followed unsettlement being overcome by brisk rallies the several issues at the close.

Moderate improvement in French obligations, was attributed to formal impression credited by Premier Herriot's firm stand against an inflammatory policy. The quick recovery of the franc also was influenced in bringing about support for French bonds.

High grade investment rail bonds withstood the recent reactionary tendencies in the market much better than the speculative mortgages. The latter continued to drift irregularly lower today but New York Central and Southern Railway 6s scored substantial gains, Chicago Union Station 5s moved up three points.

Conflicting movements marked trading in Oil company liens. Pan-American 6s, which broke sharply yesterday, snapped back two points but Sinclair and California Petroleum issues were heavy, despite a rally in oil shares. Copper bonds lost further ground, Magma 7s yielding 2 1-2 points and Anaconda 7s about a month.

Prospective new financing was said to include a $15,000,000 loan for a Japanese public utility, for which negotiations recently have been opened. The offering, however, may not be made until next month.

TAFTVILLE

A delightful reception was given at the home of Louis Glaude, 23 Terrace avenue, to Mr. and Mrs. Philip Donohue on their return from their honeymoon which was spent in New York. Present at the reception were friends of Mr. and Mrs. Donohue from Portland, Me., New York, Worcester, Willimantic, Jewett City and Putnam. The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Donohue will make their home at 80 Norwich avenue.

FAY WILL PROVIDES FOR MEMORIAL WINDOW

But one public bequest is made in the will of Mrs. Maria Hutchins Fay, widow of Edwin Fay, whose death occurred Feb. 9 at her home, 245 Main street. This is a bequest of $1,000 to Christ Episcopal church for a memorial window to her husband, Edwin Fay, and to supply flowers for the decoration of the window at Easter. It is suggested that the amount could be divided into two parts, $800 to be used for securing the window and $200 for the flower fund.

The will names Judge Gardiner Greene as executor, but provides that in case of Judge Greene's death or inability to serve, Charles L. Stewart shall be executor. As Judge Greene's death occurred the day after Mrs. Fay passed away, Mr. Stewart will act as executor and he has already filed the will for probate in the probate court.

The will further provides for an $800 trust fund in the hands of the executor from which the income is to be used to care for the Fay lot in Yantic cemetery and for her father's lot in the Danielson burying ground and for placing flowers at Easter and on Decoration Day on the grave of her husband, her own grave, the grave of her husband's first wife, the grave of her husband's daughter, of Mrs. Starr and of the testator's sister, Mrs. Tillinghast. These provisions are not to be effective if the testator had provided for these matters in her lifetime, and the same applies to the memorial window at the church.

There is a bequest of $500 to her grandniece, Mary Gatling Moore, of Dayton, Ohio; $1,000 to Frank F. Hutchins, M. D., Indianapolis, and to his wife, Luella McWhirter Hutchins, are left diamond earrings, a gold bracelet and diamond ring with five stones in a row. A grandniece, Lucy Franklin Crosby, wife of Henry Crosby, of Danielson, is left a diamond ring with five stones in a cluster, 12 pearl handled knives and 12 oxidized silver forks. Six solid silver teaspoons, marked M. H., are left to Josephine Main Franklin, wife of Vine Franklin of Brooklyn, Conn., and $100 to the widow of John Daniel Main of Putnam.

All wearing apparel, except a fur coat, and all household furniture are left to Josephine Main Franklin, Ina H. Keach, widow of Charles Keach, Danielson, and Lucy F. Crosby.

To Mary Elizabeth Burke of this city, who is described as a "good faithful woman" is left $5,000 and the fur coat. It is also provided that she is not to be disturbed in her occupancy of the Chelsea building during the settlement of the estate, but she is to be allowed to remain there and render such assistance as may be to the executor.

A trust fund is created of the residue of the estate for the benefit of Josephine Main Franklin, Ina F. Keach and Lucy F. Crosby, which will terminate when Franklin Dexter Crosby, the son of Lucy Crosby, reaches the age of 21. During the continuation of the trust one-third of the income may be paid over for the education of Franklin Crosby.

There are provisions in the will to cover the payments under the trust fund in case Franklin Crosby should die before reaching his majority.

NORWICH CITIZENS APPEAR BEFORE LEGISLATURE COMMITTEE AT HARTFORD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, Feb. 17.—Norwich was well represented among the visitors at the capitol today. First Selectman William S. Murray and Town Counsel Henry H. Pettis, Charles S. Holbrook, town clerk, looking after town bills, Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., Tax Collector Harold T. Robinson and President John J. Corkery of the water board. President James L. Case of the gas and electric commission, Ex-Mayor H. M. Lerou, and Daniel T. Shea were also among those present.

Several matters of interest to Norwich were before the committee on cities and boroughs.

Senator LeeRoy Robbins, speaking on the introduction of S. B. 43, applying to the police department said that this bill as drawn, contained considerable merit, but that there should be some change in the method of conducting the police department in the city of Norwich, but he was of the opinion that the bill should not be passed as it is now drawn. Some things should be eliminated, others inserted. Corporation Counsel Shields explained that under the present conditions the work of the department is hindered by the fact that the policy of the department is entirely under the control of the court of common council, as the police committee is composed of members of the common council. This results in constant pressure being brought to bear upon the members for favors. An independent committee could render much better service. Mayor Waters said that it would be of great benefit to Norwich and cited numerous instances in which he had been importuned to intercede in behalf of officers who were on the carpet.

Ex-Mayor H. M. Lerou was of the opinion that a committee of three would be better than the present system. He thought that it would be better to have a police commission appointed from outside the council membership.

At this point in the hearing Mayor Waters was questioned as to why the term of office of the proposed commission should be limited to one year, and why it should be confined to the council membership.

Mayor Waters said that ten members of the council were of his opinion, that if the bill as drawn could not be passed they would withdraw it.

Judge John H. Barnes vigorously opposed the bill. It was giving too much power to three men. There was no chance for an officer to defend himself from charges. He would have no information of charges. He could be accused and know nothing about it till he was notified that he was fired.

The accused officer should have every chance to defend himself. Among the suggestions of Mr. Barnes was one that one of the commission should be the chief of police.

To this ex-Mayor Lerou dissented. The chief of police should not be a member. Mr. Barnes was of the opinion that the common council was better qualified to conduct the affairs of the department than a commission composed of outside persons.

Senator Smith of the committee called the attention of the mayor to his statement that he "wanted this bill or nothing," and asked him if he was of the same opinion yet. The mayor replied that he was here to support the bill as directed and not to give his own opinion. Ex-Mayor Lerou said that the idea of putting the chief of police on the commission was something that should not be done. The term should be longer than one year. There should always be someone left on the commission that has had experience.

The bill concerning the gas and electric department, S. B. 43, was next heard, and Corporation Counsel Shields suggested that the percentage of the payments instead of being 4 per cent. of net assets, should be changed to 50 per cent. of the net profits. He offered a substitute bill to that effect. The gas and electric department pays no tax and yet they have all the protection that is afforded by the other departments. They should be compelled to assist in defraying the general expenses of the city. He contended that it would benefit every taxpayer in the city.

Daniel T. Shea, a former gas and electrical commissioner, wanted it understood that he was representing no one but himself. He was opposed to the bill. Things were in a fine condition and should be left as they are, he said. The plant was paying at least a quarter of a million dollars a year. He considered any increase in the value of the plant was a profit.

S. B. 100 concerning the hours of voting and warning of city meetings was explained by Mr. Shields. No opposition was offered.

S. B. 366, concerning the election of assessors, was explained by Town Counsel Henry H. Pettis. Under this bill there will always be two men on the board of assessors which numbers three. The bill was endorsed by ex-Mayor Lerou. James L. Case endorsed the bill as it was in harmony with the revision committee which is now considering a revision of the assessment methods.

No one appeared to oppose the bill. S. B. 44, a bill concerning a change in the territorial limits of the city of Norwich, was explained by Mr. Shields as affecting only the land adjoining Mohegan park. It places the property outside the city limits under the jurisdiction of the city but does not affect the taxation of property. No one appeared in opposition.

NORTHAMPTON'S FIRST MAYOR CELEBRATED HIS BIRTHDAY

Benjamin E. Cook, who was the first mayor of Northampton, Mass., and who married Mrs. Annie Pierson Newton of this city over a year ago, celebrated his 84th birthday last Saturday at his home, Pomeroy Terrace, Northampton.

Hale and hearty despite his four score and four years, Mr. Cook was the perfect host in welcoming his guests with geniality and good humor. Unlike the typical partisan jamhourees of old, when Mr. Cook earned the soubriquet, "The Democratic War Horse of Hampshire County," the birthday reception which was arranged by Mrs. Cook, was wholly informal and attended by persons of every political creed.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook received, and a large stream of guests, including the former mayors of the city, business associates, and political friends and foes, called between 3 and 11 o'clock to congratulate Northampton's first mayor. Mr. Cook's daughter, Mrs. Theresa Sears of New York City, a teacher in the Brooklyn high schools spent the week end with her father, and assisted in receiving the guests. Miss Christine Cook of Columbia university was unable to be present for the occasion but telegraphed her felicitations to her father.

DENIES MOTION TO FILE AN AMENDMENT

Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court has denied a motion to file amendment to complaint in the suit of Johanna Keating against the city of Norwich for damages for injuries she received in a fall on the street on Feb. 15, 1923. The plaintiff's desired amendment stated that the irregularity in the sidewalk on Huntington street was caused by a tree stump at the point where she had her fall.

Norwich Woman Seeks Divorce

Victoria Carrier Lent of Norwich has brought suit for divorce from Ralph Edmund Lent, now of parts unknown, whom she married June 17, 1910. She charges desertion Dec. 22, 1921 and asks the custody of two children, aged 13 and 10. The suit is returnable to the superior court in March.

RECEIVER IS AUTHORIZED TO SELL ASHAWAY PROPERTY

In the suit of Eli Gledhill vs. The Mystic Manufacturing Co., Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court has directed that an order be entered modifying a previous order and authorizing the receiver to sell property at Ashaway, R. I., for $20,500. The receiver is also authorized to pay from the proceeds a 5 per cent. agents' commission and is directed to pay the balance of the proceeds to the American Banking and Trust Co. of Bridgeport as trustee under the meeting securing the outstanding bonds of the Mystic Mfg. Co., such proceeds to the applied by said trustee in the reduction of the mortgage debt in accordance with the provisions of said mortgage.

DIVORCE WILL HOLD; CHILD'S CUSTODY CHANGED

Angelo Zerrill, from whom his wife, Caroline Gropelli Zirrell of New London, secured a divorce in December and has remarried again, is denied his motion to set aside the judgment of divorce, but his motion to amend the judgment as to custody of their daughter Eleanor is granted by Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court.

In his memorandum of decision, Judge Brown says:

These two motions were heard together.

As to the first, based on alleged fraud on the part of the plaintiff, and mistake resulting in his failure to appear and defend on the part of the defendant, the defendant's evidence as to the plaintiff's fraud was insufficient to warrant the setting aside of the judgment, which was rendered Dec. 5, 1924. His testimony is to the effect that he received actual notice of the pendency of the action through a copy of the process received by registered mail on Nov. 15 in California, and that though he desired and intended to contest the action, having been advised by California counsel that he had ninety days in which to appear, he failed to act in the matter, until after the case had been heard and the decree granted, and the plaintiff had subsequently on Dec. 27, 1924 remarried. The situation so disclosed does not warrant the setting aside of the judgment on the ground of mistake. The motion to set aside is denied.

After the hearing had been continued for one week to give the plaintiff an opportunity to appear and testify, particularly upon the issue as to the custody of the child, counsel for the plaintiff informed the court that his client did not care to testify.

Upon the evidence produced I am satisfied that the plaintiff is an unfit person to have the custody of the minor child of the parties, Eleanor Zerrill, and that the defendant's request that the care, custody and education of the child be committed to her grandmother, the plaintiff's mother, Josephine Gropelli of New London, should be granted. The defendant's motion to modify the judgment is therefore granted and the same is hereby modified by striking out the last two words thereof "the plaintiff" and substituting therefor the words—"Josephine Gropelli, with the right on the part of the plaintiff to visit said child at reasonable intervals but only in the presence of said Josephine Gropelli, and with the right on the part of the defendant to see and visit said child at any time."

The couple was married July 20, 1918 and the wife alleged such intolerable cruelty that she had to leave him as he was continually beating her.

HOTEL OWNERS SETTLE FOR CRAMER'S DEATH

An echo of the tragic manner in which William Cramer, son of Abraham Cramer of Norwich, met his death in the Hodson hotel fire in Waterbury on July 18, 1925, was heard in superior court at Waterbury on Monday when a $10,000 damage suit was withdrawn from the docket. The suit had been instituted by the father of the dead man again Frank J. and James W. Hodson, owners of the hotel. Cramer fell or was pushed from an upper story window at the height of the fire and fell to the street below.

While the amount of the settlement was not made public, it is understood that it was in the neighborhood of $2,000.

CLAIMS HIS WIFE CALLED SPENCER "DADDY"

Before Judge Allyn L. Brown and a jury, the $15,000 alienation suit instituted by Earle A. Crane, youthful farmer of Lebanon, against Wilbur L. Spencer, 72 year old owner of a general store in the town of Lebanon, went on trial in the superior court at New London Tuesday morning. The court was crowded and it was apparent that every resident of Lebanon who could spare the time was present. The case has aroused considerable interest in the town of Lebanon and vicinity and a large attendance is anticipated during the progress of the trial, which is expected to continue for a couple of days. Crane was on the witness stand during the entire morning. His testimony at times proved to be highly amusing and Judge Brown twice threatened to clear the court room.

The Cranes were married on March 1, 1919, and lived happily together until 1922, when according to the plaintiff, Spencer came to live in Lebanon and opened a store. Crane charges that the elderly storekeeper, "by his arts, blandishments, and seductions alienated the love and affection of his wife and destroyed the happiness of his home." He estimated his loss at $15,000 and asks damages for that amount.

Attorney George Curtis Morgan appears for Crane and Attorney Charles L. Stewart of Norwich represents the defendant.

Under direct examination Tuesday morning Crane told the court that after Spencer opened the store he and his wife went to live in Spencer's house, and that Mrs. Crane accepted clerical employment in the store. Soon, he said, the two became very intimate and Mrs. Crane called Mr. Spencer "Daddy", and he called her "Nezzie." It was "Daddy" this and "Daddy" that, with his wife, and "Nezzie" this and "Nezzie," that with Spencer, according to the witness.

At various times the witness stated that he had come home to find his wife sitting on "Daddy's" knee and that she refused to leave her position at his demand.

The witness testified that he urged his wife to break with Spencer and offered to take her away to some other town where they could start all over again, but she refused, according to the testimony, saying that she had promised to take care of Spencer as long as he lived and meant to keep her promise.

Crane testified that he told her if they went away he would give her all of his wages, even his tobacco money, and would require only that she provide his clothing, but still she refused to leave Spencer's home.

In cross-examining the witness, Attorney Stewart attempted to bring out that Crane had, at one time, assaulted his wife and had attempted to choke her. The witness denied the attack and a ripple of laughter swept the spectators, it evidently amusing them to think of Crane, who is small in stature, attacking his wife, who is large and heavily built.

Witnesses for the plaintiff were on the stand throughout the afternoon session, at the conclusion of which adjournment was taken until 10 o'clock this (Wednesday) morning.

MOOSE LADIES' NIGHT WAS ENJOYABLE EVENT

The February ladies' night of Norwich Lodge, No. 950, L. O. O. M., held Tuesday night at Moose home on Laurel Hill avenue proved to be one of the most enjoyable in the history of the club. In charge of the house committee and entertainment, committee, Charles Wright, Benjamin Wunderlick and Rudolph Krohn, cards were played, after which refreshments were served and dancing enjoyed.

High scores featured in the pinochle play with the exception of that made by Rudolph Krohn, usually the man to cop off high total in pinochle. Brother Krohn found "Lady Luck" had deserted him for the evening and his total of 2,315 was the lowest of the evening, winning him the consolation prize.

The winners at pinochle were as follows: Ladies—first, Mrs. Herman Retkowski 5640; 2nd, Mrs. Bernard Wunderlick, 5580; gentlemen—first, Peter Carlino, 6535; 2nd, George Seidel 6465; consolation, Rudolph Krohn 3315.

The winners at whist were as follows: Ladies—first, Mrs. Willet 47; 2nd, Mrs. Herman 38; gentlemen—first James Manning 48; second Mrs. Letender 41.

Refreshments were served by the entertainment committee at the close of play and dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

Seeks Divorce for Wife's Desertion

WHITE CROSS COUNCIL HEARS FATHER REILLY

The regular meeting of White Cross Council, No. 13, K. of C., was held Tuesday evening at Knights of Columbus home on Broadway with Grand Knight M. Frank Leonard in the chair. During the evening a most interesting talk was given by Rev. John J. Reilly of St. Patrick's parish.

The entertainment committee reported that all arrangements had been made for the 40th anniversary banquet to be held at the Wauregan hotel, Sunday evening, Feb. 22, beginning at 7.30 o'clock. The observance commemorates the 40th anniversary of the institution of White Cross Council and the committee announced that plans had been completed which would make the event one long to be remembered by members of the order. It was announced that Dr. John G. Coyle of New York, known as a most eloquent speaker, had been secured for the address of the evening and that State Deputy William J. Mulligan of Hartford will be a guest.

Plans for the anniversary banquet also include a fine entertainment of instrumental and vocal numbers. The committee also announced that owing to the many reservations being made for the banquet all brother members are expected to notify Secretary M. J. Kirby previous to Friday if they intend to be present, thus avoiding any confusion in reservations.

BATTLESHIPS PARAMOUNT TO PLANES IN SEA WARFARE

Fact Revealed in Report of Special Naval Board—President Coolidge Has Adopted the Board's View That Modernization of Old Battleships is the First Requirement of the Navy, with Airplanes Secondary—The President Feels That the Expenditure of $80,000,000 a Year is Not Warranted at the Present Time—Scales It Down to $30,000,000.

Washington, Feb. 18.—President Coolidge added a new chapter today to the air service controversy by making public the report of a special naval board convened by his direction, which found that the battleship remained "the final arbiter in sea warfare," and that airplanes would never "assume paramount importance."

At the same time the president issued a formal statement in explanation of the $20,000,000 supplemental naval estimates recently submitted to congress by the budget bureau, which were founded on recommendations of the naval board, but sharply modified the complete building program submitted by the board involved expenditures of $80,000,000 a year for three years.

The president makes no reference to the board's findings as to relative military value of aircraft, battleships and submarines, the problem assigned it to study when he directed that it be convened last September. He adopts the board's view, however, that modernization of old battleships (not including the elevation of guns) is the first requirement, completion of aircraft carriers and their planes second, and construction of two 10,000 ton cruisers third. The board's building program was scaled down by the president all along the line, however, to reduce the immediate cost from $80,000,000 to $30,000,000.

The memorandum described the president as "feeling that an expenditure of the magnitude ($80,000,000) was not warranted at the present time."

Included in the board's report is a detailed statement of the bombing experiments recently made on the hull of the unfinished battleship Washington, made public for the first time. It shows that three 2,000 pound bombs were exploded underwater near the ship and two "torpedo explosions" of largest size (4400 pounds of explosives) set off in contact with the underwater hull, the ship remained afloat four days thereafter and riding out a storm.

"The results of the tests demonstrate," the board found, "that the hull of the latest type of battleship is capable of withstanding to a remarkable degree the attacks of aerial bombs, and that with a crew on board to make necessary repairs run the pumps and man the anti-aircraft guns, such a ship as the Washington would be substantially secure against air attack."

The report of the officer in charge of the tests said:

"A ship in commission would have had no trouble in making port under her own steam after the five explosions."

With respect to the effectiveness of the torpedo explosions, the special board gave it as the opinion of the most board members, "that ship like the Washington would survive eight torpedo hits distributed about the underwater body," but could not withstand them if the hits were "bunched," which would be "hardly within the bounds of possibility."

No direction mention of Brigadier General Mitchell, assistant chief of the army air service, is made in the special board report. General Mitchell was one of the 76 officers and civilian scientists questioned by the board in reaching its conclusions. However, and the proposals urged by him for a unified air service are dealt with and opposed as "illogical and undesirable."

"It has been claimed by certain witnesses who appeared before the board," the report said, "that a separate United States air force, if aided by submarines, could, by seizing bases at proper distances, carry on offensive campaign against European or Asiatic powers. While respecting professional abilities and opinions of such witnesses the board is unable to regard such claims seriously."

The "profound influence which geographical position has on the relative importance of air power to a country," is stressed by the report.

"In the event of war between France and Germany, or between France and Great Britain, it was said air power might conceivably play a tremendous important part. Each of these countries has many industrial centers within bombing distance of the frontiers of a powerful neighbor.

"On the other hand, the United States has but two neighbors who could attack her by air, and they are relatively weak. Consequently, it seems apparent that air power is not so vitally important to us as it is to the countries of western Europe."

STEPS IN PROGRESS FOR NEW NAVAL CONFERENCE

Washington, Feb. 18.—(By the A. P.) Definite, if informal, steps by the Washington government are in progress for a new naval conference to extend treaty limitations to auxiliary craft.

Preliminary conversations in London, Tokio and Rome are indicated to have met with favorable reactions. Success of the project appears to rest upon the attitude of Paris. A conference on invitation of President Coolidge is a possibility only if it can be found that obstacles of 1921, which blocked the road to complete naval limitation in the original Washington conference, has been removed.

The fact that informal negotiations were in progress was disclosed here today after Foreign Secretary Chamberlain in London had dropped a hint of them in parliament. Officials would not go beyond confirming that the conversations were going on in capitals of all powers signatory to the Washington naval treaty.

It was learned authoritatively, however, that the question of land armaments is not involved. The position of the Washington government on that score remains as it was in 1921—that land armaments constitute a European political and economic problem and initiative for limitation treaty must come from Europe.

The Washington government, however is more anxious than ever to curb competitive naval building in cruisers, submarines and other auxiliary craft. Its effort to sound foreign sentiment on a supplementary conference for that purpose has not reached the stage of formal communications of any kind, although the announcement that Ambassador Kellogg at London the state department gave opportunity to revive with new force the diplowould succeed Secretary Hughes at matic conversations that had preceded.

As secretary of state designate, Mr. Kellogg's remarks in talking matters over with London government officials would have far greater weight than his statements as ambassador. There seems to be little question that his activities have already set in motion between capitals involved a whole series of similar informal exchanges of views revolving about the general subject, but not brought down as yet to definite questions of probable agenda for the proposed conference.

In the circumstances, Mr. Kellogg will be prepared to make a full report on the situation to President Coolidge on his return to the United States. It is regarded as equally certain that no formal step will be taken prior to his return and his installation at the state department March 4. The task of preparing for the conference, should it be found possible to convene it with any chance of success, would rest on Mr. Kellogg's shoulders.

In some quarters the view was expressed today that Mr. Chamberlain's statement might have been designed to get the question out into the open in such a way as to put public opinion behind the suggestion. In any event, it is certain to stimulate the discussion which may influence the action of France.

TRIAL OF FORMER ATLANTA PENITENTIARY OFFICIALS

Atlanta, Feb. 18.—(By the A. P.)—Testimony of Emanuel Kessler, in which he said that he made a loan of $5,000 to former Warden A. E. Birtch and to former Deputy Warden J. L. Fletcher, occupied most of today's session of the trial of the former prison officials and Lawrence Riehl of Columbus, Ohio, on charges of conspiracy to accept and receive bribes, in United States court here.

Kessler's charge that he had loaned money to the then prison officials followed a statement that shortly after his incarceration in the prison in December, 1923, he and his partner, Morris Sweetwood, paid $5,000 in two installments of $2,500 each for the privilege of eating in the quarters of the Catholic chaplain, at that time Father Thomas P. Hayden.

The witness declared that this money was delivered to a "Mrs. Whithall," in accordance with an agreement made with William Wall, described by the witness as a clerk at the prison.

Kessler, who frequently has been called a "millionaire bootlegger," was on the witness stand at the morning and afternoon sessions.

Morris Sweetwood. Kessler's partner, also sentenced from New York and also removed to the Athens jail after the investigation was begun at the federal prison, testified near the hought a platinum watch in New York when in that city as a witness close of the day's session that he and brought it to the prison here. He said that he offered it as a present to A. E. Sartain, but that the warden refused it.

Sweetwood testified that he authorized sending of the sum of $2,500 from New York to the address of a woman in Atlanta. He said Kessler had procured this address.

Sweetwood testified that he did not know what became of the money and that he never paid Sartain or Fletcher any money for privileges and never discussed the subject with them.

FLOWERS STREWN ABOUT THE MOUTH OF SAND CAVE

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 18.—(By the A. P.)—Sealed in his perpetual tomb, Floyd Collins sleeps tonight in peace.

Buried alive, he endured for days the terrifying solitude, praying that, somehow he would escape an impending doom that was always his companion. Unable longed to withstand the tortures of body and spirit, he died trapped in the jaws of the cave whose wonders he discovered.

Realizing, perhaps, that the valiant efforts of scores of persons to rescue him would be in vain, he met death gamely, his jaws set. Some time later rescuers broke open his sarcophagus.

Ed Brenner, a former miner who himself had known the horrors of Collins' plight, plunged into the perilous pit.

"Dead" was his laconic pronouncement of the failure of the workers. Plans were made to bring out the body, but the risk was too great and the coverns he knew and loved so well became his crypt. With simple funeral services yesterdal, his body was resigned to the cave that would not release him.

But above the sepulchre of that obscure unfortunate had been folded a news serial that enthralled the country for 17 days. the climax was reached Monday with the finding of the body. The epilogue was written today.

The booming of detonating dynamite; the dull thud of huge boulders, loosened from the centuries-old bed on the desolate hillside, as they tumbled in and sealed the new pit, so as the drawing of a colophon to the heroic work of the rescuers.

Today a few flowers strewn about the mouth of Sand cave and a few spectators wandering aimlessly about, had replaced the mechanical equipment and the jaded workers of yesterday.

CONSIDERING FINANCIAL SITUATION IN FRANCE

Paris, Feb. 18.—(By the A. P.)—Discussion of the finance bill occupied the whole day in the chamber of deputies—from 10 a. m. until 9.15 this evening—without any real progress being made.

After the chamber had voted a pension of 12,000 francs a year for the widow of Charles Dupuy, a former premier, without debate, a number of deputies gave their opinions on the state finances, most of them dealing with past events. Among the only interesting statement during the session was made by Etinne Clementel, minister of finance, regarding the payments France must make during 1925 because of various commitments which will mature.

These payments, M. Clementel said," have been described as obstacles which it is impossible to overcome," he then went on to show how the first repayment, due two days ago, had been met. Seventy per cent. of the $30,000,000 francs ten year bonds due had been renewed and 60 per cent. of the 191,000,000 francs six year treasury bonds also had been renewed. That very day 31,000,000 francs were advanced to the state on national defense bonds and 64,000,000 francs in defense bonds were paid off, so that by the end of the day on which 169,000,000 francs had been paid off for bonds which had matured the treasury was 82,000,000 better off.

Three bills will be introduced in the chamber tomorrow by M. Clementel as part of the government's program for improving the financial situation.

Mrs. Budlong is to Capitulate Thursday

Drops Message From Apartment in Which She Has Been Entrenched Since Last Friday.

New York, Feb. 18.—Developments came rapidly today at the 15-story apartment house on East 72d street where Mrs. Jessie Margaret Budlong, self-imprisoned hunger-striker, has remained intrenched since last Friday.

Tonight there was every indication that the woman would execute a strategic retreat within 24 hours, and capitulate to the small army of detectives, attorneys, police, reporters, photographers and movie men who have laid seige to the stronehold.

"I shall open the door to my prison on Thursday," was the message borne by a bit of white paper that fluttered down from the Budlong apartment just before dusk. It was signed "J. Margaret Budlong."

At 10 o'clock this morning 11 private detectives circled the building. Presumably they had been engaged by Milton J. Budlong, oil magnate and husband of the imprisoned woman, whose recent winning of separation suit brought by Mrs. Budlong in Rhode Island prompted her to seize and hold their apartment home.

The detective staff had been appreciably reinforced since yesterday, when police reserves were called as news reporters came off victorious in a battle over two notes Mrs. Budlong tossed down, pinned to a pair of her husband's shirts. The corps of photographers and moviemen also had been reinforced, while the crowd of spectators was augmented by hundreds.

At 10.30 a. m., several reporters gained the roof of the building. At the end of a rope they dangled before Mrs. Budlong's prison, four stories below, a bundle of newspapers, with large headlines and large photographs of herself. There also was a list of questions for the understriker to answer.

Was she being offered food by Mr. Budlong's servants? Did she wish assistance? Did she anticipate an early settlement of the feud between herself and her husband?"

The bundle dangled in vain. The prisoner wasn't tempted by the bait of headlines and photos. Finally Mr. Budlong's detectives helped the building superintendent clear the roof.

This noon a servant reported that Mrs. Budlong had talked through a keyhole to her husband's attorney, announcing that she planned voluntarily to evacuate the apartment "some time Thursday."

At 4 p. m., Mrs. Budlong made her first appearances to those in the streets, far below. She hurled from a window two silk shirts, initialed "M. J. B." There was another battle between reporters and detectives. The reporters emerged with the notes, which were in duplicate, written upon the leaves of a desk calendar, and read:

"The telephone extension wire near my room was cut off last Saturday. My water supply was cut off Sunday night. I shall therefore open the door to my room Thursday.

"I wish to tell the press that at no time have I desired to take my life. No harm will come to me through my own act. I have remained in my room for the sake of my children and for a legal reason.

"I haven't been permitted to see my lawyers. I shall be unable to send out any more messages as a guard will be present.

"I am not strong enough to talk to reporters or face photographers. If I am ejected I shall go to a hospital. There is nothing rambling about this message and my mind is as clear as a bell.

"J. MARGARET BUDLONG."

There also was a postscript:

"P. S. I intend to drop this Thursday but if they break in I shall drop it today—later. I think they intend breaking in this evening so I shall drop this message while I can. Later on at night there might be no one to receive it.

"My husband evidently intends to make it so unpleasant for me I shall not be able to remain. Also, he would like to do me bodily harm if he could get away with it by saying it was my own act. If anything happens to me it will be murder.

"MARGARET BUDLONG."

Tableau Depicted Plight of Lovers

Principals Were Miss Vera Latimer and Henry Clews III—Scene at Dock in New York.

New York, Feb. 18.—The dramatic personae of a tableau touchingly enacted at the Mauretania's last sailing became known today on the announcement that Miss Vera Latimer, had become the fiancee of Henry Clews III, grandson of the New York banker.

Miss Latimer's attorneys made the announcement. It was accompanied by the statement that she would sail on the Aquitania next Saturday, to meet and marry Clews who sailed on the Mauretania last Tuesday.

Mrs. Henry Clews, widow of the banker, professed ignorance of the engagement of her grandson. She volunteered the information, however, that Baron Willy von Knoblock, professional dancer who revealed the names of participants in the tableau, had not even been a guest at the Clews home. Henry Clews II is in Paris, where his son expects of join him.

As for the tableau:

"The wistful young lady in evening gown and tears, who stood upon the pier with arms stretched pleadingly toward the stern of the Mauretania—that was Miss Latimer," said Baron Willy.

"The woebegone young man in crumpled evening clothes who stood at the afterrail of the ship with arms stretched toward the pier—that was my good friend Mr. Clews.

"The excited Russian dancer in dinner clothes, who hugged the suitcase containing the mummified head of an ancient Egyptian ancestor, Amonophis IV—that was me, Baron Willy Knoblock, professional entertainer."

The baron's story was that on the eve of the Mauretania's sailing, Clews and Miss Latimer visited an all-night cabaret to see the baron do his dance. Afterward they supped together and, toward morning, Clews conceived the excellent idea of taking Miss Latimer, to whom he said he was engaged, to Europe with him, so they could be married at once.

It was agreeable to the girl and, when Clews invited the baron to accompany them, it was agreeable to the baron also.

From the cabaret to their homes they hastened, packed luggage, and raced to the pier, where the luggage was taken aboard the Mauretania and stowed.

Trouble over passports developed, and trouble over tickets, for it appears that Clews had only purchased one. Then, while Clews was aboard seeing about the luggage and Miss Latimer and the baron were pleading with officials ashore about passports, the Mauretania sailed.

That, said the baron, explained the tableau on the pier. Most of Miss Latimer's wardrobe is on the way to England and most of the baron's dancing costumes are, too. The suitcase which the baron was so gratefully hugging—the one containing the mummified head of Amonophis IV—was all the luggage Clews had time to rescue ashore.

A birthday party at Miss Latimer's summer home in Great Neck Hills, N. Y., was interrupted last September by police who testified they had found cocktails surrounding the birthday cake.

DEPARTURES FROM TREND OF AMERICAN EDUCATION

Baltimore, Feb. 18—The Baltimore Sun will say tomorrow that three "radical departures" from the trend of the American education are to be announced at Johns Hopkins University next Monday by Dr. Frank J. Goodnow, president.

The Walter Hines Page school of international relations, besides being a memorial of the former ambassador to Great Britain, is defined by the Johns Hopkins committee purporting to be something new in education in that it will afford an opportunity for the first class minds working on world problems." It will conduct research work into the underlying facts and conditions of international life, including international law, trade, economic relations, racial psychology and all the technique of international intercourse and diplomatic customs.

DEPLORES RIGHTS USURPED BY FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

Governor Ritchie of Maryland Cites Nine Personal and Property Rights, Which the Constitution Aimed Especially to Guarantee, That Have Fallen Before the "Complete and Despotic Power" Assumed by the Federal Government.

New York, Feb. 18—Nine of those personal and property rights which the constitution aimed especially to guarantee have been usurped by the federal government in the last decade, Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland declared tonight at the annual session of the Maryland Society of New York.

He cited the income tax and the inheritance tax as violations of the constitution which gave the government "complete, arbitrary and despotic power," over the citizen's income.

His list of examples of violations of the bill of rights was headed by the prohibition amendment "centralizing in the federal government the power to control intoxicating liquors."

"What has become," Governor Ritchie asked, "of the right to a jury trial in criminal cases, when the courts substitute for it a contempt proceeding in which the court acts as grand jury, prosecutor and judge.

"What has become of the guarantee against double jeopardy, when states are permitted to punish a person for the same act for which the federal government has already punished him?"

"What has become of the individual's immunity from being compelled to testify against himself, when an involuntary bankrupt, compelled by order of the court to surrender his prifore the same court for anything incriminating that may be found in them?"

"What has become of the freedom of speech and of the press, and of the right of peaceful assembly, when, through denial of the right to use the mails or some other form of governmental prosecution, proceedings are taken against newspapers or individuals whose only offense is to print or to speak what they believe to be the truth about public officials or the exercise of governmental power?

"The constitution gives no right to suspend the freedom of speech or of the press at any time, whether in war or peace. Then why should the federal government, even during the world war, have made it a crime to say anything which might bring our form of government simply into 'disrepute,' when peaceful and honest criticism of the advocacy of any fundamental change may be said to do that? or why now should men be kept in prison for no more serious offense than the exercise of their right to say what they believed?

"The constitutional immunities of the individual are stricken, one by one," he concluded. "May it be too much to hope they are wounded and not destroyed?"

"What has become of the right to be tried in the state or district where the crime was committed, when everyone involved in a case of conspiracy may be brought to and tried in any state in the country where any one of the alleged conspirators is charged with committing a single overt act?

"What has become of the freedom of speech and of the press, and of the right of peaceful assembly, when, through denial of the right to use the mails or some other form of governmental prosecution, proceedings are taken against newspapers or individuals whose only offense is to print or to speak what they believe to be the truth about public officials or the exercise of governmental power?

"The constitution gives no right to suspend the freedom of speech or of the press at any time, whether in war or peace. Then why should the federal government, even during the world war, have made it a crime to say anything which might bring our form of government simply into 'disrepute,' when peaceful and honest criticism of the advocacy of any fundamental change may be said to do that? or why now should men be kept in prison for no more serious offense than the exercise of their right to say what they believed?

NEW BONNET CAUSED DELAY IN SAILING OF THE DE GRASSE

New York, Feb. 18—Nora, a handthat she's a true-born American and maiden whose two proudest boasts are that she once was "in service" to Mrs. John Jacob Astor, delayed for 15 minutes today the sailing of the French line's de luxe steamship De Grasse.

A new bonnet in the Fifth Avenue mode, which Nora was determined her mistress should wear down the Rue de la Prix, caused the maid's tardiness, and because the mistress, Mrs. Griswold Thompson of Fifth Avenue, refused to depart without Nora, there was nothing for the De Grasse's captain, and the French line's dock superintendent to do but order the ship to wait until Nora got aboard.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson drove to the pier, followed by three taxicabs laden with luggage and servants. In the last of these was Nora and a boy servant.

As they sped down Fifth Avenue Nora startled her companion by screaming, "O, we forgot the missus's new hat." "Fergit it," suggested the boy.

But Nora set up such ado that a traffic police man halted the taxi and to preserve the peace, ordered it back up Fifth Avenue to fetch the missing bonnet. The boy meanwhile transferred himself to another cab and arrived at the pier in time ot tell what happened to Nora.

The captain was willing—in fact wanted—to sail without the maid, but Mrs. Thompson threatened to disembark if Nora was left behind.

So the De Grasse and her 419 passengers waited, with gang plank down and tugs blustering impatiently alongside, until Nora, triumphantly waiving a hat-box, clambered aboard.

SUIT AGAINST LADY GRACE M'KENZIE JENNINGS

New York, Feb. 18.—Lady Grace McKenzie Jennings, the big game huntress, was named today in contempt proceedings brought by publishers of her "Travels in Jungleland."

The action was based upon a judgment the publishers obtained in 1922 for 2,000 to cover unpaid costs of printing the book.

In view of the lady's absence on a honeymoon with Frank Teague Jennings, the Atlanta, Ga., and Columbia, S. C., manufacturer, whom she married two weeks ago, Supreme Court Justice Bijur gave her attorneys until next Tuesday to submit affidavits explaining why the judgment should not be satisfied or their client punished for contempt.

Jacob Monsky, a publisher, was the plaintiff.

About the time of her last marriage the titled huntress announced she was promoting a plan to reclaim and colonize 200,000 acres of Florida land with Russians and Greeks from the vicinity of New York city.

BELIEVES HIS COWS WERE DELIBERATELY POISONED

Stafford, Conn., Feb. 18.—Police officials and veterinarians investigating the death of four cows owned by Walcott Tremis, tobacco grower and dairyman here, discovered late today that the cows had been poisoned and not shot as at first reported. What was thought to have been a bullet wound in the head of one of the animals was the mark made by the horn of another animal in their struggle just before death, it is believed.

Chemical analysis will be made by the office of the commissioner of domestic animals and the feed given to the cows also will be investigated.

It is believed by the owner of the were poisoned deliberately as the four animals and the police that the cows best cows in the herd were the ones selected and 18 or 20 other cows which were given the same feed last night, showed no effects of poisoning this morning. The owner says he is at a loss to know who did the poisoning, declaring that he had had no trouble with anyone.

STATUS OF DISARMAMENT BY GERMANY TO BE SHARP ISSUE

Paris, Feb. 18 (By the A. P.)—The controversy between the allies and Germany as to whether there have been violations of the disarmament clauses of the Versailles treaty, and what may properly be the consequences of these, will come to a sharp issue in a few days, it is believed in French official circles. The report of the military control commission, which was to have handed over the supervision of Germany's armaments to the league of nations commission, after having given this matter a thorough examination, is in the hands of Marshal Foch and his colleagues of the allied military committee, and will come before the ambassadors' council within a day or two.

Although a subsidiary controversy is likely to arise as to the publication of the report, its essential features are already known, and in allied opinion indicate that Marshal Foch and his associates in the ambassadors' council and allied governments will find that the reich has flagrantly violated its engagements with respect to the maintenance of a general staff equal in importance to that prior to 1914 and in the training of recruits on a scale that enables her to provide for the eventual mobilization of a force several times greater than the army the treaty allows her to keep.

The report calls attention to cases of secretaries of arms, the maintenance of installing for the production of arms and the partial completion of machine guns, rifles and cannon, but the existence of a staff and the regular training of troops under skillful camouflage are regarded by the allies as the gravest charges contained in the report.

It is expected that the allies will duly informing Germany of the discoveries made, notify her that evacuation of the Cologne bridgehead will depend upon her absolute compliance with the treaty.

OPIUM CONVENTION OMITS AMERICAN PRINCIPLE

Geneva, Feb. 18— By the A. P.)—The anti-narcotic opium convention was adopted in its final reading by the international opium conference tonight, without including in the convention any mention of the American principle that the production of opium should be limited to medical and scientific needs.

The announced British attempt to incorporate this principle in some form failed to materialize. Instead, the French delegation, with the approval of the British and several new articles providing that the control regulations undertake to enact laws to insure effective control of the production, distribution and export of raw opium.

The article also commits the signatories to periodical revision and to strengthen the laws on this subject as set forth in the Hague convention, or which they may enact by virtue of the terms of this present convention.

Besides the convention proper, the conference adopted the protocol, whereby by providing countries agree to adopt measures to prevent within five years the smuggling of opium from constituting a serious obstacle to effective suppression of opium smoking in the Far East.

Searls of Putnam, Windham county state's attorney. Stating several cases where quack physicians caused the loss of life by illegal practices, Attorney Searls illustrated the seriousness of the present situation and the necessity of taking drastic steps. The bills now before the legislature are to fix the minimum of general education which an applicant shall have and to determine the minimum of training in basic physiological sciences which a physician must have, in order to obtain a certificate. The bills do not, in any manner, attack other branches of the medical practice, inclusive of chiropractic. Stating that there was nothing more sacred than the human body and nothing more desirable than good health, Attorney Searls, went on to say that the foundation of national stability must rely on the individual physical condition of the citizen.

PLAN MARINE MEMORIAL TO AMERICANS LOST AT SEA

New York, Feb. 19—A campaign to raise $500,000 to erect at Washington a national navy and marine memorial to Americans lost at sea was formally launched at a dinner tonight. Col. Theodore Roosevelt, former assistant secretary of the navy, toastmaster, Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fisk, T. V. O'Connor, chairman of the U. S. Shipping Board, and other bespoke success for the movement which is sponsored by the Navy and Marine Memorial association.

After felicitations were read from Cardinal Hayes and O'Connell, Bishop William T. Manning of New York and the governors of New York, Vermont, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and other states it was announced that $46,000 had already been subscribed toward the memorial. An anonymous donor had given $25,000; William K. Vanderbilt, Vincent Astor and Col. Robert M. Thompson, $5,000 each; William H. Vanderbilt, $2,000; and Mrs. E. H. Harriman, Frank B. Moses, president of the Washington Evening Star, Mrs. Marshal Russell and Eldredge R. Johnson, $1,000 each.

The plan of such a memorial was deemed by the various speakers as fitting recognition of the services performed by naval and merchant seamen and by the merchant marine.

Rear Admiral Fiske called the seaman "the unifier of the world," and said merchant ships had been vital to all naval success from Lord Nelson's time down to the civil war and the world war. Particularly since the armistice, he said, it had become the day of the maritime nation. He called attention to the rapid jump of the United States and Japan into the struggle for sea commerce and to "the millions of people and billions of dollars that will soon be involved."

CLAIMS BOSTON LARGEST WOOL MARKET IN THE U. S.

Boston, Feb. 18—The extent of wool shipments through the Panama canal was cited by a representative of the Boston wool trade association at an interstate commerce commission hearing here today as a reason for the association's plea for the establishment of through bills of lading, by routes and joint rates on wool shipped from the western states to Boston by rail and canal.

"Within ten years," said H. A. Davis, manager of the association's transportation department, "the Panama canal has transformed traffic relations between the Atlantic seaboard territory and the Pacific slope. The principal reason for canal routing is that the cost per hundredweight of water transportation is much cheaper than rail, generally about one third to one fourth of the all-rail rate.

"We believe that it is a well known fact that Boston is the largest wool market in the United States and that we should have the full advantages of being located at a seaport."

SUING FOR LOSS OF 1,657 GALLONS OF CIDER

Hartford, Feb. 18.—"If the state is going into the rum business, let's make it Scotch," was the last sentence in Attorney General Frank E. Healey's summing up the case against the claim of John Potter, of Griswold, for $2,017 for the loss of 1,657 gallons of cider between the time it was seized by the state police and the time it was returned to him. Mr. Potter pleaded guilty to a charge of violating the liquor law and was fined $200 and Mr. Healey said, "It takes some nerve for a man to come here and ask the state to add by its dignity and honor in recovering on articles on which he has pleaded guilty and been fined." The claim advanced by counsel for Mr. Potter was that the state police had so handled the barrels of cider in taking them from Mr. Potter's house to the Griswold town hall that some of the barrels were sprung so that leakage and loss resulted. Superintendent of State Police Robert T. Hurley was one of the witnesses for the state.

BINGHAM RECEIVED $18.44 FOR DAY AS GOVERNOR

Hartford, Feb. 18—United States Senator Hiram Bingham has received $18.44 from the state in payment for one day's service as governor. This amount was deducted by the state comptroller's office from the salary paid to Governor John H. Trumbull for his January services as chief executive, which began January 1, nineteen hours and a fraction after Colonel Bingham had been inaugurated as governor.

The state paid for the services of three governors during January, the monthly salary of $416.66 being divided as follows: Ex-Governor Charles A. Templeton, seven days $94.08; Colonel Bingham, one day $13.44; Governor Trumbull, 23 days, $309.14.

The salary of $125 a month provided for the office of Lieutenant Governor was also divided among three men, as follows: Colnel Bingham, seven days, $28.23; Colonel Trumbull, one day $4.03; Lieutenant Governor J. Edwin Brainard, $92.74.

The annual salary for governor is $5,000 and for lieutenant governor, is $1,500, but state officials are paid on a monthly basis.

The resignation of Colonel Bingham as governor the day following his induction into office found the comptroller's office without a precedent to follow with regard to the distribution of the salary. After some deliberation, it was decided to pay him one thirty-first of the amount provided for the month.

SIMPLE FUNERAL SERVICE FOR PUBLISHER DE YOUNG

San Francisco, Feb. 18.—A low mass, the most simple of the rites which the Catholic church accords its dead, was held in St. Marys Cathedral today for M. H. De Young, publisher of the San Francisco Chronicle and a pioneer in the civic betterment of San Francisco and the far west.

The simplicity of the services was in accordance with Mr. De Young's wishes. The cathedral was crowded and the audience included officials of the federal, state and city government, and many leaders in the community.

Monsignor Charles A. Ramm, who recently baptised Mr. De Young into the Catholic church, administered the last rites. The Most Rev. Edward J. Hanna, archbishop of San Francisco, pronounced the final blessings. There was no eulogy.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

The Palace offers its usual big vaudeville and picture bill today, Friday and Saturday. Heading the vaudeville will be Jimmy Connors and his radio entertainers, twelve symphonic artists playing classical jazz and popular numbers with some good singing and dancing thrown in. The four Nighdons offer one of the most beautiful acts in vaudeville with their posing and tableau. Sellers and Rogers the joy dispensers offer a line of comedy that will be the bright spot on the bill. Dorothy Tennyson and Phillip Fine offer a skit via radio which introduces Mr. Fines baritone voice to good advantage and also gives Miss Tennyson a chance to show the ladies something in gowns that will be the envy of the fair sex. Marcelle Fallette the little French refuge who served with the French and A. E. F. during the war and who played for President Wilson on board the George Washington in Brest will offer a violin program that will compare with anything offered up to date in Norwich. The picture end is ably taken care of by Anna Q. Nilsson and Lewis Stone in Inez from Hollywood. Inez is billed as the movie vamp and the advance notices tell about a Hollywood party—and only one girl wearing a bathing suit!

Sounds interesting! Well, even at this "party," staged for Inez From Hollywood, the First National picture shows the other girls were wearing evening gowns.

However, as a climax, a number of the girls took the plunge attired in their evening gowns, to get a diamond bracelet which had been thrown in as a trophy.

The cast includes Anna Q. Nilsson, co-featured with Lewis Stone, Mary Astor, Laurance Wheat, Rose Dione and E. H. Calvert.

Broadway Theatre

To say that the Keith Vaudeville and Picture which opens at the Broadway Theatre today is great would be to tell the truth. Just glance through and peruse the following outline.

An extraordinary feature is offered in "Captain Bloodgood" with Lew Ross and Jack Fay, and a bevy of beautiful girls in a musical comedy, a harmony of mirth and melody. Twenty-two minutes of fast, clean, wholesome entertainment.

Another important announcement is the musical comedy star Carl McCullough in Bright Bits of Travesty. He shines with ability and personality.

One of the best orchestras to be found anywhere comes here for the music lovers of Norwich. This is the Oxford Four, who represent animated youth in "Music and Rythm."

Hashi & Osei in their original contest offer a series of sensational feats.

Carl Drury & Olive Lane in "Jack the Hugger" is a laughable skit with song, comedy and dance.

Would you tell, a pretty girl you love her and then jump out of the window? This is what Reginald Denny does in his latest Universal starring vehicle, "The Reckless Age," now playing at the Broadway theatre. But there's a reason, of course. The hero is supposed to see that she marries another man—that's a business contract. The story is a hilarious picturization of Earl Derr Biggers' Saturday Evening Post story, "Love Insurance,"—and Ruth Dwyer is the girl.

Breed Theater

Marion Davies never was more beautiful, or more outstanding in her acting than in Janice Meredith, the latest Cosmopolitan motion picture, which truly has been greeted as one of the most brilliant productions ever made, and which will close its engagement at the Breed theater tonight. Miss Davies, as beautiful as ever, reaches new heights in histrionic ability. In the cast of upwards of 8,000 persons supporting her, Harrison Ford is the faithful lover, and Holbrook Blinn the charming but utterly despicable villain.

Janice Meredith was adapted by Lillie Haywood from Paul Leicester Ford's novel. It was directed by E. Mason Hopper. The settings were by E. Mason Hopper. The settings were by Joseph Urban. It is a Metro-Goldwyn release.

Bennie Leonard in the third best of Flying Fists, Hope Hampton in Mecall's Color Fashion news, a cartoon and the Fox news make up the remainder of the bill.

Strand Theatre

"Nazimova" in Oscar Wilde's Salome was shown for the first time in Norwich yesterday at the Strand and it must be said that this picture is one of the most daring photoplays screened. Perhaps no screen artists other than Nazimova could do justice to this character as it requires an actress finesse. On the same program "Big Boy Williams" in "The Eagle's Claw" has in this feature picture the opportunity to display his daring deeds and fearless horsemanship. A Husband provided many good laughs and the popular "Cross Word Puzzles" rounded out a well balanced picture program at the Strand yesterday and the same program will be repeated today. Seven good vaudeville tryout acts as well as the amateur acts will be given in conjunction with the double feature picture program. Owing to the limited capacity of the Strand it would be advisable to come early Friday night, as this show will be one of the best ever seen in this city.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Failing to pay a Dayville man $2,000 that has ticked on a lottery called for, has given the lottery proposition a real black eye in this town. An accepted interpretation of the reason for non-payment is that the lottery men figured that this community was not paying enough profit to warrant allowing anyone in it getting such a large winning as $2,000, so they quit cold. In this fact, those who put their money up each week have a lesson. The system works fine unless you happen to win something big. It works well even then in the cities where the advertising derived from the winning means heavier sales of tickets. It doesn't work out just that way here. Much smaller amounts than $2,000 have been won by Killingly people in lotteries and have been paid, but evidently this isn't a $2,000 town when prizes of that size are to be passed out. This appears now to be realized by a great many inveterate buyers of lottery tickets.

Delays in getting toll line calls out of this territory, the past two days, to Boston and points in New England where the routing is through Boston has been difficult because of fire that did $15,000 damage when it raged in the terminal room of the A. T. & T. building in Boston, cutting practically all of the long line service of the city out of order. Toll calls from this territory are now being sent into Boston and other Massachusetts towns and cities over long distance wires. It is anticipated that this condition will not long endure, as special efforts are being made to restore the toll service to normal.

Though the officers here continue to give their attention to fixing responsibility for the recent burglaries in Danielson no definite clues had been uncovered up to Wednesday afternoon, chief John McFarland said. Citizens will cooperate with the officers by reporting any suspicious circumstances to them, there is always the possibility of valuable aid to the officers in detecting violators of the laws against breaking and entering.

PUTNAM

At the weekly meeting of the Putnam Rotary club, held Wednesday at Putnam Inn, Thomas N. Rawley and John M. Dean reported that they had made up their 100 per cent. attendance record by going to the meeting of the Willimantic club Tuesday.

The net amount realized at the Valentine tea Saturday, $711.82, is the largest sum that the woman's board of the Day Kimball hospital has ever taken in at this event. Mrs. Andrew V. Frost, chairman of the general committee, is being congratulated over the outcome. The Day Kimball hospital held $10,000 in stock in the First National bank, and aside from the assessment that had to be met, the institution will lose the very handsome yearly income derived from the dividends on the stock.

The members of the senior class of Putnam High school, following their annual custom, gave a play at the Bradley theatre Tuesday night. Booth Tarkington's "Clarence" was the one selected for the 1925 class, and the production was very successful in every way. The cast follows:

DANIEL E. SHIPPEE DIES, AFTER WANDERING AWAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

Danielson, Feb. 18.—Unobserved, Daniel E. Shippee, 71, wandered away from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Bassett, who are in charge of the Killingly town farm at Dayville, probably between 2 and 4 o'clock on Wednesday morning and his absence was not discovered sufficiently early to allow the search that was made for him to afford a chance of saving his life. Before daylight, however, searching parties from the town farm found Mr. Shippee's body, clad only in an undergarment, in a field a considerable distance from his home. Dr. George M. Burroughs, medical examiner, was called and viewed the body. Dr. Burroughs said that Mr. Shippee had died of exposure. The body was taken in charge by A. F. Wood and by him brought to his undertaking rooms here.

Mr. Shippee had been in feeble health for some time and it is believed that the stress of his illness caused him to wander out of doors, practically unclothed, while all the members of the household were asleep. In his weakened condition he could not long withstand the rigors of the night. He had been away probably less than an hour when the body was discovered.

Mr. Shippee was born in Moosup, Oct. 2, 1853, a son of Alpheus and Harriet Fuller Shippee. For many years of his active life he was engaged as a farmer and for years conducted a large farm on the Danielson-Wauregan road, his home being near the Killingly-Plainfield line. The long hill leading up from where he lived toward Wauregan is still known as Shippee hill. Later Mr. Shippee lived in Danielson. He has been retired for a number of years.

Mr. Shippee leaves two sons, Leon, resident on the Warren place on the Green Hollow road, and Walter, who is on the Paine farm on the Green Hollow road, and five daughters, Mrs. Oliver Bassett of Dayville, Mrs. Palmer Jordan, Danielson; Mrs. William Raymond, Brooklyn; Mrs. Samuel Dykeman of Grove City, Pa., and Mrs. Maude Wilde of Wauregan. Mrs. Shippee is a resident in California.

BOOTLEGGERS PAY $1,404 WITHOUT ANY EFFORT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Feb. 18.—Putnam people are again wondering about the original cost of a case of alcohol "splits" or pre-war "Scotch" for which $50 or $60 or $75 is asked, and paid, due to the fact that three Providence citizens paid fines and costs of $1,404 in cash in the city court. They were of Italian descent, a father, his son, and his nephew. Before the prohibition law went into effect, or, rather, before it was enacted, $14.04 would probably have constituted their entire capital.

There is not a man in this city, engaged in legitimate business, who would not want a few days' notice before being required to face a loss of $1,400 cash, but to a bootlegger it seems a mere bagatelle.

PLAINFIELD

The funeral of Isadore Cournoyer was held Wednesday. At St. John's church at 8 o'clock solemn requiem mass was sung by Rev. R. P. Morrissey, the pastor, Rev. John C. Mathieu of Wauregan being deacon, and Rev. Oscar Normand of Moosup sub-deacon. A special choir, Mrs. C. Martin, Miss M. Tetreault and Mrs. D. Cournoyer and Eugene Cournoyer of Woonsocket and George Ragouth of Bridgeport, sang at the mass. Victor Cloutre sang a special solo, Awaken Him. Floral tributes were received from Baltic, Taftville, Danielson, and Pawtuxet valley cities. Burial was at the family lot in Baltic, Rev. Fr. Belanger assisting at the committal service at the grave.

Mr. Cournoyer died suddenly at his home Sunday morning. The news of his death was a shock to his many friends in this district. He was born in Sorel, Canada, in 1859, coming to Baltic when but 13. He married Miss Emma Peltier in that village and two children were born to them. In 1909 he came to Plainfield. He had followed the cotton manufacturing industry the most of his life.

He leaves his wife and two sons Paul, who is in the employ of the Lawton Mills Corp. in Plainfield, and Joseph, master mechanic of the Royal and Queen Anna mills at Riverpoint, R. I.

CIVIC RIGHTS RESTORED TO FRENCH RADICAL CAILLAUX

Paris, Feb. 18 (By the A. P.)—Joseph Caillaux, former premier, who was exiled five years ago from the capital and from the ports and fortresses of France and deprived of his civic rights for ten years for maneuvers regarded as menacing to the safety of the state, will tomorrow make a sort of triumphal re-entry into France.

The former leader of the radical party has already been here since he was granted amnesty by parliament, but only privately in response to an invitation from Premier Herriot who wishes to consult with him on the financial situation. A banquet in his honor tomorrow evening will be the occasion of his formal return and to politics.

M. Caillaux, it is announced by his friends, in thanking those who have remained loyal to him through all of his troubles, will announce a political program that is bound to make considerable impression. Further than that, the former premier has carefully concealed his intentions. He will arrive in Paris only in time for the banquet.

This idea that the former premier is coming back to take at once an important place in French affairs is current outside the circle of his personal and political friends. It is remarked, however, that the publicity given the banquet, for which all seats were long ago sold, has caused no reaction whatever in the parties most hostile to him.

There are even suggestions from parties in opposition to M. Herriot that the former premier might be able to form a government that would bring about a union on the financial question which the present head of the government has failed to encompass.

The Caillaux speech at the banquet will be broadcast throughout France.

W. M. JARDINE BECOMES SEC'Y OF AGRICULTURE

Washington, Feb. 18.—The senate confirmed today the nomination of William M. Jardine, of Kansas, to be secretary of agriculture.

Mr. Jardine, who is president of the Kansas Agricultural college, will take office March 4, succeeding Howard M. Gore, who on that day will become governor of West Virginia.

No opposition developed to Mr. Jardine's appointment and it was approved without debate or a record vote.

By acting on this nomination, the senate has cleared up all of President Coolidge's cabinet appointments except that of Charles B. Warren, of Michigan, to be attorney general. Mr. Warren's nomination still is before the judiciary committee and no call has been issued for a meeting of that committee to give the nomination further consideration.

BRIDGEPORT MAN AWARDED JAMES DOUGLASS MEDAL

New York, Feb. 18.—William Hastings Bassett of Bridgeport, Conn., was awarded the James Douglas medal for 1925 for "distinguished achievement in non-ferrous metallurgy" at the 135th annual dinner of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers tonight. Mr. Bassett, the citation said, was largely responsible for placing the brass industry on its present scientific basis. He is connected with the American Brass company.

TOPICS USED DURING FILIBUSTER IN SENATE

Washington, Feb. 18.—With its legislative calendar jammed and cries of "filibuster" resounding through the cloak rooms, the senate today devoted almost an entire session to discussion of the advisability of a negro swimming hole in Washington.

Objection was made to establishing a negro bathing beach in the tidal basin between the Washington monument and the Lincoln memorial, and opposite a beach for white persons. After four hours of debate and an involved series of votes, it was decided to withhold funds for both the negro and white beaches.

The senators paused in their heated debate only long enough to reaffirm their previous action in authorizing increases in their own salaries and to give a few minutes' attention to the pending conference report on the Underwood Muscle Shoals leasing bill.

Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, sought to have the bill carrying the salary increases recalled from the house and reconsidered, but his effort was defeated on an oral vote and he was unable to obtain sufficient seconds for a roll call.

The strain of the long debate over the bathing beach, during which reports of physicians and engineers were submitted, and the question of racial discrimination was argued, was broken late in the day by a discussion of the charms of youthful bathers and other more or less related subjects.

Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, a physician in private life, contributed some advice on hygienic features of the situation, and, veering off into a discussion of other medical matters, described the chlorine gas treatments for colds as "pure bunk."

WORST YEAR IN HISTORY OF AMERICAN WOOLEN CO.

Boston, Feb. 18.—The American Woolen company, in 1924, passed through the most trying year since its incorporation in 1899, according to a statement to stockholders issued today by President Andrew G. Pierce with the annual report of the company. The report showed an operating deficit of $4,025,865 and including depreciation and unearned dividends paid out, the deficit for the year was $11,969,836. The company, however drew upon its special reserve during the year to the extent of $1,436,824 and inasmuch as in calculating the 1923 earnings the addition of $4,000,000 to that reserve was treated as a profit, the deduction last year must be regarded as a loss, it was said including this sum of $1,436,824, the 1924 deficit from all sources amounts to $13,406,660.

These results compare with profits of $9,326,623 after charges in 1923 and $9,351,925 after charges in 1922. The net balance for the $40,000,000 common in 1923 was $16.84 a share and in 1922 $12.38 a share.

As of Dec. 31, 1924, the American Woolen company had quick assets of $86,123,891 and liabilities of $23,164,168, giving a working capital of $62,959,723. At the end of 1923 the company had $97,711,191 current assets and liabilities of $16,346,231, or net working capital of $81,364,960.

President Pierce in his statement to the stockholders says in part:

"Veteran millmen have characterized the depression as the worst since the Civil war, and our experience would seem to bear out that statement. * * * The new year is not sufficiently far advanced to make predictions valuable. Indications to date are for a competitive period in which the company should secure its share of the business that is going."

RUSSIAN RECOGNITION.

Perhaps there is nothing unusual in the inference drawn by some that because there is to be a change in the department of state it means a change in the foreign policy of the administration and that the government at Washington is taking a different and more favorable view toward the soviet government of Russia. Such an idea may be formed by those who are not in touch with the real situation, but the arrival at such a conclusion is without foundation in fact. There has been no change of view and there has been no clash between the president and the secretary of state.

The harm that can be done by the circulation of such an erroneous assumption can be easily recognized, as it appears to have been at the white house from which there has been issued a statement to the effect that president Coolidge sees no indications pointing to Russian recognition by the American government.

That is enough to set at rest the idle gossip that is going around about the retirement of Secretary Hughes because the president is anticipating a different attitude toward Russia. Just because Senator Borah urges Russian leniency and is chairman of the foreign relations committee hasn't altered the administration's policy, so well set forth by Secretary Hughes. It is not only supported by the president but it will unquestionably be continued by his successor.

Russia is of course at liberty to place whatever interpretation it pleases upon the Hughes retirement, but when it undertakes to bask under the belief that this government has departed from its previously announced position or that soviet Russia has complied with the requirements set forth by Secretary Hughes it is taking as mistaken a view as if insisted that it had already received recognition.

There is no real change in regard to the Russian situation. The soviet government has a long way to travel before it meets the requirements which have been so well set forth.

NO SLUSH FUNDS.

It is nearly four months since the national election and that means only four months since the slush funds were under fire by the senate committee of which Senator Borah was chairman and before which it was maintained that convincing evidence would be brought to show what methods were being pursued to swing the election.

The committee has at last made its report. Perhaps it waited until now so that it might be forgotten just what it was engaged in. Certainly it was evident when the testimony was being heard, and when an attempt was made to take the inquiry up after election, that the wild charges had prompted it were not substantiated. As the inquiry went along it was more and more evident that it was conceived as a political scheme to influence the election. It fell of its own weight and was a rank failure.

It was necessary for the committee to report and it cannot fail to be noted that it says nothing about slush funds, or the buying of elections in western states through the use of eastern money. It doesn't reek with instances of corrupt practice. It is set forth that there was raised by the republicans $4,360,478.92, by the democrats $821,037.65, by the third party $221,837.21. Republican expenditures totalled $4,370,409.01, democratic $803,908.21, third party $221,977.58.

The committee does make the recommendation that there should be a strengthening of the corrupt practices laws, that there should be a further limiting of expenditures by candidates and that money should not be transferred from one state to another. But there was absolutely no such frightful disclosures as some political alarmists tried to convince the country were pending. The charges were branded as a political trick at the time they were made. They were the same as were resorted to four years previous but they neither swayed the voters nor could they be substantiated before the committee. The committee should have branded them for what they were.

IMMIGRATION LAWS.

As immigration laws are proposed, studied and applied, and as opportunity is given to noting how they work out, it becomes evident that they are bound to be open to many changes. What seems to be the thing to do is often covering up weaknesses which do not come to light until the laws are put to a test.

We have established a contract labor law and we have created a restrictive immigration law with quotas for the various countries in addition to the other restrictions concerning fitness. They do not always work out as expected. Experience shows the wisdom of making changes once more.

For instance, Secretary Davis of the department of labor, in a recent address in New York, said: "I would repeal the contract labor law on the ground that workers who have jobs awaiting them would make better citizens than those who come here without definite plans. America should bring to this country the workers it needs and shut out all other immigration. America might safely admit the families of naturalized or native Americans regardless of quotas."

When the secretary of labor makes such suggestions they come as the result of study of the immigration problems and are bent upon giving the country the results it desires quite the same as suggestions along the line of checking the smuggling of aliens through the establishment of such a requirement as the annual registration of aliens.

There is no reason to expect that there will be such a thing as a permanent and unchanging immigration law. It is bound to require amendments in keeping with new conditions, or as the result of inconsistencies and defects disclosed in new regulations. We must look well to the protection of the country when making any such changes. We have come to understand the need of guarding against being imposed upon.

NOT WANTED.

Evidence is sufficient already to show that the country does not want the proposed child labor amendment, and it is to be noted that where there is an expression against it it is decidedly adverse. This gives a much different impression than it would if the votes were close. It makes it evident that the fight that is to be continued, according to the advocates of the measure, is certain to encounter still greater opposition.

By the present figures there are 21 states which have voted against the amendment. There are five that have voted in favor, and one of those, Arkansas, is in the position of having one branch of its legislature rescind its favorable vote after both branches had voted for it.

That it is snowed under should not mean that other states need take no action. It is a matter on which all should be heard, and now is the time to do it for those states whose legislatures are in session.

According to constitutional authorities the amendment does not stand defeated even though all the states which have not acted upon it should vote in opposition to it. The favorable vote of three-quarters of the state would insure its adoption, but the refusal of more than a quarter to ratify does not kill it. It remains as a matter that can be kept alive indefinitely until ratification. For that reason there is no time like the present for so impressing congress with the undesirability of it by the states that it will withdraw it and thus relieve the states of an annual one-sided contest fostered by a small minority.

REPAIRING THE WHITE HOUSE.

Those who know anything about the maintenance of property are fully aware of the fact that it does not grow better through negligence. Economy is one thing and waste is another. For that reason it will be interesting to note what position congress takes concerning the bill which calls for an appropriation of $50,000 for the making of needed repairs to the white house, the roof of which it has been previously disclosed needs more than ordinary attention in order to make it as safe as it should be. The fact that it stands in danger of being blown off or of collapsing from the weight of snow is doubtless the opinion of those who are qualified to provide the proof of such statements. Likewise such a claim as the building being a firetrap because of the mass of exposed wiring in the attic can be easily substantiated.

Thus when repairs of such a nature are called for, and it is easy enough to determine whether there is actual need for the work to be done for the protection of this important building, there ought not to be any great delay experienced in reaching a decision. Having the backing of the budget bureau gives added weight to the bill. It doesn't appear that anyone in particular would be inconvenienced if the sought for repairs were not made, but it does appear that it would be against good business judgment to pile up the expense by waiting or inviting the responsibility for some serious accident or trouble through a policy of delay. It would appear that this like supply and other appropriations for keeping the government going belongs with the things to be done.

WHAT SHE GOT

The woman with a determined chin regarded with extreme distavor the mild shoe clerk assigned to her.

"Now I'm going to tell you exactly what I want," she informed him. "Bring me a low shoe, size 6A. I don't like oxfords and I hate these fancy gew-gaw strapped ones—something sort of between. I don't want a sharp pointed toe and I can't wear these new round-toed ones, so it will have to be the some other kind—and don't bring me a French heel or one of those mannish flat ones. Just a good, sensible shoe that is real stylish."

"These shoes I've just taken off," interposed the mild clerk, turning them around. "They seem to be 7s and—"

"They are 6s," the lady told him with firm indifference. "There isn't a bit of use in your squinting at them because the mark is blurred! I haven't needed anything but a size 6 since I grew up! I rather like those shoes over in that case—that is, I should if the toe were different and the heel a little higher. You haven't? Well!

"Oh, those won't do at all!" she cried as he reappeared after a brief absence bearing a hopeful trophy from the shelves. "The woman who lives across the hall from me has a pair exactly like them and you can't imagine how ugly they look on her feet! And I told you the rounding toes weren't becoming—well, there must be something that isn't pointed or rounded if you'd only look for it! And this has two straps.

"You might bring me a pair like those the other clerk has just put down. Yes, I quite like those—mercy, you haven't brought me a six. This shoe is never anything bigger than a 4 or 5 and you see it won't even go on—a 6, you say? Then they've simply made a mistake in the markings! Why, a 6 slips on just as easy and my foot rattles around in it! It must be because it is a different make. Anyhow, the more I see of it the less I like it. There's something about it—no, I can't just say, but it's there. It's not at all the sort of shoe I had in mind when I described it to you!

"That's the trouble—all this might be avoided if a clerk only would do as I say in the first place instead of trying to put over his own ideas and have to come around to mine in the end.

"Goodness!" she breathed as the mild clerk shoe-horned on another specimen, "that's not an A width! It must be at least a triple A, because it is entirely too narrow. No, I don't care to look at the mark inside because I have no faith in marks—it is just like dresses. The last time I ordered size 38 it couldn't have been more than a 32! I couldn't even get it on! The people who mark sizes are careless, of course, just like all labor nowadays, and, anyhow, what do htey care?

"No, that shoe is too tight also—can't you see? For goodness' sake, look around and try to find me what I want! I never had such a time! My foot bulges through those straps and that woman down there doesn't seem to have that trouble—her clerk has taken the trouble to fit her! Size 6 A: if you've forgotten already!"

The mild clerk faded away and when he came back he walked with a snap. With a flourish he brought out a round-toed shoe with a French heel, size 7 1-2 C, which he adjusted on the customer's foot with ease. It fitted perfectly. He looked her firmly in the eye and there was something about his expression which reduced her to quietude, meekness and womanly resignation. "There," he stated emphatically, "is your shoe, madam!"

"Why, of course!" said the lady almost indignantly. "I told you in the first place if youd bring what I describ to you that was all that was necessary! Charge and send!"—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Our Gas and Electric Profits

Mr. Editor: I was much surprised to note in the account of the hearing at Hartford on Tuesday that Daniel T. Shea, former president of our gas and electric department, said the plant is making $250,000 a year and that things should be left as they are.

Is it not so that the plant is restricted in its earnings to 8 per cent. of its capital investment, which would amount to about $96,000 a year? Does the $250,000 represent the excessive rate which is being extracted from the users of gas and electricity? Are we entitled to a reduction in the rates which we are not getting, and which one of the proposed purchasers says he has no intention of changing except in one or two instances relative to power?

TAXPAYER

Norwich, Feb. 18, 1925.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Captain Asa Davidson, who has been appointed vice president of the Emergency Fleet Corporation in charge of operations, is a New Englander who has followed the sea since a boy. He shipped before the mast on his 15th birthday and was made master of a sailing vessel when he was 21 years old. From sail he went to steam, assuming command of one of the big fruit vessels plying between North Atlantic ports and Central and South America. Step by step he rose in the service until he became superintendent of the entire fleet operated by the company. During the war Captain Davison operated fruit vessels that were under the control of the British Admiralty. His activities kept him in constant touch with the British Ministry of Shipping in London and his war service was regarded as a most valuable contribution to the success of the Allies.

Peter Goes With Jumper

Don't boast unless you are prepared
To make it good if you are dared.
—Jumper the Hare.

When Jumper the Hare told Peter Rabbit that he had spent the night in the bedroom of Buster Bear, Peter didn't hesitate to say that he didn't believe it. "You've been dreaming, Cousin Jumper," said he. "You certainly have been dreaming. You wouldn't dare go into Buster Bear's bedroom, not to mention spending the night there. You certainly have had a dream."

"It is no such thing!" retorted Jumper the Hare indignantly. "I tell you

When he reached the entrance he looked back at Peter and then disappeared inside.

I spent the night there. I guess I know."

"Then Buster Bear wasn't at home," said Peter most decidedly.

"Buster Bear was at home. And he is there this very minute," retorted Jumper.

"Do you know what I think?" asked Peter.

"No," replied Jumper. "What do you think?"

"I think you are crazy," said Peter.

"Yes, sir, I think you are crazy."

Then Jumper told Peter the whole story. He told how he had run into Buster Bear's bedroom to escape from Old Man Coyote and how when he got in there he had found Buster Bear so sound asleep that he couldn't be wakened. "Now do you believe me?" he concluded.

Peter thoughtfully scratched a long ear with a long hindfoot. "Almost," said he. "If I could see Buster Bear myself I would believe your story."

"All right," replied Jumper. "Follow me and you will see Buster Bear."

Now, Peter hadn't expected this. The very thought scared him. But he was ashamed to admit it. Peter is naturally very timid, but privately he had always considered his big cousin, Jumper the Hare, even more timid. Not for the world would he have admitted that he was afraid to go where Jumper dared go. Jumper started off. Peter hesitated a moment and then he followed.

Peter knew where Buster Bears bedroom was. The nearer he got to it the farther behind Peter dropped. But he didn't get so far behind that he didn't have Jumper in sight. He still doubted if Jumper really would enter Buster Bear's bedroom. But Jumper did. When he reached the entrance he looked back at Peter and then disappeared inside.

Peter hopped more and more slowly. He did his best to think of some excuse for not following Jumper into that bedroom. But he couldn't think of a single excuse. Outside the entrance he stopped. He was trying to get up courage enough to go inside. Finally Jumper poked his head out. "I'm waiting for you, Peter," said he.

Then there was nothing for Peter to do, if he would keep his self-respect and Jumper's respect, but to go in. He drew a long breath, and with his heart going thump, thump, thumpity-thump he went inside. There he found Jumper sitting beside great big Buster Bear. He knew then that Jumper's story was all true.

Hampden, Guinea-a-Week Actor

So successful was Walter Hampden Dougherty in a play at school that it was predicted that he would become a great actor, but he underwent many hardships, disappointments and setbacks, even after he had made a start toward success.

Son of a prominent lawyer and public citizen of Brooklyn, Walter attended public school and the Polytechnic Preparatory School of Brooklyn. He was 16 when the senior class presented The Merchant of Venice. Selected to play the part of Shylock because he had the biggest voice in the class, his portrayal gained for him predictions of his ultimate success on the stage.

But he was not of a theatrical family, and at 17 entered Harvard university, but soon returned to the collegiate department of the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, where he was happy in producing amateur plays. After a visit to Europe he determined to be an actor.

In Paris he studied singing, fencing and acting, then went to England and joined a stock company at a guinea a week. In three years he played more than 70 Shakespearean roles. Next leading man for Oscar Asche, and then supporting H. B. Irving, he played the part of Hamlet at 25 when Irving suddenly lost his voice. And Walter Hampden, his stage name, became popular among admirers of Shakespeare. Two years later he married.

Returning to this country at 28, he created the role of Manson in The Servant in the House, and so faithful was his portrayal of the Christlike character that managers and public thought he could not play any other type. But he had continued to study Hamlet for 12 years after his success in London. Engaged to play Shakespearean roles at special matinees, his acting won high praise, but at the end of four weeks the producers' funds gave out.

Risking his entire savings, he presented Hamlet at afternoon and evening performances and achieved success; but theatrical managers still refused to be interested in Shakespearean productions, so he managed his own company and won wider fame.

Then came his great success in Cyrano de Beregerac and Hampden, at 45, says he still is determined to produce Shakespeare.

Stories That Recall Others

Poor Fellow

A young woman engaged to marry a young man on a business trip in the south is much worried for fear he will believe she has forgotten him, and the story hinges about the natural excitability of a girl in love.

When he left he gave her a carefully drawn schedule, showing at what time he would be in certain cities and she promised faithfully to write a letter to each place.

She kept her pledge, but he will have to go at least two days without a letter because instead of marking the last epistle "general delivery" she wrote on it "special delivery."

And it is said that postoffice clerks do not know that some special delivery letters are not what they seem and should be held at the general delivery window.

If Puppies, Why Not Baby?

"Tired, I should say I am," said a motorist as he talked to the young man who had hailed him for a ride. "You see, I've been up all night with our adopted baby. He is the cutest little fellow."

"How old is he?" inquired the young man.

"Well, now, let me see," replied the driver. "I don't exactly know. I came home one night with two little puppies and my wife told me if we could have two dogs around we could have a baby, and she said she was going to adopt one. Of course, I didn't believe her, but last Wednesday I come home a little early from my work and there was the baby buggy on the porch. She had gone and adopted a baby boy."

The guest inquired: "And I suppose it has a 'given' name?"

"Why, fellow, that baby didn't have any given name, but he's sure got a good one now."

The newly appointed father was so proud that the passenger, fearing his over-enthusiasm might lead to an accident, asked that he be let out and walked the rest of the way.

NAZIMOVA IN 'SALOMÉ' AT THE STRAND THEATRE

INDIANS FAIL TO FOOL BIRDS WITH SCARE CROWS

The Blackfeet Indian farmers of Glacier National Park reservation have had to come to the fashion of civilization in dressing their field scarecrows. They found that these grotesque figures they attired in old worn out buckskin shirts and leggins were literally eaten to shreds by the birds. Since adopting the pale face farmers' cast off coat and pants style of scarecrow creation their crops are immune from the pests of the air.

This tribe of Indians, under the guidance of Superintendent Campbell has been so quick to learn the white man's methods of farming that the United States government has erected a second flour mill on the reservation to take care of their grist for them.

The Indians are following diversified farming and raise, pigs, sheep chickens and cows, besides good wheat crops.

WITNESSES INTRODUCED IN EFFORTS TO CONVICT STOKES

Chicago, Feb. 18. (By the A. P.)—Joseph Bruner, white, former investigator for W. E. D. Stokes, New York millionaire, and Annie Johnson, negress former housekeeper at the Riverleach club, a notorious underworld resort of 15 years ago, were among the witnesses introduced by the state today in an effort to convict Mr. Stokes and other of conspiracy to defame his estranged wife, Helen Elwood Stokes of Denver.

Ted Rickard, ngut promoter, was mentioned in Bruner's testimony as supposedly one of the figures in a photograph shown him by the defendant Stokes in connection with alleged attempts of the latter to obtain false evidence showing his wife to have been a habitue of the club.

Bruner said Stokes showed him pictures of several persons of negro blood which "Stokes said were taken from Miss Stokes album," also pictures which Stokes said were pictures of negroes whom he named but which Bruner afterwards knew, he said, were not pictures of negroes.

Bruner, who was indicted with Stokes as a conspirator, but granted [illegible] Stokes sent for him because he had been a cab driver in Washington's segregated district and asked him to find persons who remembered an inmate of the Riverleach club named Helen Underwood, Elwood, or Norwood. Stokes told him, according to his testimony, that he was a lawyer named Johnson, seeking evidence on behalf of his lawyer, W. E. D. Stokes, who was preparing for a divorce suit.

Among the pictures Bruner said Stokes showed him for identification was one of a woman holding a dark child on her lap. According to the state, this picture showed Mrs. Stokes with a young white relative whose likeness had registered dark in the snapshot through defective photography.

MISLEADING LABELLING OF PRODUCTS CHARGED

Washington, Feb. 18.—Complaint charging unfair methods of competition in connection with alleged misleading labelling of its products was issued today by the federal trade commission against the Banner Silk Knitting Mills, Inc., textile manufacturers of New York city.

The company manufactured textiles which were not composed of silk "in whole or part," the complaint said. The Banner concern advertised such products as "The Silk Sensation of 1923," "Queen of Knitted Silk Fabrics," and other labels, which tended to create the impression that the products are made in whole or in part of silk. The complaint alleged that the use of word "silk" in the corporate name of the concern mislead the purchasing public into the belief that the products were composed of silk [illegible] portion of silk the work. The [illegible] has 30 days in which to answer.

DENIES ANY IMPROPRIETY WITH LEBANON STOREKEEPER

Judge Allyn L. Brown and a jury in the superior court at New London continued to hear evidence Wednesday in the $15,000 suit of Earle A. Crane of Lebanon against W. L. L. Spencer, a storekeeper of that town, for alienation of the affections of Crane's wife, Nellie.

Mrs. Crane was on the stand Wednesday. She testified that her love for her husband began to cool following receipt of a set of sutures from her husband who was in the navy and stationed in South Carolina. She said the set bore the imprint of the U. S. navy, and she was led to believe that her husband was a thief, which belief was strengthened as time wore on. She admitted calling the aged storekeeper "Daddy," and also admitted kissing him, but said that she had done so at the request of her husband. She charged that her husband had requested her to enter into a plot with him, whereby they could get Spencer's money. Under cross examination by Attorney G. Curtis Morgan, counsel for the plaintiff, Mrs. Crane denied that this charge was one framed by herself and Spencer to blacken the character of the plaintiff in the eyes of the jury.

She denied the truth of the testimony given by Stanton L. Briggs at Tuesday's hearing to the effect that he had seen her, at one time, leaning on Spencer's shoulder, and categorically denied all of her husband's charges relative to intimacies with Spencer.

On cross examination, in response to a question she stated that she and her husband and Spencer, and Spencer's grandson, Herman Spencer, had remained at the Auditorium hotel in Norwich for a period of four nights, and also admitted that she had been in Mr. Spencer's room the first night from shortly after midnight until about 6 o'clock in the morning. She stated that Spencer was taken suddenly ill, and that she attended him.

Mrs. Crane also testified under cross examination that she had sat upon Spencer's knee, but did so solely for consolation after her husband had driven her almost into hysterics by his scolding. She likewise admitted that she refused to leave Spencer's house where she was employed as housekeeper to go away with her husband when he asked her to.

Otto Pultz, Frederick M. Taylor and Ozzo Fuller, all of Lebanon, appeared as witnesses for Spencer and stated that although they had seen Mrs. Crane and Spencer together often they had never seen any impropriety.

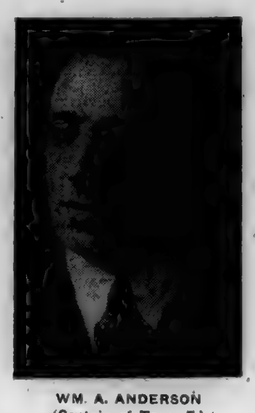
BOY SCOUT DRIVE IS WITHIN $1,500 OF GOAL FOR BUDGET



WM. A. ANDERSON
(Captain of Team F.)

Less than $1,500 remains to be raised by the teams in the local Boy Scout campaign to bring the final total up to the goal of $5,000. The teams Wednesday evening reported $1,034.50 raised during the day, bringing the total to date up to $3,574. This amount will be increased by something like $150, the proceeds of the Scout stunt program held Wednesday evening at the Palace theatre.

The teams, as usual, met at Odd Fellows' hall, Main street, at 6.15 o'clock Wednesday evening for supper served by the Rebekahs. At the close of the supper Campaign Manager E. A. Harris called for the team reports and they were given as follows:

Team. Captain.	Amount.
A—H. B. Cary	$185.00
B—E. W. Perkins	356.00
C—C. A. Gager	188.00
D—E. Taggert	109.00
E—L. M. Crandall	99.50
F—W. A. Anderson	97.00
Total raised Wednesday	$1,034.50
Previously acknowledged	2,539.50
Total raised to date	$3,574.00

A guest of the evening was Harry B. Converse, regional director of the Boy Scouts of America, of Boston, who spoke to the team captains and members in an interesting and enthusiastic vein. He urged the team workers to make a special effort Thursday and Friday to bring the final total up to the $5,000 mark.

Others who spoke to the teams were Arthur L. Peale, former president of the local Boy Scout council, James L. Case, campaign adviser, and Edmund W. Perkins, captain of Team B.

Campaign Manager Harris announced that the selected lists are no longer restricted to specific teams and that contributions may be solicited from anyone who has not yet had an opportunity to help increase the fund.

The team captains have been requested to report at Scout headquarters in the Shannon building Friday morning at 10 o'clock for a final conference. The campaign will be officially closed Friday evening, when the teams will report at Odd Fellows' hall at 6.15 o'clock for the usual supper. There will be no meeting of the teams this (Thursday) evening, so that the workers will have two full days in which to jump the fund total over the $5,000 mark. The campaign manager expressed the hope Wednesday evening that the various societies will make their usual contributions to the fund.

SCOUTS INCREASE FUND BY "STUNT" PERFORMANCE

To increase the fund being raised for the Norwich Boy Scout annual budget, the local scout troops gave a "stunt" performance Wednesday evening at the Palace theatre before a good sized audience. One-half of the box receipts of the evening will be turned over to the campaign fund by the Palace theatre management. The performance opened about 7.30 o'clock with a comedy moving picture, after which the various Scout troops appeared in stunts that brought them a big hand. The scouts entered into the spirit of the evening in a very enthusiastic manner and enjoyed the performance fully as much as the delighted audience.

The performance given in two parts included the following numbers: Part 1—Opening number, comedy moving picture; songs by Troop 6; boxing exhibition by members of Troop 5; knot-tieing demonstration by Troop 32; stunts by Troop 7; sketch, A Day in Camp, Troop 1; pyramid exhibition, Troop 1, Jewett City; demonstration, Lend a Hand, Troop 1, Canterbury; pyramid exhibition and drum corps drill, Troop 4.

Troop 2—Pathe News reel; demonstration of the making of scouts, Troop 3; wrestling exhibition by the North Stonington troop; music by members of Troop 9; how scouts fight forest fires, Troop 20. Prof. Brosimo appeared in an interesting mindreading act after which an athletic movie reel brought the performance to a close about 10.30 o'clock.

Scout Executive Frederick A. Benton was in charge of the programme for the evening.

MYSTIC COMMUNITY HOUSE DAMAGED BY FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Mystic, Feb. 18.—Fire was discovered about 7 o'clock this evening underneath the Mystic Community house by Fred Godfrey, superintendent of the building, who, on returning from lunch, scented the smoke. After an investigation through the rooms, he went under the building and there discovered the beams burning under the furnace room. A still alarm was sent in to the Hook and Ladder company, which responded quickly with the chemical engine, and after considerable work the flames were extinguished without any serious loss. Owing to the loss of the furnace, the house will be closed tomorrow. It is fortunate that the timely discovery of the fire was made as it was rather than during the night, as a bad fire in the building would have meant a serious loss to the community.

MISS WILMAN SANDA, SINGER, SPENT 22 YEARS ABROAD

Interesting experiences during the World war, and before, are recalled by Miss Wilma Sanda of New York, who for the past six weeks has been in Norwich, at 94 Williams street.

Miss Sanda, who is a singer, spent 22 years in Europe, studying in England, Germany, France and Italy. She made her debut in London, singing in grand opera there, also in Germany and Italy. She also gave recitals in England, and throughout the British Isles, having been associated with the famous Dame Clara Butt, the renowned singer, who had the distinction of being knighted during the war.

Miss Sanda studied with Marchesi, in Paris, and with Etelka Gerster, in Berlin. She was engaged in collecting folk songs in Germany when the war broke out—which meant that under the jurisdiction of the American government she was obliged to return to home soil.

Coming back to New York, she worked for two years for the Red Cross, utilizing her art solely for charity.

Post-war conditions in the musical world are too well known to require comment. Miss Sanda took up another line of effort, which has brought her into this vicinity, where all who have met her have been impressed by her personality as well as her ability.

DOUBLE BIRTHDAY SURPRISE GIVEN IN YANTIC

About 30 friends gathered at the home of Mrs. William Shaw in Yantic Saturday evening and gave a birthday surprise party to Mr. Shaw and A. During the evening various games were played and vocal solos were rendered by Mrs. Louis LaPorte of Pascoag, R. I., and George LaVallee of Hallville. There were also four tables of whist played, ladies' first prize going to Mrs. Mary Richards; second, Mrs. Joseph LaPorte; gentlemen's first to Joseph LaPorte; second, William Shaw. After the whist sandwiches, cake, fancy cookies and coffee were served. There were friends and relatives from Hope Valley and Pascoag, R. I., Danielson, Hallville and Yantic. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Edward Smith, Lila Smith and Mrs. William Shaw.

NORWICH MAN'S MACHINE FOUND IN MASSACHUSETTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Feb. 18.—A Ford sedan owned by School Supervisor Edwin B. Floyd of 122 Roath street, Norwich, which was stolen from the vicinity of the Willimantic State Normal school Monday evening, was recovered Wednesday when found abandoned on the bank of a river near Brookfield, Mass. When located by Massachusetts state police officers the car contained considerable clothing and it was at first believed that the driver had thrown himself into the river. The state police barracks at Stafford Springs were notified of the finding, and Officer Heneault transmitted the information to Mr. Floyd, who went for the machine and drove it home. The car did not display any signs of abuse on its mysterious trip.

DENIES DIVORCE FOR MRS. ELIZABETH MEYER

Judge Christopher L. Avery of the superior court at Norwich in a decision handed down Wednesday denies divorce to Elizabeth Meyer of New London who sued for divorce from Abraham Meyer, on the grounds of intolerable cruelty and desertion.

This was the woman's second marriage, her first husband, named Ostrow, having been killed when a train hit the motor truck in which he was riding at Mystic.

Disorder in a political meeting seldom begins until after it is called to order.

ROTARY CLUB ENGAGED IN COMMUNITY CHEST DISCUSSION

The meeting of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday was originally scheduled as an educational meeting in charge of the Rotary Educational committee but before the programme had progressed far the meeting developed into a booster meeting for the Boy Scout campaign and a discussion of the Community Chest movement. The Community Chest suggestion, that was made by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, was received with evident favor and a discussion of the movement ensued. A motion that this question be considered at a later date brought the discussion of the question to a close.

President Hugh B. Campbell presided and James L. Case was the song leader. The way Jim made the boys sing left no doubt in the minds of anyone that he was the songleader. Jim's taste in songs ran to the old timers, mostly patriotic, as he said that as it was just between Lincoln's birthday and the birthday of Washington these would be appropriate. A pleasing feature of the musical programme was the three solos by Frank H. Mundy, who sang The Trumpeter, On the Road to Mandalay and another pleasing number.

William G. Park, a past president of the club, who has recently become the proud father of a nine-pound son who will be known by that good old Scotch name, Angus William, was presented a gift which he was instructed to carry to the youngster with the best wishes of the club. Ex-President Bill responded thanking the club on the behalf of the little fellow and then passed the cigars.

Edwin A. Harris, campaign manager of the Boy Scout budget drive, introduced Harold Converse of Boston who spoke on the Boy Scout work. Mr. Converse said that at the present time there is no need of selling Scouting to the boy for the average youngster is eagerly anticipating the time when he may become a member of a Boy Scout troop. We must, however, sell it to the grown-ups once in a while for this great movement must be carried on and to do so we must have funds. Scouting is one of the greatest forces in character building that any organization can get in back of for it teaches those things that make better citizens. There are 700,000 boys in America that have pledged themselves to do their best in their duty to God and country. This country is better for their doin gs it. Scouting also has a great educational value and ranks with the schools. One supervisor of schools in another city said that if a boy studied everything in scouting thoroughly from beginning to end he would be able to successfully pass a college entrance examination. Mr. Converse also told of instances where scouts through their knowledge gained in scouting had saved many lives. Mr. Harris also spoke urging support of the boy scout campaign. He said:

"The Rotary is judged by its members. Rotary has spread itself over the whole world, many hundred thousand men constitute its membership, for the average person will form his judgment of Rotary through his contact with one individual member. If this one member is not 'a true Rotarian, and does not live up to the teachings of Rotary, a big amount of Rotary work will be needed to overcome the bad impression. Every member of Rotary has a duty, and those duties are laid down in the Rotary creed and the work of our educational committee and the impression the individual Rotarian makes is an advertisement for Rotary, good or bad.

One Rotarian asked me why I took the manager's job. I said, because I am a Rotarian and only because I am a Rotarian, did I take the job as a campaign manager of the Boy Scout drive for $5,000 when requested. I would never have believed, or thought it my duty, if it were not for the teachings of Rotary and the good ideas of our real educational committee. Some have said, thoughtlessly I believe, that much of our stuff is "bunk." In this drive I have had some real help from Rotarians, especially old Bert Gager; and when its teachings can awaken a couple of "hams" like us, these teachings are not "bunk" or "humbug." Of course, other Rotarians besides Bert have been a real help, but they always help.

Several minor differences have come up during this campaign, immaterial obstacles that I did not know of when I took the job, but very picayune and small matters. Broadminded men should not lose sight of the fact that the teachings and discipline taught by the Boy Scout program, and the character building stuff, actually gets over to the boys. This I know.

There are 356 of them in this town. It is a non-sectarian, non-partisan, non-political organization. Just one thing that they teach a boy is worthy of the support of Rotary, because he is taught to do One Good Turn Every Day.

Perhaps I should not say this, but some one will correct me if I am wrong, but I have inquired if the John Blackmar Fund for Boys could not be used in a substantially material way for this work, and I get the answer that it would establish a precedent; but still it is a fund for boys, established for boys, and the Boy Scouts are the biggest organization in Norwich doing intelligent work for boys, giving them the opportunity to do the things they want to do better than they could do them by themselves. It will make real men out of real boys. Men with vision can see these citizenship training advantages to this community to Norwich and to Rotary.

In a month or two Rotary is going to foster an extensive Boys' Week program. Is this community going to be quite sure of the sincerity of Rotary if this drive falls with we Rotarians holding down the major jobs? I don't think the community is going to be quite sure of our sincerity if it does.

You men should support me today. There are 30,000 people in Norwich; 300 subscriptions, totaling $2,600 in round figures, have been subscribed up to last night—1 per cent. of the population. We are running tonight, as you know, a program at Slater Hall. Why Rotary cannot support this thing in a more tangible way than she has I do not know! And unless an appeal to you men here in Rotary is answered, the Boy Scout drive is going to fail.

Oh, men, I want the balance of this $5,000 this week from Norwich for Rotary and its boys!

Following Mr. Harris' talks the club voted to contribute to the campaign.

President Campbell heartily endorsed Mr. Harris' talk and said that in Norwich there was too much destructive criticism and not enough constructive criticism. Too much sitting back and letting the other fellow do the work and then when it is done pick it all to pieces and tell how it should have been done.

Lucius Briggs and James L. Case also spoke along the same lines.

Rev. Alexander H. Abbott spoke, saying that he was speaking in a spirit of constructive criticism. He said that in the past all organizations sponsoring worthy causes had conducted campaigns in a haphazard way until the people did not know what was coming next and the strain on the pocketbook was tremendous if one gave to all the worthy causes. Mr. Abbott advocated a combining of the efforts of campaigning into one general campaign such as the Community Chest movement. Let all the organizations present their budgets, the Boy Scouts, the Red Cross, the Rotary club and others and then in one general campaign with everybody working go out and raise the year budget and put it into the Community Chest.

Several other members of the club spoke on the movement and it was decided to defer action until a later meeting when the discussion of the topic would be reopened.

$20,000 LOSS IN PRESTON FARM FIRE

Fire about 3 o'clock of unknown origin on the old Bentley farm in the town of Preston destroyed the 17-room farmhouse, a summer kitchen adjoining, a horse barn, two automobiles, farm machinery, two horses and twenty-two head of cattle. The loss is estimated at $20,000, partly covered by insurance. The farm is owned jointly by Philip Webber and Harry Kurtzman, who purchased the property about a year ago.

A young daughter of Kurtzman's awoke the other occupants of the house by her cries and they made their escape but saved nothing but their clothing.

When awakened one of the men had to run a mile to neighbors to telephone to Preston City for help. The Norwich fire department was notified but as there was no water at the place it was useless for them to go there and it is doubtful if the heavy apparatus could have reached the farm on a muddy side road off the main highway.

The burned out families are staying at a neighbors. It is understood that Mr. Kurtzman and Mr. Webber expect to rebuild.

CORNELIUS O'BRIEN, 92, WALKED 6 MILES TO CHURCH

Cornelius O'Brien, 92, died in Old Lyme Sunday at 8 a. m. and was prayed for at St. John's church, Saybrook. Rev. James U. Russion, the pastor remarked that he was one of the first Catholics who attended services in that section when they were held in the old town hall and at the homes of the few Catholics in the early sixties and the late fifties and was a regular attendant, making the trip winter and summer, walking over the old railroad bridge from Old Lyme, six miles until very recently, when his health would not permit.

Result of Poultry Embargo

The wholesale prices on hindquarters cuts of beef were never so low as they are today. Choice rib roasts, porterhouse and sirloin steaks are far below their normal price level in the cities.

This condition has been brought about through the big demand for forequarter cuts by the Jewish people in New York, who cannot obtain their usual supply of live poultry because of the embargo which still exists.

The local slaughterers have been forced to process more than their normal supply of steers to meet this demand for the forequarter cuts. Coupled with a light demand for Western dressed hindquarter cuts by consumers, the market is burdened with the extra load of hinds and ribs from local killers, with the result that some of the prices approach those paid for the steers on the hoof.

WESTERLY HIGH NOSES OUT STONINGTON BY SOLITARY POINT IN HECTIC GAME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, R. I., Feb. 18.—Westerly High basketball team nosed out Stonington High team in a close game this afternoon by one lone point winning 27 to 26. The game was one of the closest of the high school season and kept the gallery in a constant uproar as one team would take the lead only to relinquish it to the other. It was one of those see-saw games that hung in the balance until the final whistle. Henderson of Westerly was the star of the game and it was through his accurate basket tossing that the local boys emerged victors. The summary:

ATHLETICS FIRST TEAM TO COMPLETE ROSTER

Philadelphia, Feb. 18.—(By The A. P.)—Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics today became the first club in the Major Leagues to sign all players for the 1925 campaign.

Frank Welch, outfielder, was the last to send in his contract. It was received today with an explanation that it would have been sent sooner but for the fact that he was not at home when it was received.

Manager Mack in making the announcement, said he had no trouble in getting the signatures of the team. Most of the contracts were sent out around February 1.

Ed Rommell, the star knuckle ball pitcher, was the only one to ask any questions, Mack said. He wrote to ask why there was no increase in salary, and when he arrived here yesterday to get Mack's answer he promptly signed. There was no increase, Mack said.

Gordon Cochrane, former star catcher of the Portland, Oregon team, who came to the Athletics in exchange for five players and a sum of money, recently wrote to Mack that he felt he was entitled to some of the purchase payment based on the suggested rule that Mack proposed to the American League that players receive ten per cent. of purchase money. The league did not adopt the suggestion. Cochrane signed some time before the regular contracts were sent out. Mack wrote Cochrane explaining the situation and while he has no reply from him, the Athletics' manager said he fully expected Cochrane to report. Cochrane is said to be at Windsor, Vt.

MR. MURPHY REPLIES TO MANAGER SALISBURY

Sporting Ed:

In reply to an article by Mr. Salisbury in your paper, Monday morning, I wish to say that I did refuse to play the Plainfield team solely because Mr. Salisbury and I could not reach an agreement regarding players.

Since both teams are composed of practically the same players, Mr. Salisbury would not consent to dividing the players equally among the two teams. He insisted on playing his team as it now stands on the ground that he did not want to break up his teamwork. In other words, Mr. Salisbury wanted everything for himself and would give me no chance at my regular players, so therefore I refused to play under such conditions.

If Mr. Salisbury is willing to be halfway reasonable I do not think there will be any trouble in arranging a series, otherwise I do not want to have anything to do with him or anybody else that cannot meet me halfway.

In conclusion I would like to ask the fans and backers of the Plainfield team if their memory is so poor that they cannot remember what happened last season when Taftville and the Plainfield teams met.

Manager of Army-Navy Club, Taftville, Conn.

BROADWAY ATHLETES IN TRYOUTS AT "Y" GYM

The Broadway grammar school athletes had their preliminary meet in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium yesterday afternoon and judging from the way the young athletes entered into the various stunts, they are evidently setting their determination upon winning the Clegg trophy cup again this season.

The leading boys in yesterday's events were as follows:

Obstacle race—Harkness, Angelopolis, Szostack, Stevens, Lynch, Serrs, Henschel, Flaherty, Flather, Yeitz.

Standing bread jump—Flather, Lynch, Harkness, McCarthy, Wernsing, Angelopolis, Nagle, Yeitz.

Basketball shooting — Rabideau, Lynch, Angelopolis, Yeitz, Pierson, Flather.

Potato race—Henschel, Allen, Flaherty, Scarvelus, Angelopolis, Lynch, Harkness.

Target throw—Nagle, Harkness, Bruaman, Wernsing, Angelopolis, D'Atri.

Several practice periods will be available in the Y. M. C. A. gym next week and the finals in which the Broadway, Greeneville and Elizabeth street schools will compete will probably be held Wednesday, March 7.

CHAPMAN TECH CLASHES WITH KILLINGLY FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Feb. 18. — Although finding Killingly High an easy opponent in the contest played at New London in January, Chapman Tech with her much weakened team will face the Killingly players at Danielson on Friday. Having failed to win a single victory since the suspension of two regular members of the team went into force the Red and Black is attempting to locate its missing punch to deliver once more.

The punch seems missing despite the fact that the combination seems to play in better form than ever before. With Martin towering center, much taller than the disposed captain, and with L. Hewitt giving a good account of himself at the forward berth, there seems that the two open positions were well filled with substitute material. The chief difficulty lies in the poor defensive that the Red and Black is able to use in moments of highest efficiency in scoring for the opposing five. This has been true in the three games Tech has dropped this month making it the fourth consecutive contest lost.

To remedy this situation it is necessary that the team posses a better defensive functioning team. The offense appears to be well taken care of by a systematic pass work team in which all but the guards participate in. Occasionally the guards are the keynote of a successful offensive drive which terminates in a score for the Red and Black. At present there are but three more games before the banished players may once again don a uniform. Bridgeport 6th which is played on the 28th of this month appears to be the strongest of the remaining teams on the schedule.

FIRPO FIGHTS FIRST EUROPEAN BOUT TONIGHT

Monte Carlo, France, Feb. 18.—Luis Angel Firpo will be seen in action tomorrow night for the first time since his visit to Europe when he takes on Jack Townsend, American negro, in a six-round contest here. Townsend has appeared twice in French rings with indifferent success.

Jack Townsend, negro heavyweight, was a sparring partner in Luis Firpo's training camp last summer when the South American was preparing for his bout with Harry Wills. Recent ring records show Townsend was knocked out by Bill Prestage, English heavyweight, at Newark, N. J., last November and also sustained a technical knockout at the hands of Tiger Flowers, Atlanta negro middleweight, at Philadelphia in December.

BRIDGEPORT CLUB BUYS SHORTSTOP FROM SALT LAKE

Bridgeport, Feb. 18.—President Walter E. Hapgood, of the Bridgeport Eastern League baseball team, tonight announced the purchase of Shortstop Walter I. Pearce from the Salt Lake City team of the Pacific Coast league. Pearce is a former University of Pennsylvania football and baseball star.

Phil Neher, who played shortstop for the Bridgeport and Jersey City teams last season, has been released. President Hapgood also announced that he would name the manager for the Bridgeport team at the schedule meeting of the Eastern league to be held in Springfield, Mass., tomorrow.

BATTERY B TEAM TAKES MEASURE OF Y. M. H. A. FIVE

Battery B basketball team defeated the Y. M. H. A. five 42 to 34 at the Y. M. H. A. gymnasium on Wednesday evening. A sensational spurt in the last quarter by the Battery team decided a game which had been close up to that time. The score at the end of the first half stood 24 to 22 in favor of the Y. M. H. A. boys. The two teams will meet at a later date. The scoring was as follows: Battery B—O. Berberich 24, Goodrow 2, Gernhard 0, Prodell 5, A. Berberich 11. Y. M. H. A.: E. Seigal 11, Rocen 2, Budnick 2, Adnopz 17, Zimmerman 2.

Deep River Beats Chapman.
(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Feb. 18.—Deep River High made it two straight over Chapman Tech five, winning here last evening by a 23 to 16 score. A late rally in the last half for Deep River, which netted six points put the game on ice for the visitors. L. Hewitt led Tech in scoring with four field baskets, while Andrews was a close second with three. O'Brien as usual starred for the visitors.

MASS. AGGIES GAIN CLOSE VICTORY OVER AGGIE TEAM FROM THIS STATE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Amherst, Mass., Feb. 18.—A fighting Connecticut Aggie team went down to defeat at the hands of the Massachusetts Aggie five here tonight when in a game that was marked by close guarding and clever passwork the Storrs team finished on the short end of a 20 to 18 count.

Entering the fray as the underdog the Nutmeg Aggies put up a spirited game from the first whistle and at half time left the floor trailing with a 10 to 4 count. The defensive play of both teams in this half was especially good. In the last session the contest was on more even terms with the Storrs five making desperate efforts to overcome the slight lead of the Bay State rivals. Inability to cash in on golden opportunities in the closing moments lost the game for Connecticut, however, as a couple of easy under the basket shots were missed in the dying stages of the battle, when but one basket was needed to knot the count. Ferranti put the game on ice for the M. A. C., when he caged a long basket from mid-court in the closing moments of the game. The work of the Storrs team was greatly hampered by the low ceiling and narrow playing area of the M. A. C. drill hall in which the contest was played. In spite of this, however, the Aggies gave the Bay Staters the closest game experienced on their home surface in three years, excepting one game which was lost to Stevens Tech. Schofield and Eddy were the high scorers for Connecticut and Captain Samuels of Mass. Aggies showed up best for his team. The score:

TAYLOR LEADS BULKELEY FIVE IN SCORING

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Feb. 18.—Heavy scoring during the past week featured the individual race for scoring honors of the Bulkeley quintet. Hanging up four straight victories with the accuracy of Buck Taylor in finding the hoop, has given this Orange and Black hoop star a decided advantage over the other players on the Bulkeley quintet. Taylor has secured a 11-point advantage over Parisi, his nearest rival.

In two games Taylor accounted for 15 field goals, and boosted his field basket total from the previous mark of 25 to 38. In the game with Bacon Academy when Taylor was disqualified for personal fouls, he lost an opportunity to score a much larger total. Taylor's new mark is 85 points which comprises 38 field and 9 foul baskets. Parisi is runner-up to Taylor with a total of 71 points which includes 29 field goals and 13 fouls. Although Vogt has scored more goals from the field than Pirisi, the foul goal total hung up by the diminutive forward gives him second place in the standing. Vogt is not far behind Parisi in third place with a total of 63 points.

Friday, Bulkeley will oppose South Kingston High at Peace Dale, R. I. This will be the second meeting of the teams, Bulkeley being returned the victor in the initial encounter which opened the season for the Orange and Black. This game will probably be the only game played this week, and the following week will be a busier week for the Orange and Black. With only one game scheduled for this week, it will be the first week on the schedule in which but one game will be played. Other weeks, the locals engaged in two, three and in some instances four games a week.

NOW DOES ALL HER WORK

Has No Backache, No Bad Feelings Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Drove Her Illness Away

Milwaukee, Wisconsin.—"I was in a badly run-down condition and I would get weak spells and terrible headaches. I felt so badly last year that I could not do any housecleaning. The minute I would lift or stoop it seemed as if I was going to fall to pieces. I told a neighbor how I felt and she said that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was surely the right thing for me. I took four bottles then and in the fall of the year I took three. I had been treated by a doctor but he gave me an iron tonic and that did not help me. It seemed that the tonic didnot have in it what the Vegetable Compound did. That gave me the strength and ambition I needed and I have gained in weight. This year before I started to clean house I got four bottles of the Vegetable Compound and am taking it right along. I tell all my friends about it and how much good it does me. They can notice it because I have gained in weight. I weigh 118 now and do all my work myself again."—Mrs. EMIL O. BRANDENBURG, 651 37th Street, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

MERRITT-CHAPMAN-SCOTT WIRELESS AT NEW LONDON MAY BE ABANDONED

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Feb. 18.—There is a possibility that the wireless station in operation at the plant of the Merritt-Chapman-Scott company, Inc., Pequot avenue, will be abandoned, but the discontinuance of the station, or its permanent operation will not be determined for several days. As soon as experiments now being made have been concluded, the company will not make a statement as to whether the station will be abandoned, but that statement, it is expected, will be made the latter part of this week, or early next week.

For many weeks radio fans have been aggrieved because of the operation of the station causing great interference with the reception of radio programs, it often becoming necessary for the fans to discontinue all efforts to receive on their instruments. Complaints have been repeatedly made because of the annoyances experienced by radio owners and it is understood that because of the many complaints the discontinuance of the wireless is being considered.

Police Sergeant John Cavanaugh this afternoon went to Lawrence hospital where he received a container in which were part of the organs removed from the body of Miss Dolly Wench, pretty 21-year-old Hartford telephone operator, whose death occurred from septic poisoning following criminal abortion at the residence of her fiance, John Woods, 23 Ocean avenue, yesterday morning. The organs were taken from the body late yesterday afternoon by Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman, who performed an autopsy and are being taken to the state laboratory at Hartford for the purpose of supplying undisputed proof of the cause of Miss Wench's death.

The body was forwarded this afternoon to the former home of the girl, being accompanied by her grief-stricken mother.

No new developments connected with the death of Miss Wench occurred today, the authorities being satisfied that the criminal operation was performed in Hartford, particularly so because the girl had not absented herself from home.

Representative George W. Sisson had a birthday anniversary yesterday and his son, George W. Jr., celebrated with him, having been born on the 18th. The family had a celebration of both events jointly at the home of the latter, Tuesday evening.

Miss Lina Beckwith for a long time has claimed that the city of New London took from her land that it did not pay for, when it sought the extension of Coleman street. She has been before the council a number of times but to date has received no compensation for the land. Still she persists in her endeavor to get it and today she was before a committee of the council in the same effort. What the committee will report to the council is not known, but she was accorded a respectful hearing.

There will be a committee hearing at Hartford tomorrow on a bill providing that the city of New London may use the proceeds of bonds for the erection of a junior high school, which project was abandoned when the citizens, in a referendum vote, decided that they did not want the building erected, for other school purposes. The hearing should call together the interested taxpayers of the city, but that result is not anticipated. The right to issue the bonds has been granted by the legislature, so the same body will probably give assent to the transfer of the use of it. Some of the bonds have been issued, it is understood.

Fritz Kreisler, violinist, had a large and brilliant audience to listen to him at the Lyceum theatre this evening. His skill delighted all who heard him. Kreisler was in the Austrian army and was wounded in the leg during the war. After he was mustered out of the service he made money by his skill as a violinist but he gave it all away to aid others. He is said to have abandoned contracts that would have made him rich, that he might play for different charities during the war, when discharged for disabilities that disqualified him as a soldier.

Mrs. James Ahearn entertained a dozen guests at her home Tuesday evening at a chicken dinner, and later at cards.

Tom Connolly, a shoestring padlar, and an old time visitor to this city, came into town last night, but this time by railroad instead of over the turnpike as of yore. He was happy in drink, as usual, and quite as abusive as of old. On the train from Providence he was soliciting money from passengers under the guise of selling shoestrings; the police said. When he did not make a sale he abused a passenger, so the conductor of the train called Sergeant Caleb Green, of the railroad's police force, when the train reached this city. Mr. Connolly didn't abuse any others—not last night—for he slept in a cell in the police station. This morning he was in court charged with tumultuous and offensive conduct. He admitted that he was guilty. After listening to his fairy tale about shoe strings and a plea to be allowed to get out of town on the pretense that he was here because he got in late at night and didn't want to disturb people, he was fined $10. That took him to jail, where he will stay more than twenty days.

Frank Philbrick, an employe of the Babcock Printing Press company and a roomer at 78 Golden street was not in good humor, last night so the proprietress of his rooming house called Policeman Hill and he walked Mr. Philbrick over to North Bank street where he was given a room all alone in court today he was fined $10, but he was not made to pay that sum and the attending costs; as he agreed to change his ways and to keep away from the court during the coming six months. He was before the court last October. Today he was sober and was ready to say he would save himself hereafter.

A dog, the owner of which has not been discovered, was observed walking with difficulty along Broad street, near Connecticut avenue, this forenoon. Later, following an effort by the police to locate the dog, the animal was found dead on Ashcraft road. The dog appeared to be suffering from partial paralysis of the rear legs.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operator's license of W. S. Young, 75 Colt street, to be suspended.

All the plunder obtained by the police and officers and sailors from the submarine base, who raided the residences of Gleason Jackman, 11 Woodbridge street, this city, and H. E. Guy, 61 Allen street, Groton, last night, in search of stolen property of the government taken from the submarine base where Jackman and Guy were stationed, was taken from the New London and Groton police stations this afternoon and conveyed by automobile truck to the submarine base, where Jackman and Guy are under arrest and awaiting court martial. Jackman has been in the federal service a number of years, but has been stationed at the submarine base but six months. The naval authorities are of the opinion that Jackman and Guy jointly planned the wholesale thieving, but the officers at the base also believe that the two sailors were given assistance in getting the stolen goods from the base by a marine for it is practically impossible for the stolen goods to have been taken from the reservation without detection by the marine on guard.

The funeral of Hugh P. Lloyd, held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, was attended by a large gathering of mourners. Requiem high mass was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger. The bearers were Hugh P. Lloyd Jr., George Ryan, William Cavanaugh, William Lloyd, John Ryan and Charles Cavanaugh. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

William Riordan, 298 Montauk avenue, and Miss Maude Ryan, daughter of Mrs. Bridget Ryan, 40 Linden street, were married this morning at 9 o'clock, the ceremony being performed at St. Joseph's church by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons, who also sang the nuptial high mass. Paul Riordan, brother of the groom, was best man and Miss Agnes Fleming was bridesmaid. Following the church ceremony breakfast was served at the Hotel Mohican and later there was a reception at the residence of the bride's mother. Mr. and Mrs. Riordan left this afternoon on a week's wedding trip.

Mr. Riordan is a supernumerary police officer, and at present is performing regular patrol duty. His bride was until a few days ago employed as assistant chief operator by the local branch of the Southern New England Telephone company.

Adolph Kurowski of Main street, Mrs. Herbert Anderson and infant son, Montauk avenue; Miss Katherine Fielding, Blackhall street; Mrs. Julia Deltura, Winthrop street, and Mrs. Angelo Sicora and infant son, Truman street, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed today.

Joseph Enos, located in New Haven, where he is employed at the Federal hospital, is spending a few days with his mother, Mrs. Mary Enos, 75 Jefferson avenue, who is confined to her home by illness.

Frank Carbois, 115 Golden street, Norwich, came to New London last night and attended a dance in the auditorium of Bulkeley High school. While he enjoyed the dancing Carbois left his automobile parked on Huntington street and when he returned to the car he found that a thief had visited it and a motometer was stolen. Carbois reported the theft to the police.

Patrolman George Perkins is confined to his home on Norwood avenue by a severe attack of grip.

Miss Lucy Manwaring is critically ill at her home on Raymond street and her recovery is considered doubtful, for the patient has lapsed into a state of coma.

REDUCE YOUR FAT WITHOUT DIETING

Years ago the formula for fat reduction was "diet"—"exercise." Today it is "Take Marmola Prescription Tablets." Friends tell friends—these friends tell others. They eat substantial food, live as they like, and still reduce steadily and easily without going through long sieges of tiresome exercise, starvation diet and absurd greases and salves. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists the world over at one dollar for a box or if you prefer you can order direct from the Marmola Co., General Motors Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

For Ten Years the World's Greatest Buy

Hudson's position as the world's greatest value is not merely a new attainment. For ten years the Super-Six has stood alone in mechanical supremacy. Basic patents have kept others from copying its motor. The smoothness and long life it gives are exclusive. No motor has yet equaled the Super-Six in smoothness and long, economical car life.

A Leadership Never Disputed

Hudson, because of the simplicity of the Super-Six, has always enjoyed manufacturing advantages that permitted a lower selling price than is possible with more complicated types. That, in part, accounts for its leadership for ten years as the World's Greatest Value.

You hear everyone speak of Hudson value. To many that means lower first cost than is to be found elsewhere. Hudson was first by months to give closed car comforts at exactly open car cost. To hundreds of thousands of owners, Hudson value means the most economical service in operation and maintenance. No car ever built has equaled Hudson's record in that respect. For ten years the Super-Six has proved its lasting endurance. And while those cars of a decade ago still creditably account for themselves, today's Hudson, improved in many ways, is smoother, more lasting and more economical.

MRS. MICHAEL M'GRAIL BECOMES INSANE FROM WORRY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Feb. 18.—Mrs. Michael McGrail of Bellevue place developed insanity this evening. Her attack was of a violent sort—so violent that the police were called by neighbors who feared what the woman might do. The speedcar of the department, with Officers Ray and Foley, was sent to take care of the woman. They found her in a field in the rear of her home, she being without outside garments, and in an excited condition. The spotlight on the car was brought into use by focussing it on the field, where the whole section could be seen, and playing about, the officers soon saw the woman pass through the rays of light. They then captured her. Dr. Cheney had been called and he is giving the woman attention, with the idea of sending her to the Norwich state hospital Thursday for observation.

Mrs. McGrail this week sold her residence on the street to Robert Keefe, he getting it through another party who bought it for him. He is a tenant in the McGrail house and in some way has incurred the displeasure of Mrs. McGrail. She talked much about him during the time the police were in her presence. Mr. McGrail was a railroad man until a couple of years ago, when he suffered an accident that cost him his leg. The railroad company effected a settlement with him by the payment of a sum of money. The McGrails own a second house on the street, recently erected, and valued at some $8,000. The house sold this week brought $9,000.

Dr. Cheney has charge of the woman for tonight and tomorrow will treat her at the Norwich hospital, unless there is a positive change in her condition. Her affliction is attributed her nervous condition. She is said to be a native of Norwich but to have lived in New London many years.

SOCIAL WORKERS' COUNCIL HEARS PROBLEMS DISCUSSED

The regular February meeting of the Social Workers' Council of New London and Windham Counties was held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell, 37 Otis St., Norwich, Conn., the hostess being an honorary member of the organization.

Following a short business session, Miss Dorothy Brinker, newly appointed psychiatric social worker of the Norwich neuropsychiatric clinic, gave an interesting account of the work done by the Monmouth county mental hygiene clinic of Red Bank, N. J., with which she was formerly associated. Miss Brinker particularly emphasized the work which was being done for the normal child who presented some psychopathic or behavior problem. She also discussed the advisability of referring the child to the clinic at as early an age as possible.

Miss Grace Sistare, principal of the Jennings school, New London, told of the work being done at that school with exceptional children who present both physical and mental problems.

Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell, Mrs. Rosemary Anderson and Mrs. James Kelley gave accounts of several bills, pertaining to social work, which were recently discussed in the legislature.

The hostess then served delightful refreshments to the thirty-one guests present and the meeting proved to be one of the most enjoyable of the season.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

RALLY IN STOCK MARKET.

New York, Feb. 18. — Stock prices rallied sharply in today's market, net gains of one to five and one-half points being scattered throughout the list at the close. The buying embraced practically all groups of stocks, although total sales were well below those of the first two days of the week.

Speculators for the advance had distributed large buying orders throughout the market at the opening, the execution of which prompted aggressive short covering by bear traders who had sold stocks freely earlier in the week. Commission house brokers also reported that the swift rebound had revived public confidence and led to a resumption of pool operations in a number of specialties.

Business news was largely constructive in character. It included a sharp increase in car loadings, favorable weekly steel trade reviews, declaration of a stock dividend by the Gulf States Steel Company, an increase from $1 to $1.40 in the annual rate of the Shell Union Oil Company, a resumption of dividend payments on Armour ClassA and an initial dividend on the New Pennok Oil Company stocks.

The only unfavorable item was the publication of the American Woolen Company for 1924 showing a deficit of nearly $12,000,000 after the payment of dividends, contrasted with a surplus of about $740,000 in the preceding year. While the report was not published until after the market closed, Wall street apparently had anticipated it because the stock was under pressure all day, touching a new low for the year at 48 3-8 and then rallying to 50, for a net loss of 2 1-4 on the day.

Baldwin was the outstanding feature of the industrial group, closing more than five points higher at 136 after having sold as low as 126 1-4 yesterday. U. S. Steel closed 1 1-2 points higher at 124 3-4 and American Can showed a net gain of 1 1-3 at 171 1-2. American Smelting and Refining, General Petroleum, Mack Truck, Universal Pipe and U. S. Rubber were among the other standard issues to close two or more points above yesterday's final figures. Revival of activity and strength in Callahan Zinc and Lead followed discovery of a rich ore body.

Commercial Solvents A and B soared 12 to 18 3-4 points, respectively. Postum Cereal jumped 9 points to 127 on further reflection of the directors' decision to retire the preferred stock. Net gains of 4 to 6 points were recorded by California Packing, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, Air Reduction, Atlantic Refining, International Business Machine, International Telephone and Nash Motors.

Railroad shares gave a remarkable demonstration of group strength. Colorado and Southern was run up nearly 6 1-2 points to a new top at 59, and then eased to 57, while net gains of 2 points or more were recorded by Rock Island, Norfolk and Western, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Frisco common, St. Louis Southwestern, Union Pacific, Chicago Great Western preferred, Lackawanna, Gulf, Mobile and Northern preferred, Kansas City Southern and Western Pacific preferred.

Call money held steady at 3 1-2 per cent. The time money market continued firm with 3 3-4 per cent. the ruling rate for 60 to 90 days loans, and four per cent. for the longer maturities. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchange rates turned reactionary. Demand sterling dropped nearly a cent to $4.75 3-4 and French francs broke about six points to around 5.22 cents.

TAFTVILLE

Some of the Polish residents of the village are among the subscribers to the new loan of the Republic of Poland, being floated in New York, by large financial houses.

Superintendent Victor H. Davis presided at the February Workers' Conference held in the parlors of the Taftville Congregational church Monday evening. Reports of various committees were heard, and a donation was made to the Greek relief fund. Those present agreed to make an Easter offering to the church school, by going without some things during Lent, and contributing their value to the school. Boxes will be provided for this purpose, so that the scholars of the school and others who may be interested, might adopt this plan if they wish. After the business session, refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by a committee including Miss Elsie Heap, Miss Betty Archibald, Miss Agnes Troeger, Miss Freida Saroski, Miss Mildred Troeger and Miss Edna Krodel.

The Artisans gave a supper and social Saturday evening at Parish hall, which was attended by the members with their wives and friends.

Oscar E. Mathewson, Jr., who has been confined to his home on South A street by an attack of the grip, is able to be out.

Oscar Main of Norwich was a business caller in the village Tuesday.

Miss Helen Allard entertained at a valentine whist at her home on South B street Saturday evening, 15 hands being played. After cards, dancing was enjoyed and refreshments were served. The first prize for ladies went to Miss Loretta Gregory and the consolation to Miss Syzetta Mentaz. Fred Peterson was awarded the gentleman's prize, the consolation going to Leo Biskey. Those present were Miss Blanche Lucier, Miss Marie Ducharme, Miss Marguerite Benoit, Miss Suzette Mentaz, Miss Helen Allard, Joseph Peloquin, Raymond Whittaker, Leo Biskie, Noe Lucier, John O'Neil and Fred Peterson.

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING QUICKLY VOTES ALL BUSINESS IN THE CALL

All items in the call for the special town meeting were voted without opposition, Wednesday evening by some 250 voters, most of them from Taftville and the East Great Plain section of the town of Norwich, the meeting lasting but 23 minutes in all.

The only opposition noticed was when First Selectman William S. Murray suggested that Judge H. H. Pettis be chairman of the meeting. G. Warren Davis raised an objection to this, stating that Mr. Murray was fully qualified to handle the meeting being well versed in the matters to be acted upon. A vote taken disclosed this feeling to be practically unanimous and First Selectman Murray opened the meeting at 8 o'clock by requesting Clerk Charles L. Holbrook to read the warning.

The first business was to ratify the action of the board of selectmen in accepting a deed for a certain triangular tract of land situated at the intersection of the northwesterly line of the Canterbury turnpike, with the easterly line of the Old Canterbury turnpike, so called. A resolution for the ratification of this work by the selectmen was offered by Casper K. Bailey and after Selectman Murray had explained that the section was taken by deed because it was needed to keep the road in shape, the resolution was voted.

The second matter was to authorize the expenditure of a sum not to exceed $1,500 for the purpose of improving and extending the electric lighting system at the almshouse, and permit the selectmen to borrow necessary money and deliver notes of indebtedness of the town therefor. Selectman Murray explained that there were no lights in the various rooms at the almshouse, only in the hallways and dining room. He stated further that it was necessary to rip out the old system and install one that would meet the requirements of the board of underwriters.

A resolution for the appropriation of $1,500 for this work was offered by Charles E. Ellis, superintendent of the almshouse and was unanimously adopted and voted.

The proposed completion of the Gallows Hill road next came up and a resolution authorizing the selectmen to borrow a sum of money, not over $41,000 for this work, was offered by George H. Young. Selectman Murray in response to a question by G. Warren Davis, for information about the work, stated that this road was to be built under the state aid, three-quarters of the cost to be undertaken by the state, the remaining quarter by the town. Selectman Murray stated that the town had on hand the sum of $10,203.70 plus $2,500 appropriated a year ago last October, but that an engineer of the state figured the cost of the road at $53,400, to complete it from the end of the present macadam to Washington street, by the Sheltering Arms. The distance to be covered was 1.9 miles and the work would be done under the supervision of the state highway commission. This road would be built this summer and it was expected that three quarters of the cost would be paid by the state. By building now, said Selectman Murray, the interest charge would be the same as the present cost of upkeep of the old road. The upkeep, he stated, is $1,500 a year and with that expenditure there is not a good road. The resolution was then unanimously adopted.

Without a dissenting vote the resolution offered by Fred Gallup, that the sum of $250 be voted to install a fire hydrant on Salem turnpike, at a point near Maplewood cemetery, was voted. In explaining the cost of this work, Selectman Murray said that the water department would have to tap the 24 inch main, this requiring special fittings, hence the more costly work.

Mr. Gallup also offered a resolution for the installation of electric lights on the Salem turnpike from Backus corner to the end of the present pole line just beyond Maplewood cemetery. This was voted without any opposition.

Before the adoption of the resolution offered by A. F. Libby, authorizing the installation of necessary electric light on Old Canterbury turnpike Selectman Murray said this work could not be done until the new road was completed at this point, but that work would be done as quickly as possible.

Mrs. William Tague offered a resolution authorizing the installation of electric lights on McClellan avenue. Selectman Murray stated that this petition was included in the call for the annual meeting but that it was held over because no one appeared to offer a resolution. This would require the placing of three or four lights, he said. The resolution was then unanimously adopted and there being no further business, adjournment was taken at 8.25 o'clock.

WANT INCREASED PENSION FOR RETIRED TEACHERS

Hartford, Feb. 15.—School teachers of the state were well represented at the state capitol Tuesday afternoon when the education committee held hearing on the bill to increase pension allowance of retired teachers from $300 a year to $500. The former figure was tied in the establishment of the pension system and it was pointed out by those who favored the increase that the purchasing value of $300 has shrunk in the past eight years and that no retired teacher can support herself or himself on $300 a year.

Another bill heard was that which could place all the teaching staff at the Connecticut Agricultural college on the eligible list for pensions after forty years of service, or upon reaching the age limit. At present those who teach in the class rooms at the college are eligible but those who teach outside or as Commissioner Meredith put it on "home acres" are rated as employes and come under the state employes pension system. The object of the bill was to remove the discrimination between indoor teachers and outdoor teachers at the college.

Another bill, drawn by Mr. Meredith as a substitute for one already in, would assist school nurses in towns in carrying on their work.

Men's Bible Class at Y. M. C. A.

The topic of the Men's Bible class Wednesday evening at the local Y. M. C. A., was First Things First, and the Scripture used was Matthew 19: 16-20, the story of the rich young man who wanted to know what he must do to inherit eternal life. Among the points brought out were the following: This young man was doubtless an honest inquirer, but he had a misconception of life. He was dissatisfied with his life, and therefore wanted something he had not yet had. A man can never be really satisfied until he links his life with God. There is no permanent satisfaction in any other way. Jesus loved this young man because he was doubtless a clean cut fellow, and he saw the splendid possibilities in him. Jesus discovered the flaw in the young man by the test suggestion that he sell all he had and give to the poor. The Master probably did not want him to literally sell all he had and become a pauper, but he wanted him to be willing to do so if it were necessary. Jesus showed the young man that his life was wrongly directed. He was not putting first things first.

The young man evidently wanted to follow Christ, but the cost was a little too high, and he would not pay the price. Success in any line does not come easy; it requires effort and sacrifice. Jesus doubtless felt sad that the young man failed to meet the test for he saw that he was missing his greatest opportunity. The young man had never learned to be unselfish. He had not seen life in its right proportions.

The discussion was greatly enjoyed by all present.

RECALLS EARLY HISTORY OF LEFFINGWELL SETTLEMENT

When he was a boy of ten or twelve, Daniel Leffingwell heard many times from the lips of his father and grandfather the tale of the settlement of Leffingwelltown by Lieut. Thomas Leffingwell and the story of the lieutenant's friendship with Uncas, the great chief of the Mohegan Indians. Now at nearly 89, the story is as fresh in the mind of "Uncle Dan" as if he had heard it only yesterday. This is the way he told it when he visited The Bulletin office in a reminiscent mood this week and talked of the settlement of the Leffingwell family in the section that still bears their name and still has some residents descended from the original stock.

In 1635, said Uncle Dan, Lieut. Thomas Leffingwell came from Croxhall, England, to this country. He sailed along through Long Island sound until he came to the outlet of the Connecticut river and anchored off what is now Saybrook. With his four boys and three girls he decided to go ashore and look around a bit. It looked like a pleasant country so he decided to stay there awhile anr he soon made friends with the Indians, who at first were afraid of him. "You stay here" they told him, "and we will build a house for you and your family." This was done and the lieutenant settled down there, but he soon thought he would like to know something more of the country that lay around him. Accordingly he crossed the river in a dugout and traveled as far as he could that day towards the east. At night he took to a tree to sleep out of reach of the wild animals, tying a rope around a branch and his own body so that he would not fall out of the tree in his sleep. The next day he traveled on again and made his way as far as Leffingwelltown where he came to a nice spring of water and found the wigwam of Uncas, the Mohegan Indian chief.

Uncas received him kindly and offered to help the lieutenant see the country round about. Together they traveled to the west side of the Thames river, crossed the river and went east as far as what is now Preston City, then north to the present site of Jewett City, and circled back to Uncas' wigwam near the spring at Leffingwelltown. Having seen all he wanted, Lieut. Leffingwell thought about getting back to Saybrook, but Uncas induced him to stay two or three days longer and then sent two Indians to guide and guard him on the way to Saybrook.

It wasn't long before Lieut. Leffingwell had a chance to return the kindness that Uncas had shown for the Narragansett Indians under Chief Miantonomo made a surprise attack on the Mohegans and cooped them up in a place on the Thames river and sat down to starve them out as the Narragansett band greatly outnumbered the Mohegans. Then Uncas made a plan to get help from Lieut. Leffingwell at Saybrook. He got two of his Indians to sneak out of the camp through the lines of the Mohegans to the river, where they got into a canoe, paddled down the Thames and along the sound with all the speed they could to Saybrook.

Leffingwell heard their plea for help and at once loaded up a boat with provisions and all his guns, paddling back to the beleagued Mohegans with the two Indians for guides. They managed to get through the lines again and into the Mohegan camp, where the provisions they brought saved the lives of the Mohegans and Lieut. Leffingwell planned an attack on the Narragansetts. "Shoot to kill," were his orders. The Narragansetts took to their heels in terror when they heard the report of the guns, fleeing through Mohegan and across the Fair grounds and the Falls. Uncas gave orders to kill every Narragansett and the path of the flight was strewed with dead Narragansetts. But Uncas' orders were not to touch Miantonomo and the Narragansett chief was taken captive alive. "Kill me now," he said to Uncas, but Uncas walked him to Hartford where he brought him before a judge, but the judge delivered him back into Uncas' hands and told the Mohegan chief to do with him as he liked.

Uncas then returned with the captive Narragansett chief to Mohegan territory, delivered Miantonomo to his son Anawanco. "Kill him," commanded the Mohegan chief and Anawanco knocked the Narragansett down. Uncas ripped him open, cut out his heart and ate it, declaring "that is the sweetest meal I ever tasted."

"You saved my life and the life of my tribe," said Uncas to Lieut. Leffingwell. "And I'm going to give you 9,000 acres of land," but Leffingwell went back to Saybrook with Indians to guard him without taking the land.

Later he again visited Uncas, who told him, "We will go east, west, north and south and wherever you see land that you like I will give it to you." They went west and came to the site of Leffingwelltown, where there was a good trout brook, and Uncas gave him a deed of 5,000 acres. "Come back and live here," said the Mohegan chief to Lieutenant Leffingwell, "and we will help you build a house." The Mohegans kept their promise and helped him build a sawmill, dam and a house, sawing out the boards for the house at the mill. The first house was built in 1645-1646 on the site where Bert Beard now lives across the road from the Leffingwell Baptist church of which "Uncle Dan" is now the oldest member.

The four sons of the lieutenant soon built houses for themselves, erecting five between 1640-1650, three of which are standing yet. "Uncle Dan" was born in one of these original houses, which were close enough together so that the Leffingwell boys could sound their tin horns in case they wanted to summon help from each other.

Lieut. Leffingwell died at the good age of 92 and his grandson, Andrew, was the first deacon of the Leffingwell Baptist church. Andrew's son, Gurdon, died at the age of 88, and his son, Marvin, who was the father of "Uncle Dan," lived to the age of 76. "Uncle Daniel," who now lives in this city, is enjoying vigorous health for his years and promises to maintain the healthy record that goes with the Leffingwell family.

There was a large attendance at the meeting of the W. B. A. of the Maccabees, held Wednesday evening at Buckingham Memorial, the occasion being the visitation of high state officers of the order and the installation of officers.

Besides the state officials representatives from the Knights of the Maccabees were present, including Brothers Andrews and Victory of New London and Brother Dohn of Hartford.

Following the installation Deputy Supreme Commander Littleton commended the local members on their work and spoke concerning the order, which, she said, represented the largest fraternal body of women in the country, the order being a "millionaire" order, conducting its work in every state in the country.

Eckstein, Mrs. Ella Filburne was presented a water set by the order, for her work during the past season, the presentation being made by Mrs. Louise Manchester.

Following the meeting ice cream, cake and assorted cookies were served by the members of the refreshment committee and there was a pleasing musical entertainment by Miss Marion Pedace, piano, and Miss Gladys Hiscox, violin, dancing being enjoyed until late into the evening.

JUST DOGS.

For two days Gunnar Kasson and his dogs waited without sleep on the trail at Bluff to transfer the serum from Musher Olsen's dog team. Then Kasson loaded and was gone.—Nome dispatch reporting progress of dog teams with diphtheria serum for stricken Nome.

Just dogs they were—dogs born to be
Man's friend in dire extremity;
They sensed a need and would not fail,
Though winter swept the long, hard trail

Just dogs—dogs some men scorn and hate—
Yet in their legs dwelt mortal fate;
Poor humans, fever-racked and numb,
Lay waiting for the dogs to come.

Across the boundless desert-snow,
Breasts bared to all the winds that blow,
They sped unhalting—eyes ahead—
To make the living of the dead.

No time-clock marked their hours to fame
No whistle blew when toil was done;
They were just dogs, yet each well knew
Some task extreme was his to do.

Each marked the master's soul as keyed
Beyond the normal test of speed;
His was a race—and they were glad
To pledge him all the dog they had.

His was a goal, they knew not where,
But fighting legs would take him there.
Each leap they made was nearer home
Each pull a plunge toward stricken Nome.

Some gave their all and died, they say
Their bones, as monuments, must stay
To mark the lonely, frozen trail—
Their only dirge the coyote's wail.

Just dogs they were—dogs born to be
Man's friend in dire extremity;
They sensed a need and heard the call
Yet they were dogs—just dogs—that's all!

ON THE GRASSHOPPER AND CRICKET.

The poetry of earth is never dead:
When all the birds are faint with the hot sun,
And hide in cooling trees, a voice will run
From hedge to hedge about the new-mown mead;
That is the Grasshopper's—he takes the lead
In summer luxury—he has never done
With his delights, for when tired out with fun,
He rests at ease beneath some pleasant weed.
The poetry of earth is ceasing never:
On a lone winter evening, when the frost
Has wrought a silence, from the stove there shrills
The Cricket's song, in warmth increasing ever,
And seems to one in drowsiness half-lost
The Grasshopper's among the grassy hills.

COOLIDGE CITES EVILS OF FEDERAL INHERITANCE TAX

The President Declares That the Tax, When Added to Similar State Levies, Amounts to Virtual Confiscation—Urges Gradual Retirement by the Government From That Field of Taxation—Sees Competition Between States to Tax Not Only the Property of Their Own Citizens, but Also That of Citizens of Other States—Recommends Greater Economy in the Collection of Revenues.

Washington, Feb. 19.—Declaring that in some instances the federal inheritance tax, when added to similar state levies, amounts to virtual confiscation, President Coolidge in an address today, opening the national inheritance and estate tax conference, urged the gradual retirement by the government from this field of taxation.

Representative Green of Iowa, the chairman of the house ways and means committee, addressing a night session of the conference, which was called by the National Tax association, took an opposite view, asserting that without a federal inheritance tax, "similar taxes imposed by the states would inevitably fail."

"If we are to adopt socialism," Mr. Coolidge said in his address, "it should be presented to the people of this country as socialism, and not under the guise of a law to collect revenue."

He added that there was competition between the states to reach, through the inheritance tax, not only the property of its own citizens but that of citizens of other states.

Greater economy in the collection of revenues also was recommended by the president.

Mr. Green asserted that the tax as it stands now, allows a credit of 25 per cent of the federal tax to cover state inheritance taxes and eliminates the "islands of refuge" for tax dodgers in states where such levies are not imposed.

Although the maximum inheritance tax rate had been increased 10 per cent last year, this was offset, he said, by the 25 per cent state tax allowance.

The Iowa representative saw no reason why, at the next session of congress, income taxes should not be largely reduced, or the maximum rates, at least, brought down "to a point which would not have been thought possible a few years ago." In lowering the rates, however, he insisted, "we should preserve our inheritance tax system."

Representative Mills of New York, a republican member of the ways and means committee, differed with the chairman's views and took a position similar to that of the president, urging the conference to adopt a resolution requesting congress to repeal the federal estate tax.

He also suggested the appointment of a committee to advise and cooperate with the state authorities in the establishment of uniform laws that will "permit a sound and productive development of this form of taxation, by the elimination of the many evils that admittedly exist today."

MRS. BUDLONG ENDS HER HUNGER STRIKE

New York, Feb. 19.—Mrs. Margaret Budlong ended her hunger strike today, but she didn't emerge from the bedroom prison into which she locked herself a week ago in defiance of her husband, Milton J. Budlong, oil promoter.

She broke her fast with sips of milk prescribed by a physician but she refused to follow the doctor's suggestion that she end her self-imposed confinement and go to a hospital.

Attorneys for Mrs. Budlong and her husband meanwhile held secret conferences. It was predicted there would follow an early compromise ending the situation created last Friday when the woman, saying she acted to prevent her husband from suing her for divorce on ground of desertion, locked herself in their 11th floor apartment and refused to eat.

The physician was summoned in response to a plea Mrs. Budlong uttered through the door of her bedroom. It was several hours before the man she specified could reach her.

He prescribed milk. She specified the brand. One of Budlong's many private detectives brought some "just as good," but it was refused, and the hunger-striker declined and didn't break her fast until she got the milk she had ordered. Then she drank two quarts of it.

After that the door to the bedroom remained unlocked. Contrary to her promise of yesterday, however, Mrs. Budlong didn't leave the room, and tonight she was still a voluntary prisoner.

Several more silk and dress shirts fluttered down from Mrs. Budlong's sanctuary to the crowds that thronged the streets below. They went the way of a dozen or so that have been used as ballast for messages the woman put on the air during her week of seclusion. They were torn to shreds in the fight of private detectives, news reporters and mere spectators, and possession of the attached notes.

"The most contemptible tactics are being employed by Mr. Budlong today," said the last of these notes.

"I opened my door this morning. I was weak. When I asked for oranges, oatmeal and milk they refused, saying my husband had ordered all food kept in the kitchen.

"The power of $1,720,000 which is the minimum of his wealth is working to protect Thank God for the yellow press. There is no justice for the poor against the rich."

Miss Lauretta Jefferson Corlett Young, great-granddaughter of Jefferson, will unveil the window.

NO MALADMINISTRATION IN OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS

Washington, Feb. 19.—The majority report of the special house committee which investigated administration of the office of Indian affairs, today exonerated Commissioner Burke of the charges of maladministration preferred by Hugh Murphy, former judge of Okmulgee county, Oklahoma, and Hill, Washington, democrats, filed minority reports, concerning disposition of $1,100,000 of the estate of Jackson Barnett, wealthy, aged, restricted Creek Indian, in two equal gifts, one to his wife, and the other as an endowment for an Indian school and orphanage.

Representative Howard, democrat, Oklahoma, who brought the Murphy charges to the attention of the house by inserting them in the Congressional Record, declared the outcome of the investigation was "the most detrimental thing that has happened to the Indians in 25 years," and would doubtless "inspire the other parties and scheming attorneys to seek the money of the rich Indian, with the hope of having the cooperation of the bureau of Indian affairs in the dissipation of Indian estates, as was done in the Jackson Barnett case."

WATERBURY MAN KILLED BY FALL DOWN STAIRS

Waterbury, Feb. 19—James Mulvey, janitor of the Ridgewood apartment house, 209 Willow street, was killed in a fall down the cellar stairs in the apartment building, early tonight. Mulvey, was descending the steep stairs, when he pitched headlong to the floor, sustaining a fractured skull. The body was discovered by Albert Fagar, of Naugatuck who was Mulvey's successor as janitor, and who was being shown about the building by Mulvey at the time of the accident. Deputy Coroner Theobald E. Conway examined Fagar and later released him.

HUGE BURDEN CARRIED BY TRUST COMPANIES

New York, Feb. 19.—To illustrate the huge financial burden being carried by trust companies of the United States, Lucius Tester, president told the trust company division of the American Bankers' association tonight that 60 to 70 billion dollars of life insurance would fall due in the next 30 years.

"There are 2,500 trust companies in this country," he said. "The resources under their control aggregate $16,000,000,000 and there are 1,600 national banks, with enormous assets, that are qualified to do a trust business.

"How we acquit ourselves is therefore important. What the public thinks of us is equally important."

DISTILLING PLANT FOUND IN BARN IN FAIR HAVEN

They gave their names as William Finito and Oliver Munn. They were taken as they were driving an automobile carrying liquor from the place. The police found in the barn a 50-gallon still, 40 gallons of alcohol, 15 barrels of mash and bottles and alleged pure whiskey.

GENERAL MITCHELL NEVER SUMMONED TO WHITE HOUSE

Washington, Feb. 19.—Yesterday's widely advertised story that a presidential reprimand was imminent for Brigadier General Mitchell, the stormy petrel of the air service, exploded today.

General Mitchell himself, placed on the stand before the house aircraft committee, testified he never had received the summons to the White House, reports of which were disseminated from the committee room.

Later Representative Perkins, the committee examiner, put on the grill by those newspaper correspondents who had assumed responsibility for the story without attempting to verify it in other quarters, issued a statement saying that when he circulated the report yesterday he had believed himself reliably informed.

Representative Perkins did not say from what source his information came, but he did repeat with particular emphasis an assertion made earlier in the day at the committee session that General Mitchell had not himself started the rumor. The fact that the general was not summoned to the White House today, he added, gave him no reason to change "my opinion as to the credibility of the report."

White House officials did not alter their refusal yesterday after a conference with the president either to deny or confirm the report, but made the informal statement that it did not originate from the executive offices. Although the president's attention was called to the matter again today, no additional comment was forthcoming.

Secretary Weeks likewise had nothing to add to his flat denial of yesterday. The war secretary also made no comment today on a resolution adopted by the committee asking him to reappear for questioning on aircraft matters. The committee had not decided tonight when he would be asked to appear.

DISCUSSION CLOSED ON FRENCH BUDGET BILL

Paris, Feb. 19—(By the A. P.)—Finance Minister Clemental closed the general discussion of the finance bill of the budget by a speech in the chamber of deputies today breathing confidence in France's ability to overcome the difficulties of her financial situation.

"It is clearly understood," he said, "that the very cornerstone of the restoration of the treasury to a healthy condition is a foreign loan. Conversations have begun on this subject, and I have a semi-official promise that as soon as the budget is voted, an issue of $100,000,000 will be possible in America.

"This loan and one which will be raised for the devastated regions, will supply our coffers with fresh money, and we shall be able to bring pressure on exchange.

"France's treasury," continued the minister, "is in the same position as a great manufacturing house with all its factories going, but hampered by insufficient working capital. If I could put in our coffers one million fresh money the problem would be solved."

The Morgan loan, the minister said, had served for stabilizing exchange. The dollar had been stable for the last six months, and the pound had risen only as regards the dollar, not as regards the franc. The pound, added the minister had risen because of England's determination to recover her gold parity.

DEVELOPMENTS IN KINGSTON TRUST CO. EMBEZZLEMENT

Providence, R. I., Feb. 19—Developments in the situation arising from the alleged embezzlement of $110,000 from the Kingston Trust company by his secretary-treasurer, Miss Maude E. Tefft, took several directions today.

Bail of Richard L. Broome, Slocum mill man held as a material witness, was increased by Judge James C. Watts in second district court at Wakefield from $5,000 to $25,000 late this afternoon. Broome was recommitted to Washington County jail in default of surety.

The action of the court resulted from discoveries made during the day in New York city by Attorney General Sisson, who wired to his department here instructing that bail of $50,000 be asked. Although held only as a material witness, Broome had been originally booked when arrested here last night as a fugitive from justice, wanted for obtaining money under false pretenses.

FIVE LIQUOR SCHOONERS SAILED FROM HALIFAX

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 19.—Give liquor trading schooners, held up by fog, sailed for southern points last night.

The schooner Abundance, formerly the Richard B. Silver, sailed for Guanaja, Honduras; the McLean Clan, for Guanaja; the schooner Fuastina for Havana; the two-masted schooner, Palamo, for St. Pierre to complete loading for a southern port; the three masted schooner Maria A. Howes, for Nassau.

CONFEREES AT ODDS ON THE POSTAL BILL

Washington, Feb. 19.—Conferees of the senate and house on the postal pay and rate increase bill failed to reach any agreements at their first meeting today looking toward a compromise on their respective measures. It was indicated that several additional meetings would be necessary to bring about an agreement.

Package Goods Trade In Dispute Related at Hearing of Legislative Committee on Public Health.

Hartford, Feb. 19.—A short day but a busy one was the experience of members of the general assembly today and what the session in each branch lacked in length was made in some committees which had bills before them of a controversial nature.

Disappointment came to several score of motor truck owners who were in the judiciary committee hearing as it developed that two bills in which they were interested, relative to legislation on motor trucks, had to be shifted to the roads, bridges and rivers committee and will be heard later.

The liveliest hearing was that before the committee on public health and safety where six bills relating to practice of pharmacy and to restrict the sale of "package goods," (patent or proprietary medicines) to such stores as have license or pharmicists were heard. The legislature had been circularized with a brief in support of wholesale jobbers in medicine in protest against these bills. The claim was that of an organized attempt to effect legislation which would injure a large number of citizens. Then followed an analysis of each bill from the viewpoint of the jobbers.

The committee room was jammed and arguments were marked by exchanges of opinions between Major John Buckley for the bills, and representatives from Washington and New York of wholesale druggists and the patent and proprietary drug stores.

H. P. Bissell, conector of the port and himself a druggist at Ridgefield, claimed that there had been a fifty per cent. increase in drug stores since the passage of the Volstead act. He claimed the bills were aimed to "clean up" conditions. He believed that the committee could safely leave the situation with Major Buckley and Judge Alexander Creedon, who were for the bills, and that it was unnecessary for "high-priced lawyers to come from Washington and New York to tell the Connecticut legislature what to do about laws to meet conditions in the state." He said that those who had spoken against the bills were impelled by "mercenary motives" and they represented interests who were in the "package goods trade." He asked the committee to work out a law which would regulate the sale of package goods."

The secretary of the state board of pharmacy said that "he was sorry to admit it but pharmacy conditions in Connecticut have been deplorable in Connecticut for the past two or three years."

Several spoke in defense of wholesalers who were selling goods in the state and who had been criticised by those favoring the bills.

Criticism and support of the bills was given from several angles, the hearing lasting until late in the day.

NO MORE FRENCH LOANS FOR AT LEAST THREE MONTHS

New York, Feb. 19.—International bankers do not expect that the flotation of another loan for the French government will be undertaken in the United States for at least three months and probably not until mid-summer.

Although they remained silent on the statement of Finance Minister Clementel before the chamber of deputies today that two loans had been promised—one of $100,000,000 for French finances and another of $35,000,000 for the devastated regions—bankers, admitted that the question of additional French financing was certain to come up later in the year. It is assumed that the Morgan group which has handled all financing operations for the French government in the United States, will float any future loan.

The recent controversy over the French debt situation and the airing of France's financial problems at home have weakened the technical market position of French bonds, most of which have declined during the past two months in the face of an upward trend for other foreign obligations.

COULD HEAR A LITTLE AFTER AERIAL TAILSPIN

Mitchel Field, N. Y., Feb. 19.—State Trooper Herbert R. Olstead of West Orange, N. J., who is taking the tailspin treatment for deafness caused by injuries received three years ago, reported today after a 15,000 foot plunge with Capt. L. N. Heesling that he could hear a little and that the ringing in his head had ceased.

It was the trooper's second flight. Upon his plea that he was sure the airplane rides were doing him good, Major General William N. Hensley, Jr., authorized him to take a course of treatment to consist of periodical flights.

PANIC IN COURT ROOM WHEN FILM CAUGHT FIRE

Los Angeles, Feb. 19.—Panic swept the court and spectators and attorneys and attaches stamped for the doors here late today when a film exhibit in Charles Chaplin's suit against Charles Amador caught fire. The film operator beat out the flames with his hands before the fire spread.

The court showing of the reel, was intended as evidence to prove that other actors beside Amador had been wearing in their screen costumes baggy trousers, antiquated derby hats and elongated shoes, whose use of Amador Chaplin seeks to stop.

FAVOR WEEK DAY RELIGIOUS EDUCATION OF CHILDREN

New Britain, Feb. 19.—A committee representing 30 religious organizations of three different faiths, meeting here tonight with a committee of the board of education, voted approval of the proposed plan for week day religious education for children. Under the plan, the children will be excused from school a certain period each week and will assemble in their own churches for religious study. The time thus spent will be credited to their school work. The religious education will be optional and those who do not wish to take such study may remain in the school rooms.

To Withdraw Play "A Good Bad Woman"

W. A. Brady Acts on Complaints That It is Obscene and Demoralizing.

New York, Feb. 19.—Possible criminal action by District Attorney Hanton against William A. Brady, producer of "A Good Bad Woman," because of the play's alleged obscene character was averted today when Mr. Brady voluntarily agreed to withdraw the production after Saturday night.

Mr. Brady's offer to take his production off the stage was followed by an announcement by Mr. Banton that he would take up with Police Commissioner Enright tomorrow plans for starting the play-jury system as soon as possible.

Mr. Banton said he would ask Commissioner Enright to go over with him a list of 300 persons from whom would be selected juries of 12 to decide the fate of a dozen more plays under fire.

Commenting on Mr. Brady's action, Mr. Banton said, "I think Mr. Brady's decision is most commendable and helps effect the very result we are all anxious to achieve. Under the circumstances further action by this office relative to the show is neither necessary nor desirable."

OPPOSITION INCREASED THE POPULARITY OF KING ALFONSO

Rome, Feb. 19.—The campaign of Vincente Blasco Ibanez against King Alfonso of Spain, instead of serving the purpose the author intended, has resulted in making the king the most popular Spanish figure, General Primo De Rivera, head of the Spanish military directorate told the correspondent of the "Giornal Italia," in an exclusive interview published today.

"As to that Blasco Ibanez," General Rivera declared, "if he hadn't existed, we must have invented him, because he gave us the means of appreciating vividly the popular feeling toward our monarch and toward our government.

The head of the military directorate said that the directorate had nothing to fear in accomplishing the programme which it had set out to accomplish. He recalled the four fundamental problems which gave rise to the formation of his directorship: First, communism; second, separatism; third, the economic situation of the country; and fourth, Morocco.

General Rivera refused to exhibit any disquietude over the final solution of the Riffian question, although granting that the campaign thus far had necessitated "the use of all our energies and unlimited courage."

He said he had no idea as to the whereabouts of Abd-El-Krim, the leader of the Moroccan rebels.

HOUSE TO ACT ON BILL INCREASING SALARIES

Washington, Feb. 19.—A move will be made in the house, probably tomorrow, to accept a senate amendment to the legislative appropriation bill increasing the salaries of senators and representatives from $7,500 to $10,000.

After conferences today with republican and democratic members, Representative Dickinson, republican, Iowa, in charge of the bill, announced that, in compliance with what appeared to be the will of a majority of the house, he would propose that instead of sending the bill to conference as is customary, the house would accept senate amendments.

There was an admitted reluctance on the part of some members to be placed on record in favor of a salary increase and it was indicated that an effort would be made to forestall a roll call vote.

WOULD DIVORCE BIG FIVE MEAT PACKING COMPANIES

Washington, Feb. 19.—Divorcement of the big five meat packing companies from their control of meat refrigeration cars is recommended by the federal trade commission in a report sent to the senate today in response to a resolution calling for information regarding the consent degree entered into by the packers with the department of justice in 1920.

The commission also recommends that steps be taken either by the courts or congress to separate the big packers finally from their ownership of stockyards through sale either to existing agencies, such as the principal connecting railroads, or to separate companies "entirely independent both in law and in fact."

Stockyards and railroad cars are in fact adjuncts of transportation, the commission holds and as such their operation has been subjected to regulation of the interstate commerce commission.

METHOD ADOPTED FOR CLASSIFICATION OF OYSTERS

Washington, Feb. 19.—Methods for certification of oysters just as meat and dairy products are stamped with the approval of the federal government were adopted today at a conference of federal and state health officials and representatives of the oyster industry.

Oyster "scares" due to typhoid outbreaks such as appeared last year which caused great financial loss to the oyster industry, it was held by the delegates, will be impossible when the regulations covering the handling of sea food from its source to the consumer, are carried out.

Surgeon General Cummins, of the public health service, who presided, appointed a committee of representatives from the health service, and the bureau of chemistry and fisheries of the department of agriculture, and the oyster industry to work out details of the programme.

The plan calls for sanitary inspection of water sheds and oyster beds, supervision of shucking houses and transportation, methods of display and storing and establishment of bacterial standards in line with the pure food regulations. By means of a system of numerals and letters, it will be possible to trace all seafoods from the source to the consumer's plate.

ACTOR JOHN BARRYMORE APPLAUDED IN LONDON

London, Feb. 19.—(By The A. P.)—A distinguished London first night audience—never noted for warm-heartedness—gave John Barrymore, the American actor, a generous reception when he appeared tonight in the role of Hamlet, in which only few British actors have scored triumphs within a generation. It was Barymore's first appearance in England in many years.

It was so generous that Mr. Barrymore faltered when he appeared for a curtain call after the third act and confessed that he had faced his English debut with almost terror, but no longer felt afraid.

The play was staged in the old Haymarket, where his father, the famous Maurice Barrymore, played fifty years ago.

The gallery which can make or break a play in England, was the first to respond, and the stalls also resounded liberally with handclapping and shouts, bringing the American before the curtain many times.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office, 771 Main Street
Telephone 1131
Office Hours: 9:30 to 12 m.; 1:30 to 6 p. m.

That Willimantic will probably be chosen as one of two eastern Connecticut cities, in addition to New London, as a site for a branch office of equioned considerable interest here. The bill to that effect will be presented the motor vehicle department has acced in the present session of the legislature. When the time approaches for the annual registration of motor vehicles, this city is approximately 32 miles Willimantic is literally "on the ismiles from the New London branch office and 30 miles from the state capitol. When conditions are such as they were last year local automobile owners are somewhat up against it. With the industries operating on part time there appeared to be few car owners who could spare the registration fee before the final moment. Local wages have been and will probably continue to be for some time living wages and not saving wages and this fact combined with neglect, explains the reason for late registration. Then when the eleventh hour comes it requires one day and often times two days before a registration is secured. The local representatives, Charles B. Pomeroy and A. Linn Weatherhead and several influential citizens will appear in favor of the proposal and will contant that it would make for better service and more facile administration.

Another legislative matter of local importance is the proposed addition of some form of state police office or barracks in Willimantic. There are those who are not eager for the immediate presence of state cops, but the claim here. The local police department has established the enviable record of never having an automobile stolen here and not recovered, in spite plan is generally accepted with enthusiasm in Willimantic but in the town of of the fact that it has jurisdiction not Windham. Automobile difficulties, as accidents and thefts, of car owners for ten miles in this vicinity habe been thrust on the local police and in such instances the police have acted as a necessary have notified the state poform of information bureau and if thee barracks at Stafford Springs. Another situation which comes up for consideration is the fact that at present only one day a week is allowed here for the examination of applicants for motor vehicle drivers' licenses and at times that day is omitted due to the preoccupation of all the officers in Stafford. Applicants come here every week from the towns of Ashford, Eastford, Chaplin, Hampton, Scotland, Lebanon, Franklin, Hebron, Columbia, Coventry, Andover, Willington and Mansfield.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia To Overcome Trouble Caused by Formenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Regular K. of C. meeting tonight, Forresters' hall.—adv.

Mrs. H. T. Jeffers celebrated her 100th birthday early Thursday morning—that is, according to candles on her birthday cake. She has planned several successful surprises on other members of her family, but this time she was the astonished one. Instead of waiting for the date of her birthday, the party arrived the evening before, and stayed until 1 o'clock a. m., so that her birthday was celebrated very early in the morning. Whist was enjoyed, Mrs. Jeffers receiving the lady's first prize, a daffodil bulb, and Mrs. E. B. Cheney a candy rooster as the consolation award. Tyler Gilbert took the memorandum book, the men's first prize, and Gus Greenwood a candy pig for consolation. Mrs. Jeffers received as a birthday gift a handsome underarm pocketbook which contained a gold piece. The party brought their supper and camped in the hostess' home, waiting for her birthday to arrive. Besides Mrs. Jeffers' children there were present Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Gilbert, Mrs. Grace Webster, Frances Bugbee, Tyler Gilbert and Gus Greenwood.

Concerning Lithography

Printing from prepared stones has been known since 1796, when the art was invented by Senefelder. The stone employed is called a lithograph stone, and is a fine-grained limestone of a very porous nature.

Before the war practically all lithographic stone came from Bavaria, as the variety quarried there is of the best quality and of the most practical color—a light gray.

These limestones absorb grease and water rapidly; therefore, if a line is drawn on a prepared stone with an ink containing grease, this line can be taken away only by removing the surface to the depth to which the grease has penetrated. If water is now placed on this stone, it will remain only on those parts not covered by a grease. When a roller carrying a greasy ink is passed over the stone the ink will cover only the greased portions, and the parts that are wet will not take up the ink. Therefore, a piece of paper pressed upon the stone will receive an impression in ink from the lines drawn only. On these principles depend lithography, the process being extremely valuable in the printer's art.

Mentioned As Berlin Envoy

Ira Nelson Morris, of Chicago one of the biggest and most successful business men of the Middle West, who is being strongly considered as the new Minister to Berlin, to succeed Houghton. Mr. Morris was Minister to Sweden under Wilson, but even being a Democrat will not deter his appointment, friends claim.

A Banknote Misprint

It is rare that mistakes get past Uncle Sam's inspectors in the bureau of engraving and printing, but this happened when a banknote was issued which bore a $50 value on one side and a $100 value on the other. Odd circumstances attended its discovery. A western hotel clerk in straightening out his accounts one day found a disagreement he could not explain. A pile of bills was at right, and as he counted them and turned them over he placed them in a pile at his left.

He consumed more than two hours counting and recounting, only to find that when he counted from left to right his accounts were exact and that when he counted them back a shortage of $50 was shown. The manager was called upon, but met with no better success. At last each bill was examined separately on both sides, whereupon the mystery was solved. It was then that the $50 obverse and the $100 reverse was found.

The treasury department was notified and after investigation it was found that it had a record of the bill. The mistake was made when a sheet of notes was printed for a national bank in Kansas City. Through a mistake of the pressman two misprinted notes went out—one with $50 obverse and a $100 reverse, the other with a $100 obverse and a $50 reverse. The cashier returned the note to the treasury and received a good one in its stead.

Breed Theater

"No more brilliant achievement in ambitious motion pictures dealing with [illegible] romances has ever been exhibited than Malorn Davies Janice Meredith," wrote F. W. M. Hall, reviewer for The New York Times, when that photo[illegible]rd premiere in the Cosmopolitan theatre in New York.

And now Janice as vitalized by the [illegible] Miss Davies amid thrilling historical backgrounds and storied characters of American independence, it doesn't seem to this reviewer that it is necessary to say any more or any less than did Mr. Hall. But while the historical sequences of Janice Meredith are inspiring and interesting, they are by no means the whole of the picture. They form in authentic detail the background for the love story in which Miss Davies and Harrison Ford are the sweethearts, Holbrook Blinn is the deep died villain of the piece.

Janice Meredith will be shown for the last times today and tomorrow at the Breed theater and other pictures on the bill include Days of 49 and the Pathe news.

Proof of the pudding is sometimes in the post mortem.

Broadway theater

The Broadway theater management should indeed take pride in offering such an excellent program of vaudeville and pictures as was reviewed yesterday.

The same show continues through Saturday, so we advise you not to miss it.

Hashi and Osel in their original co...ist make a very good opening act before a beautiful stage setting. It is a novelty.

Carl Drury and Olive Lane in Jack the Hugger, proved to be a delightful comedy skit which is laughable throughout and they sing and dance well.

Captain Bloodgood is a story replete with laughs, catchy musical numbers, the settings are especially beautiful and an eye full of girls in nifty costumes makes this offering fast, clean and wholesome enjoyment.

Shining with ability and personality that popular musical comedy star Carl McCullough in Bright Bits of Travesty made a distinctive hit.

Each a musician of note, The Oxford Four in Rhythm and Music, form one of the best orchestras to be found.

He kicked a phoney early into kidnaping taxi; a millionaire sportsman stole a diamond necklace out of his pocket and stopped a wedding, and he cleaned up a newspaper office with his bare fists—these are some of the adventures an enthusiastic and hilarious audience saw Reginald Denny in last night at the Broadway theater, when The Reckless Age, his latest and most delightful Universal-Jewel feature was screened.

The Strand Theater

In announcing the fun frolic at the Strand tonight manager MacNaughton assures his patrons seven vaudeville tryout acts and to further embellish the program has arranged with several of local amateurs to appear and do their stuff. This attraction alone should tax the capacity of the Strand because some of the amateurs are well known in Norwich and no doubt their friends will be on hand to help them along and applaud their efforts. A double feature picture program will also be given. Billie Rhodes in Leave It to Gerry is a story that tells of a young girl, with tomboyish inclinations, who fights through difficulties of poverty and lack of education to gain the happiness of her mother and circumvent a rascal who seeks to wed her wealthy aunt.

Buster Collier plays the lead opposite Miss Rhodes and Claire McDowell has a fine role.

William Fairbanks in The Other Kind of Love a drama of sacred and profane love is the other feature. As in all Fairbanks pictures action is the keynote and in this, his latest shows this screen star in many exciting and thrilling situations. Because of the length of the performance tonight only one show will be given starting at seven o'clock.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The last of the big social events of the kind here prior to the opening of the Lenten season, the fourth annual concert and ball of the Service Battery, 192nd Field Artillery, was held Thursday evening at the state armory. Officers from Norwich, New London, Putnam, Willimantic and other cities lent their presence to the making of the success of the event, which was largely attended and was one of the finest affairs of the kind held here this season.

National colors were used exclusively in decorating the big drill shed, the decorations arranged by a Stamford concern. Music for the concert and for the long program of dancing that followed was by Benny Conn's orchestra. There were many beautiful gowned women at the ball. Excepting the local and visiting officers and the enlisted men assigned to special duties at the ba none of the military men appeared in uniform.

As is always to be reported after the annual military ball, it was a very fine success from every important viewpoint.

At the recent whist arranged by Danielson chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star honors were won by Mrs. Ada Kent, Mrs. Francis Ducharme, Mrs. Eca Crumley and Mrs. M. V. Woodworth, for the ladies, and by Joseph Perreault, Albert Redman, Walter Chase and Edward Olson for the gentlemen. The attendance was about 250, with Putnam, Moosup and other places hereabouts represented. Cake, coffee and sweetheart ice cream were served. Mrs. L. S. PUTNAM

The New Haven Railway Company has withdrawn its gasoline motor bus that had been substituted for one of its passenger trains between Putnam and Worcester. It is still being used between Norwich and New London, making three or four round trips a day. No official reason for this change on the northern end of the division has been given the public.

It is announced that a gasoline moto bus is soon to take the place of the steam locomotive-drawn train on the New Haven branch, between East Thompson and Southbridge.

The Boston & Maine Railway company, following a similar policy on the part of the New Haven, has asked for an injunction to stop highway motor busses from running between two Massachusetts towns—they are operated by the DeLuxe line, which also runs busses in this state although it has no license to take on or discharge passengers in Connecticut—because they are cutting into the passenger revenues of the railroad. The Boston & Maine asserts that it is taking this action to protect its own rights as well as those of the public. Its investment, it avers, necessary to furnish passenger and freight traffic between these two points is between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000; the payment of taxes on this amount means a big outlay, as does the payment of dividends if any are earned, and the repairs and upkeep are another big item of expense.

Mr. Elliott of Boston, one of the vice presidents of the New Haven, in a recent statement said that the rights and convenience of the public were the paramount interests to be considered in the operation of a railroad and that the New Haven's policy in the future (the last three words were not a part of his statement), would be along that line.

But while he was saying this the road was seeking to have the public deprived of the service that it wants and is offering nothing to take its place.

Probably one third of its short haul freight business was taken away from the New Haven by the motor truck before its officials awakened to what was going on. It was not because the shipper or the consignee was paying any less for truck transportation, but they were getting service—prompt and satisfactory delivery. There was no carrying by of freight, often perishable, of the station to which it was consigned, to be returned the next day or a week from that date; no careless loading of cars so that the shipment destined for the first stop was at the bottom of tons of merchandise billed to the last point in that territory, meaning loss and delay.

At Manchester, Wednesday, State Bank Commissioner John Byrne, of Putnam in a talk before the members of the Kiwanis Club, made clear the point regarding the supervision by the state examiners over state chartered banks and those which are operating under a charter granted by the Comptroller of the United States and known as United States banks.

After the trouble in Putnam, he said there were many stories written, personal complaints received and letters written to the state examiner's office and they were anything but complimentary remarks. While the state examiners have no official right to enter these banks they do have rights to enter at any time and make examinations of state chartered banks, he said.

Among savings banks which are institutions without capital but conducted on a mutual plan where the interest is paid to the depositors there is an especially close watch kept on these kind of institutions and the kind of securities that they may invest these funds in are only from a prepared list which is sent to the institution and from time to time it shows that some these elected lists are not what they were at the outset there are bulletins sent to each bank which keeps them closely in touch with affairs.

Putnam High school basketball team continues to score victories by narrow margins. It squeezed out a victory over Woodstock Academy in a game played at the Putnam gymnasium, 18 to 17. The battle was close all the way with Woodstock generally a point or two in the rear of the home team, Captain Sid King of Putnam played his usual good game, holding Anderson, Woodstock star forward, scoreless from the field and himself making eight of the eighteen points. Pat Cody, at center made all the other ten points.

The game was played before the largest crowd of the season and was followed by dancing.

The Red Men are moving their quarters from the room in the Odd Fellows building which they have occupied for several years to a hall in the Zaitas block on Front street.

Cards have been received by friends of George Morse, formerly of Attawaugan, now of Pomfret, who is spending the winter in Florida and is touring the south. He reports the climate very warm and pleasant, with lawns green and flowers lovely. He has visited many historical cities and is now located in Tampa. In a short time he is planning a voyage to Cuba, before returning in the spring.

The Judean Club, composed of Jewish people from Putnam, Webster and Danielson held its first open meeting in Odd Fellows' hall with an attendance of about 120, including guests rom Norwich, Moosup, Danielson, Putnam and Webster. The club was only recently organized and has a membership of thirty or more. A short address of welcome was made by the president, John G. Sessler, following which there was a violin solo by Miss Ruth Burwick of Worcester, vocal solo by Miss Celia Afraime of Putnam and a saxophone solo by Billy Evans of Webster. There was dancing. Pep's orchestra furnishing the music. Luncheon and fruit punch were served. The entertainment was in charge of Miss belle Simon. The young ladies each brought a cake and they were auctioned off by Louis Foster and netted the club about $150.

Anson A. Buchanan, local civil war veteran, observed his eighty-second birthday, February 3. Mr. Buchanan has been a resident of Putnam or the territory nearby for most of his life. He is in the best physical condition of any of the remaining G. A. R. veterans. During the war his outfit participated in no less than twenty-one engagements. He makes his home with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Sherman, of Grove street.

Others who recently observed birthdays are Mrs. John Dingwall of School street, on the 5th, and Mrs. V. D. Levitt on the 6th. Mrs. Levitt was the guest of her six children on the following Sunday and received many gifts. Mrs. Catherine Dolan was 84 on February 7. Miss Madeline Marsh of New York who has been visiting Miss Edna Mann left for a few days' visit with friends in Boston after which she will return to her home in New York City.

The benefit whist and dance which was held at the armory Tuesday evening was a success both financially and socially. There was an exceptionally large crowd present, forty-one tables of whist being in play after which dancing was enjoyed. The first prizes were won by Mrs. Martin Hogan and Ralph Bradford. The consolation awards went to Mrs. Winterburn and E. Cartier. The party was held for the benefit of Joseph Light, who is at the Day Kimball hospital suffering from injuries received when he was struck by an automobile a month ago. At the time of the accident he was coming back from a visit to his wife, who is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital.

Victor C. Townsend of Waltham, Mass., expert checked player, will give an exhibition of his skill as the guest of the members of the North Grosvenordale Legion at their rooms over the Fire Station this (Friday) evening. The members of the Putnam Checker Club will be in attendance.

Tourtelotte Memorial High school basketball team had an easy time winning from the Pascoag High, the score being 44 to 12. This week at the High School hall in North Grosvenordale they will play Stafford Springs High.

The meeting of the Hi-Y club was held at the Congregational church. After the business meeting the members of the club were served an excellent supper at Mrs. Arnold's. Mrs. Arnold was assisted by Miss Elizabeth Child, Mrs. E. L. Robinson, Mrs. George D. Clark and Miss Mary Wheaton. The supper was followed by a discussion on "The Other Fellow; World Brotherhood"

GAS AND ELECTRIC MEN HAVE GET-TOGETHER MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

Danielson, Feb. 19.—Officials of the Eastern Connecticut Power company from Norwich, officials of the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company, with headquarters here, and of the Putnam Light and Power company, subsidiaries of the Eastern Connecticut Power company and employes in the local field, with guests, made a party of about 70 that attended a banquet at the Attawaugan hotel, Thursday evening. It was the first get together meeting of the kind held in this particular locality by those interested in the lighting and power company represented.

The main dining room of the hotel was specially lighted and attractively decorated for the banquet. Festoons of red, white and blue and other arrangements of the nationals colors made a pretty setting for the diners, who thoroughly enjoyed the following menu arranged by Landlord William S. Brown:

Fruit Cocktail
Celery Mixed Pickles
Dinner Rolls
Roast Stuffed Native
Milk Fed Chicken
Cranberry Sauce
Mashed Potatoes Mashed Turnips
Apple Pie Squash Pie
Ice Cream
Tea Coffee Milk

William Sangster, manager here for the D. and P. Gas and Electric company, presided at the after-idner exercises, filled with matters of interest for all those present who are concerned with electricity and gas as mediums of light or power and of compelling attention to those who heard and like to know of the things that men are doing to make this modern age the comfortable and convenient period it is.

President Robert W. Perkins of Norwich of the Eastern Connecticut Power company talked to those assembled about the electrical industry and various phases of the service it renders. The talg of General Manager H. G. Larrabee of the Eastern Connecticut Power company had to do largely with service, which to a modern corporation rates well near the top of essentials in dealing with those an organization serves. Treasurer E. A. Harris of the Eastern Connecticut Power company spoke on the topic of Public Relations, a matter that has come to be recognized in big business circles as a paramount consideration.

In addition to these addresses there was group singing, readings and various other entertaining features. A portable motion picture machine made possible the projection of certain films of interest in the electrical industry. An orchestra played when opportunity offered. It is not too late after all events of the varied program when the electric lighting and power men called it a night and started for home, but in the meantime they enjoyed a splendid and profitable evening.

WESTERLY

The Westerly fire department was called on Thursday afternoon to respond to two fire alarms, the first about 2 o'clock, No. 33, for a brush and grass fire outside the district on the Potter Hill road, near the residence of Dr. William C. Thompson; and the second about 4 o'clock for a gasoline blaze, in the secon-hand Ford station on Railroad avenue, formerly occupied by the Westerly Motors, Inc. Fire Chief Egger sent in two or three extra 33's to gather a force of fire fighters and went with the truck and ment to the junction of the Potter Hill road and the road leading to the Meeting House bridge. The fire had started from some unknown cause to the westward of the Potter Hill road and worked toward the Dr. Thompson place. The firemen arrived in time to prevent the blaze from crossing the road, but not until it had burned through an orchard and down to a brook crossing the fields. Return was made to the Westerly fire house after an hour and a half, the return being delayed by fire trouble near Lewis avenue.

Fire alarm No. 57 from the box at High and Canal streets was sounded by Donald Whaley shortly after 4 oclock, when a pail of gasolene was upset in the runway inside the second-hand Ford station, 33 Railroad avenue, and it became ignited, as reported from a lightedcigar. The burning gasolene blazed up briskly and filled the station with black smoke. Abraham Hagal and other workmen seized fire extinguishers and soon had the flames out. When the three pieces of the Westerly fire department apparatus arrived, the only evidence remaining was the blackened paid, smudged concrete and smoke. Within the station were some forty or fifty second hand autos and in the garage below many more. Cement construction prevented a spread of the blaze.

Before Justice Thomas Cowley Wednesday afternoon, in the office of Deputy Sheriff William H. Casey was heard the case of the Leon Specialty Shop of Westerly vs Charles Miller of Stonington. In the case on book account a demurrer filed was sustained by the justice, as the case had not been withdrawn from the Stonington town court.

Matteo Regine of Providence was best man. Following the ceremony at the church, a breakfast was served at the home of Mrs. John Uzzi at 17 Dayton street, where the bride had made her home for some time. Mr. and Mrs. Dimais left by automobile for Providence where a big reception awaited them at the groom's home 72 Sutton stret. STATE FIGHT AGAINST TUBERCULOSIS.

Connecticut has been particularly interested in the establishment, maintenance and extension of institutions for the treating of tuberculosis. Years ago it recognized the wisdom of increasing the activities in this direction by employing modern methods how the disease might be found in its early stages and to give greater emphasis to the importance of prevention.

Connecticut finds itself today well equipped and there will be gratification over the report of the state tuberculosis commission just rendered to the governor in which it is pointed out that Connecticut has not only kept step with the progressive spirit in the matter of caring for those afflicted with tuberculosis but its fight against the white plague not only continues to be as successful as that made by any other community in the world, and in organization, tactics and equipment shows a superiority. That speaks well not only for the commission, the superintendents and the forces at work in the several institutions but must cause much satisfaction to the people of Connecticut who are maintaining the good work.

Connecticut has found it necessary to increase its provisions for conducting this fight from time to time and it hasn't as yet reached the point where it can stop. The efficient manner in which the work is being carried out is resulting in giving the state greater benefits, and causing the people to obtain the available help before it is too late.

One particularly interesting feature of the report is that furnished by Chairman S. J. Maher, M. D., who finds as the result of his inspection of European sanatoria that the patients in some of the famous institutions receive no more thorough and intelligent study than do the patients in Connecticut sanatoria; that our equipment is the equal if not better than that of the Swiss and our research work is as good as that abroad.

The reduction in the death rate from tuberculosis in Connecticut from 356 per 100,000 in 1849, or 206 in 1890, to 78 in 1923 shows what is being accomplished and justifies all that has been done in waging the fight and warrants the continuance of the struggle for still more favorable accomplishments. Connecticut can well be proud of the manner in which it is overcoming the disease.

CONGRESSIONAL SALARIES.

The senate of the United States is not unminded of the opinion that prevails because of the manner in which it has been doing certain things, obstructing others and failing to do what it should be doing.

Thus when the recall of the bill carrying the provision for an increase in the pay of the congressmen was retained it had apparently dawned upon the minds of some members of the upper house of congress that they were proceeding too fast with something which was bound to bring forth an avalanche of criticism.

Here was a matter which was put forth as an amendment to the legislative appropriation bill by which the pay of congressmen was to be increased from $7,500 to $10,000 a year, and along with it to give the impression that it was not a selfish measure there was provision made for increasing the pay of the vice president and members of the cabinet.

It is probable that the same answer would have been returned by those who voted for the increase had the idea been subjected to hearings and been before congress for six months, but as a matter of fact there were no reasons advanced for an increase, no excuse was offered, but in a twinkling the senate had voted without a voice in opposition to pay itself more money. Where were those who are so disposed to oppose everything that is needed in the way of legislation?

It is to be remembered that this plan for increasing expenditures for this purpose by a million and a third is put forth at the very time when there is a demand being made for economy, when departments are curbing expenditures and when government outlays are being pruned. Does the senate consider that economy should be practiced when its salary bill is not considered but when that is brought up all thought of economy must be thrown into the discard?

How much the welfare of the country and the need for economy that will bring about reduced taxes for the people were taken into consideration by the senate is displayed by the speed shown in passing it. Perhaps the recall indicates a guilty conscience and a disposition to let better judgment prevail.

ANOTHER CONFERENCE?

When information comes from Washington to the effect that this government has been sounding out other nations with a view to ascertaining their ideas concerning the possibility of another international conference to reduce naval armaments as regards auxiliary ships, it means no more than the carrying out of the practice that is always followed in such matters.

It must be understood that no nation is going to send out invitations to a conference on any subject of so much importance without knowing first whether favorable consideration might be expected. If it can be determined that there is a willingness to get together in an agreement for the common good there will be a call issued. If it is found that there are nations in no frame of mind for such action, or a disposition to show no interest in such a move, it can be accepted that no move will be made. It would be folly to attempt anything of the kind, either to have the invitation declined or to have a conference fail to accomplish anything.

By finding out what the sentiment is through "conversations" it is possible to learn what can be expected, where the support for extending the naval agreement can be expected and where the opposition lies and how serious it is.

In the previous conference where such excellent results were obtained, the agreement did not go as far as some nations would like to have had it. Possibly the operations of the agreement have brought about a change of mind relative to extensions. It may be a long time before the desired understandings between nations concerning armament on sea and land are reached but all progress in the direction is to be encouraged.

DR. MARION L. BURTON.

In the two score and a half years which he lived Marion LeRoy Burton exerted a widespread influence. His was a rapid rise in the educational world and his removal while just in his prime makes his loss all the more regretted.

Whether it was in the filling of a pulpit or the guiding of a university his earnestness and sincerity of purpose were always manifest. The high grade of service rendered brought about his steady rise from the small pastoral charge in Connecticut, through a prominent Brooklyn pulpit, to the presidency of Smith college and then in turn to the leadership of the universities of Minnesota and Michigan, in the latter of which he was president at the time of his death. One outstanding fact in connection with all this is that his whole life was devoted to work. It began when a boy he carried newspapers and worked in a store in order to get the advantages which he sought.

Dr. Burton will be remembered as the man who placed in nomination Calvin Coolidge at Cleveland for the presidency and whose inspirational speech made such a deep impression upon all those who heard it, whether in the convention hall or by radio. It was different than the characteristic political speech, and it was a different speaker than the political platform usually holds. Dr. Burton was there to reveal the man he was nominating, not just uttering a lot of words. He was not looking for applause but the chance to send home the facts, and he did in a brilliant epigramatic address that fired the country.

Dr. Burton's record is one of great progress and achievement. The influence he shed upon the institutions with which he was connected will be lasting memorials.

A PROPER DECISION.

What must be regarded as good judgment was that which was displayed at Cave City, Ky., when it was decided to permit the body of Floyd Collins to remain where it was found in the cave which he had discovered rather than try to bring it to the surface only to have it interred in a shallower grave.

The dangers of sinking the shaft to the point where he died were recognized, but they were bravely faced as long as there was a chance to rescue him. To have continued the excavation so that his body could have been released would have involved even greater risks. It had ceased to be a case of aiding the living. All had been done that could be. His would-be rescuers were too late to be of any assistance to him, but they had removed that cloud of doubt which had existed concerning his presence in the underground tunnel and there was nothing to be gained by jeopardizing the lives of others by further excavations. In different ground and under different conditions another decision might have been reached.

The decision against amputation was equally sound. There was no good reason for the mutilation of the body. Sealing the body in the narrow cave passage under the circumstances was unquestionably in keeping with such wishes as he would have expressed himself had his views been made known. Let the limb rest where it falls is a sentiment that appeals in peacetime, under such conditions as that at Cave City, quite the same as during times of war.

For a day or two the weatherman has apparently decided to get those flopping galoshes off the streets.

Have you made up your mind that you'll never go back to the old wasteful methods of the past in using city water?

Some senators are determined that if they cannot have their own way they will do their best to block the efforts of the majority.

Those who are familiar with the usual inauguration ceremony at Washington will have a chance to see another kind March fourth.

When gongs are substituted for clocks in government offices at Washington what will those do who have been accustomed to spend most of their time watching the clock?

An effort is being made in the Maine legislature to eliminate the unsightly billboards from the highways. Governor Bingham's message may not have been heard in Maine, but it is recognized the need of such action is recognized far and wide.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, Feb. 19.—Now that the world court project has been shelved by the senate for the present session, some partisan recrimination has arisen over the responsibility for the delay in dealing with it; a question concerning which there is little room for doubt. The administration of President Coolidge, like that of President Harding, has been earnestly in favor of our participation in that tribunal, and Secretary Hughes has made some of the most convincing arguments to that end. Moreover, the republican party has long been committed to it, notably since Elihu Root, then secretary of state, instructed the American delegates to the second Hague congress in 1907, to use their best efforts for the creation of such a court.

The nub of the present difficulty was epigrammatically expressed by Senator Pepper, of Pennsylvania, when in May last he introduced into the senate his resolution for American adherence to the court, and when he said that anybody who was opposed to the plan "must be moved by concern for the league of nations rather than by interest in the court as an independent institution." There was ample ground for that statement when it was made, and further confirmation of it has since been provided.

It was entirely reasonable and logical for the administration and for republican senators to favor entering the court on conditions which kept us entirely detached from the league of nations. Our participation in such a court had been urged years before the league was thought of. But the moment such a suggestion was made, there was an outburst of opposition from democratic advocates of the league, and every effort was made to prevent participation in the court excepting in some way that would entangle us with the league and prove a more or less irrevocable step toward entering that body.

It was a renewal of the fatal attitude of five or six years ago, when we were told that if we entered the league of nations at all we must do so without reservations, without the dotting of an i or crossing of a t. We were—we are, even now—told by professed advocates of the court that if we adhere to that tribunal at all we must do so without any reservations or conditions. It is difficult to absolve such propagandists from the suspicion of being more interested in the league of nations than in the court of international justice, and of being more desirous of entangling us with the former than of securing our independent participation in the latter.

One never knows the extent to which the words of a statesman, transmitted by radio may reach the invisible audience which listens in, but it is to be presumed that when the words of a president are "on the air" there is a considerable accession of attention. If our assumption is correct the uncountable millions who heard the address of the chief magistrate on the subject of the national budget recently listened in on much that was interesting, much that was encouraging and to the details of a program of inestimable value to the nation.

The president promised that if the moderation in expenditures which he urged was observed by congress the treasury surplus on June 30, 1926, would reach the astounding sum of $373,000,000. This, in turn, means the reduction of the national debt and the interest charges upon that permanent obligation.

With debt and interest charges both scaled down by the application of sane economy that tax reduction which is the aim of every sound statesman, of every party may be continued along lines of scientific regard for the best interests of the republic rather than fitted to the wish and will of masters in expediency such as interfered a year ago with the proper course of the administration program of 1924.

In 1921 the annual interest bill of the treasury department was $999,000,000. It has been climbed down to $665,000,000, a saving in the overhead of government of $134,000,000. With a saving of $373,000,000 in the course of the ensuing fiscal year another cut will be effected in the total outstanding obligations of the United States. This is important, but what is of infinitely higher importance to every one of the 115,000,000 Americans who constitute what Director Lord, head budget officer, calls the shareholders in government is the certainty which it conveys of further tax reduction.

In the two years and five months of the administration of Warren G. Harding and the one year and six months of Calvin Coolidge's incumbency the federal debt has been reduced two billions of dollars. In another decade it may be cut in twain.

On November 4, 1924, Coolidge received an endorsement at the hands of the American people that was partly personal in expressing the affection, the faith and the respect of America. But it also meant something else. It means the endorsement of his plans for tax reform and it conveyed vehement disapprobation and condemnation of the shadow-boxers, ghost dancers, rain-makers, frauds, necromancers and demagogues who combined their efforts to encompass the vitiation and virtual defeat of the Mellon plan.

Quite a hullabaloo is being raised because a chief in the treasury department at Washington where many thousands of men and women are employed at substantial salaries, has posted signs warning the employes that being on the government payroll carries with it an obligation to work. The signs in question provide that the clerks must arrive by nine, and be ready to work. That they must work till 4.30, and must stop gossiping and visiting during the office hours. It is further provided, and this is a particular point of grievance, that the lunch hour is provided for luncheon purposes, and that the habit of eating lunch in the offices on government time, for which the taxpayers are paying, and then using the lunch period for business and other affairs must be stopped. The man and woman on the farm with a working day from sunrise to sunset and later, is not apt to allow their sympathy to run away with them, because the government clerks are being asked to meet these requirements. The shop girl, the office worker, and the men and women in the mills of the country who begin at 8 or earlier and work till long after the government hour, are not expected in the immediate future to march on Washington, demanding that these rules be revoked.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The Most Rev. Samuel P. Matheson, who has decreed that Sunday afternoon teas and dancing must go, is the Anglican archbishop of Rupert's Land and primate of all Canada. The Archbishop is a native of Manitoba and a descendant of the famous Selkirk settlers. Fifty years ago, after completing his education in Toronto, he was ordained a deacon in the church. In 1903 he was consecrated first bishop coadjutor of Rupert's Land and the following year he succeeded to the bishopric. One year later he was elected lord archbishop and metropolitan of Rupert's Land with residence in Winnipeg. The Archbishop has been described as the most commanding of all the Canadian prelates in point of physique, being over 6 feet tall. He has been honored with the degree of B. D. from the University of Manitoba, of which institution he has served as chancellor.

FORTUNE FOR TWO

"Cross my palm with silver, please," said the girl who was telling fortunes at the church bazaar. "Fifty cents, please. Place your hands, palms upward, on the table, please. No, not like that! Flat!"

"Push them flat for me," begged the young man eagerly. "I really think you'll read my palms better if you should hold my hands."

"I see a number of girls in your life," said the palmist. "You arethe kind of a man who flies from one to the other, a heartbreaker and a flirt."

"Not on your life!" cried the young man. "I never saw a girl worth paying attention to until I saw you. You just call me a flirt because I happened to meet Miss Dean in the tearoom and she practically told me to order something for her to eat."

"You are not a man who haunts tearooms alone" the girl went on, gazing at his palms. "You are socially inclined and you like to be flattered."

"Now, look here!" exclaimed the young man. "I can't help it if my hair is dark brown, and that's all that Miss Dean said about it, honest, I suppose since you were sitting at the next table you heard her silly remark about liking brown hair. Great Scott! I worried enough over that episode to be perfectly bald by this time."

"You are quite hasty about many things," the girl went on unheeding. "But about others you are painfully slow. You do not see things that are very plain to most people and yet you have a good imagination. I see money for you and some nice long journeys. There will be a slight accident on one of them, but you will come out safely."

"Thanks to my better half, I suppose," he suggested. "Now you see how much I am going to need you and just what your duty is. It'd be worth being smashed up a bit to have you take care of me. Would you mind if I lost a leg or two?"

"Oh, don't!" shivered the girl. "That isn't funny."

"Then you do care a little bit what happens to me?" cried the young man gleefully. "Say, Lenore, listen to me—"

"There are five people waiting in line outside," said the palmist coolly. "There is only a certain time allotted to each patron and yours is almost up. You will have a piece of good fortune come to you before the month is up; something that will affect your entire future."

"Say, I'm more!" cried the young man. "That's one thing I want to talk to you about. I got that promotion and that means—"

"You will not live in Chicago always but will go to some place where you will prosper," said the girl. "I can see real estate on your hands."

"I meant to speak about that," said the young man quickly. "You see I got some sort of chemical on my hands and it looks like mud, but it isn't. I scrubbed these mits three times before coming in here!"

"Somebody is going to leave you a large sum of money," continued the girl. "And you are going to acquire more in some unusual way."

"Sounds as if you thought I am to rob a bank," said the young man, "or hold up a store or something."

"I said in an unusual way," said the girl firmly. "Perhaps you will invent something besides excuses, I can't tell, I don't see any divorce or any trouble in your hands."

"It will be your fault if I have a divorce," said the young man. "For if you won't marry me I'll be forlorn and unhappy and when I have reached 90 or something like that I'll get married and be so unhappy that I'll have to get a divorce or fire off a gun I didn't know was loaded. Is this all you are going to say to me?"

"Haven't you had your 50 cents' worth?" asked the girl. "You have ambition and aspire to high things."

"Yes, I do," said the young man humbly. "You, for instance."

"Money, a lovely home somewhere, travel, what more do you want?" asked girl. "I think you are going to have a little bit of everything."

"It won't be worth 2 cents," said the young man, "unless I have a wife."

"Oh, yes," said the girl. "Didn't I tell you? You get married."

"If you want to make it a perfect fortune," said the young man, "it's got to be you. That will be wonderfull."

"I had to tell you a good fortune," murmured the girl as she opened the door of the booth, "since I am to share it. The one who is next may come in now."—Chicago.

Grant, a Failure in Business

Hero of many battles and twice elected president of the United States, Ulysses S. Grant was unsuccessful in his efforts to be a business man.

Born at Point Pleasant, Ohio, he early was taken to Georgetown by his father, who was a farmer and tanner. He attended school and helped to farm, guiding a plow at 11.

When his father obtained his appointment to West Point the boy demurred, fearing he could not pass the examinations, but was successful at 17. Failing as a corporal, he became a private again.

Graduated and commissioned a brevet lieutenant at 21 he took part in important battles of the Mexican war and was made first lieutenant at 24 for bravery at Molina del Rey and captain for his conduct at Chapultepec soon afterward.

Married at 26, he resigned from the army six years later, tried to farm, was plunged deeply into debt while in the real estate business in St. Louis, then became a clerk in his father's store at Galena, Ill., at $800 a year.

At the beginning of the Civil war he offered his services to the government. Receiving no reply, he was made a mustering officer and the colonel of the 21st Illinois Infantry Volunteers. Then came a series of brilliant military achievements from the seizure of Paducah, Ky., to the final victory. His capture of Fort Donaldson won the rank of major-general, his victory at Chatanooga earned the thanks of congress and a gold medal. Made Lieutenant Commander, at 42, he won further victories, suffered harst defeat at Cold Harbor, then captured Richmond, receiving Lee's surrender, and was appointed general.

Elected president of the United States at 46 and reelected four years later, he made a world tour after leaving office. At the next republican national convention he lead for the renomination for president for 36 ballots.

In the same year he became a partner in the financial firm of Grant & Ward, was victimized by his partner, who was sent to prison, and surrendered all his property to satisfy creditors. He was reappointed general of the army by congress, his memoirs finished just before his death brought $500,000, and at his demise, his memory was honored by the world.

Stories That Recall Others

An Official Joke

He had just returned from attending a convention in another city of the state. He had seen another of the delegation eating bread and milk in a rather unpretentious restaurant.

"On a diet?" asked the first man.

"No," replied the second, "just on a commission."

Surprise It Was Indeed.

She was a nurse in a hospital several hundred miles away. As a well to do patient left the institution she offered the nurse a sum of money as a token of her appreciation. On being told that it was against the rules of the institution for the nurse to accept such "tokens" the patient asked if gifts also were tabood and insisted she wished to express her appreciation in some material way. The nurse responded that there was no ban on gifts.

A few days later the nurse received a neat, little box carefully wrapped in a manner that gave no clue to its contents. With a quickening of the pulses and a flutter about the heart the efficient nurse proceeded to open the package.

It was a toothbrush.

Tongue Twisters

Is your tongue limber? You certainly will have to loosen it up to twist around these tongue twisters. Each word, as you will notice begins with the same letter in each sentence, and you are to say them as quickly as possible, without stumbling:

Shirley saw several stupid students sewing some short, silk sweaters.

Poor Peggy purchased pretty pictures profitably.

Carl cleverly caught Clarence's cat consuming Clara's clear cool cream.

Wily Willy wanted whitewashed walls where wood would work.

Ten trusty Turks turned toward the terrible tent together.

Beautiful Betty baked bread, but bought biscuits.

Peter pasted purple paper pads, piling pieces picturesquely.

Gertrude grew gay, giving greedy Gladys greetings.

DR. MEREDITH SPEAKS ON SCHOOLS BEFORE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

A. B. MEREDITH
Commissioner of Education

The February membership meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, held Thursday evening at the Wauregan house, with a dinner at 6.15, was of unusual character and unusual interest, having about 50 school teachers of the town present to hear Dr. A. B. Meredith of Hartford, commissioner of education, who was the speaker of the evening. The teachers were seated together, occupying two of the tables, while a number of the Chamber of Commerce members were accompanied by their wives, and the company of 125 was about evenly divided, men and women.

The musical program was by the Academy orchestra of about 40 members, under the direction of Frederic H. Cranston, and their well rendered numbers were given enthusiastic applause, two violin solos by Henry Brynan being features of the evening. Secretary John J. O'Rourke was song leader.

In opening the speaking part of the program, President Arthur E. Story spoke in appreciation of the attendance of the school teachers and of Principal H. A. Tirrell of the Academy and the Academy orchestra.

President Story introduced Dr. Meredith, to speak upon What is a School For?

The state commissioner of education referred pleasantly to former occasions when he had enjoyed attending public meetings in Norwich and went on to say that the answer to the question given in his subject is involved in the answer to the question "What do we mean by education?" Education, he said, is to be looked upon as a process and not as a fact, a process of growth and development, of adaptation, of adjustment to the material world, to the people with whom we are associated, and to the ideals and aspirations of our times. It is a process that is continuous and never-ending, but there are certain limitations which grow out of what we ourselves are. The better we know our limitations and our possibilities, the more can this process of education go on.

In this connection Dr. Meredith mentioned that our system of education is devoting much attention to the underqualified but is neglecting the gifted. Education has to do with the accentuation of differences rather than the attempt to bring all to a level of mediocrity. Progressive education refers to that process of growth that is in harmony with the person being trained. Progressive education works toward creative thinking.

School, said Dr. Meredith, is one of the agencies that assist in the process of adjustment to environment, to such institutions as the family, the church, political, commercial and industrial life. The more we can make these contacts, the more effective will the schools be. The school has a particular responsibility to the interpretation of the experiences of life.

In the second place, the school is an intellectual agency to assist in the art of thinking, but to encourage thinking the material must be of interest to the pupil himself. Catch words, slogans and half-truths too often take the place of real thinking, and the school has a responsibility to establish the habit of straight thinking.

Thirdly, the school has a responsibility for perpetuating certain social ideals, the things which make what we call American citizenship. Finally, the school has the responsibility to teach through example and precept the spiritual and ethical values in the meaning of life. Moral idealism is one of the responsibilities of the school that results in conduct, and it can render no higher service than to develop these ethical values.

Applause and a rising vote of thanks were given Dr. Meredith upon the conclusion of his address, and there was also a rising vote of thanks for Mr. Cranston and the Academy orchestra.

The meeting concluded with a verse of The Star Spangled Banner, after President Story had announced that the speaker at the membership meeting March 16 would be Dr. K. R. B. Flint, in charge of the department of civics at Norwich university, Vermont, who will speak upon Zoning and City Planning.

SCHWARTZ BROS. GAVE BANQUET FOR EMPLOYES

In appreciation of faithful services by their employes, the firm of Schwartz Bros., Inc., of this city entertained them Wednesday evening at a banquet at the Jewett City hotel. Thirty-five employes and guests closely related to Schwartz Bros., made up the party, which enjoyed the sumptuous menu and entertainment with an enthusiasm that was remarkable and inspiring.

The ceremonies of the evening began with the singing of America. Abner Schwartz, the president of the corporation, acted as toastmaster for the evening, and in welcoming the gathering, he gave a very impressive talk, stressing with deep sincerity his appreciation of the co-operation given to the firm by every one of its employes. He related the progress of the business since its inception, comparing the business to a ladder in which every rung when in its proper place and performing its proper function makes climbing easy. Mr. Schwartz took occasion to thank his men for forming the steps upon which the firm climbed to success owing to every man filling his proper place and faithfully performing the function allotted to him. He also said that ours is a most wonderful country in which by sincere effort and perseverance every man has an opportunity of climbing to the top of the ladder. He expressed the hope that his men will avail themselves of this opportunity promising that he would gladly help them to achieve success.

Benjamin Lahn, vice president, and Joseph Lahn, secretary and treasurer of the corporation, voiced the same sentiments and spoke with sincere appreciation of the loyalty of the employes to the firm.

Alec Pasnik, a guest to the occasion, acted as song leader making the place ring with song and merriment.

Max Hanover, one of the guests was introduced as the first speaker of the evening. He spoke on the commandment "Love thy neighbor as thyself." In beginning his address Mr. Hanover said that he was very glad to be a witness of the fine spirit of real fellowship and co-operation manifested between employer and employe and to the example set by Schwartz Brothers by this gathering. He expressed the hope that more employers would feel such close human bond to their employes and added that we would then have a better world to live in.

Every one of the guests present had a word of praise for the public spirit, industry and enterprise displayed by the firm in building up the business institution of Schwartz Brothers making it a credit to the city. The employes entered in the spirit of the occasion, everyone relating something of the fair and humane treatment which they received from the firm, all joining in making a public pledge to support the firm with all the ability at their command.

The entertainment lasted until midnight and ended with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner and salute to the flag.

CONNECTICUT SUCCEEDING IN TUBERCULOSIS FIGHT

Connecticut's successful campaign against tuberculosis, especially in the saving of human lives, is shown in the report of the state tuberculosis commission for the period beginning July 1, 1922 and ending June 30, 1924, presented to the governor.

In 1849, the first year of which reliable statistics are to be had, the report says, the Connecticut death rate from tuberculosis was 276 per hundred thousand inhabitants. In the year 1882, the year of Koch's discovery of the tubercle bacillus, the state death rate from the disease was 244 per hundred thousand. In the year 1900, the death rate had dropped to 169 while in 1923 it was 78 per hundred thousand. And if to the deaths from consumption were added the report continues, the total deaths from all other forms of tuberculosis, the total tuberculosis death rate for Connecticut for the year 1923, would be only 89 per hundred thousand.

The commissioners have endeavored to show in the report "that Connecticut has kept step with the progressive spirit of the times in generously caring for such of her citizens as have been stricken by mankind's great enemy, tuberculosis; and that Connecticut's fight against tuberculosis, not only continues to be as successful as that made by any other community in the world, but that in some matters of organization and tactics and equipment Connecticut's superiority is apparent and recognized."

Names for Sanatoria

Pointing out that the commission at all times is keeping the general assembly and the public informed of the fight against the disease through a campaign of education, the commission tells of the attempt, through a series of school children contests, to eliminate the title "state" from the names of the institution. It is proven in the report that the psychological affect of the word "state" often keeps persons ill from the disease away from the three sanatoria. Several hundred school children submitted more popular names for the institutions, and the name "Laurel Heights" was accepted for the Shelton institution, and "Cedarcrest" for the Hartford sanatorium. None of the names offered for the Norwich sanatorium was deemed satisfactory and another competition will be conducted.

The need of additional tuberculosis experts is pointed out. While Connecticut has not suffered so much as some other states, the report says, while the state has not been entirely trouble-free. The principal trouble comes, according to the report, from the fact that other states "take our assistant physicians by offering them higher positions in this connection the report points out that more attractive living quarters should be provided for the assistant physicians and other important members of the staffs.

The danger of fire hazards at the state institutions is touched upon and it is pointed out that most of the buildings are of wood construction. Declaring that it is dangerous to house sick and crippled patients in highly inflammable buildings, the commission suggests that in the future, any appropriations for new buildings should be large enough to enable the commission to erect structures of brick or stone or other fire proof material.

Slow Progress at Niantic

Regarding the two sanatoria in New London county the report says:

At the last session of the General Assembly, we made known the crying need that there was of enlarging The Seaside at Niantic. The original purchase by the state six years ago consisted of about two and a half acres of land having a ninety-seven foot frontage on a beautiful white beach at the eastern end of Crescent Beach. On these two acres stood a three story wooden summer hotel called the White Beach Hotel. This hotel, a failure financially, had been closed and for sale for two years.

Along the beach, to the west of the White Beach Hotel property, were a score or more of attractive summer cottages occupied in the season by owners or lessees from various parts of the country. Facing the sea, to the east of the White Beach Hotel property was a large tract of approximately eighteen acres, extending from the beach to the tracks of the New Haven railroad. On this property, stood an old frame house, unoccupied by its owners except for eight or ten of the fifty-two weeks of the year.

The purpose of the state in purchasing this hotel property was to provide a place suitable for treating with sun baths in all months of the year, such children of Connecticut, as are crippled with bone or glandular tuberculosis. After many vicissitudes, political and social serious and ludicrous, this purpose of the state had been finally accomplished, and the great heart of Connecticut rejoiced. In spite of the fact that The Seaside was the first state institution of its kind in America, and that many of the leaders of the medical profession were yet skeptical of the power of continuous sun baths to cure bone tuberculosis, the success of the institution was immediate, and in a few months a "waiting list" of patients began to form.

"A waiting list" is a very serious problem for a state institution that offers to the public, relief from pain and hope of cure, not available elsewhere. Even the most enthusiastic of the medical friends of The Seaside lost much of their enthusiasm when they found that they could not secure the admission of their patients to the new institution for months and sometimes a year after his or her application had been filed.

Visitors to The Seaside from every walk in life, saw the crowded building, learned of our waiting list, marveled at the cures taking place under their eyes, and impatiently asked why the state did not secure some of the great stretch of adjacent land east of the institution and erect on this idle land additional fireproof buildings for the development of the splendid work now done in the cramped quarters of the made-over summer hotel.

Before the sitting of the last General Assembly, we approached the owners of this tract of land east of the state property, to learn the price they set on the whole or part of this property. After considerable delay, the owners came together for a conference on our request and replied to use that the land "was not for sale in whole or in part."

After discussion of the situation with the Attorney General, we decided to ask the General Assembly for an appropriation for the securing of the needed land by purchase or condemnation. Our request to the General Assembly was bitterly opposed by the owners of the property, but in the last days of the session, an appropriation of one hundred thousand dollars was made for the erection of the new building, and another twenty-five thousand dollars for the purchase of the land. The State Tuberculosis Commission and the State Comptroller were "directed to acquire such adjacent land as said Commission required."

In November 1923, we notified the State Comptroller that we, the State Tuberculosis Commission, required a section of this land approximately 200 feet wide. As representing himself and us, the State Comptroller endeavored to induce the owners of the needed land to come to an amicable agreement as to the value of the land needed. He failed utterly. Therefore, in order to comply with the expressed will of the General Assembly, we were obliged to call to our aid the State's right of eminent domain over the land of the state. In November, 1923, we handed over all the papers in the case to the Attorney General of the State together with the unanimous vote of the commission that it "required" the above mentioned 200 foot strip east of the present property of the state. Because of the great burden of work imposed on the office of the Attorney General by the prosecution in court of the scores of cases of medical frauds unearthed last year, a serious considération of our request was not possible until summer. And then the Attorney General decided that our unanimous vote, as to our requirements of this 200 foot section of land, would better have added to it the signature of the State Comptroller. We, therefore, have again passed a formal vote as to our need of the 200 feet and with the added signature of the State Comptroller have handed it to the Attorney General. We understand that action by the courts will soon be had.

Norwich

As we explained at the last session of the General Assembly, a vital need at this institution was a new sewage system. After meeting and solving many perplexing problems, we finally succeeded in installing a new system that gives satisfaction to ourselves and our neighbors.

The buildings at Norwich at present occupy all the available space on the summit of the roll of land owned by the state. When the original thirty acres were purchased twelve years ago, the commission had hopes of soon securing for protection and expansion, the wooded property of the north. For various reasons it has not been possible to realize this expectation. Now, however, because of the urgent need of erecting a new helps' quarters and a new ward for women to the north of the main building, we have again approached the owners of the desired property, and they have agreed to sell to the state a piece of land 5 acres in size, a plot large enough for our present needs. We will submit the matter in detail to the Board of Finance and the General Assembly.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell is still superintendent at Norwich. Because of the changes in his staff he has been obliged for months twice during the two years to look after the detailed medical work of the institution as well as the important executive and laboratory work. Yet during all the time the Norwich Sanatorium retained its reputation of being one of the best in the country, and his tuberculosis clinics in the neighboring towns of New London and Windham Counties continued to function as well as ever. For the supervising of the more intimate mechanism of the sanatorium, much credit is due to Miss Miriam Campbell, the housekeeper to Miss Viola Comstock the head nurse and to Miss Clara M. Christoph, the secretary, and the institution's excellent staff of technicians and nurses.

The Seaside

The bronzed and laughing but more or less crippled children who, winter and summer, swarm naked, over the beach and the lawn of the State's sanatorium at Niantic, now so well known as The Seaside, continue to attract the attention not only of the medical authorities of this and other countries, but also the attention of social and political authorities. Nowhere else in the world is there a more thorough and logical use made of the power of sunlight to cure bone and grandular tuberculosis, and nowhere else are the results better.

The two justifiable criticisms to be made of The Seaside are that it is too small and that the children should be housed in modern fireproof buildings. Elsewhere in this report we have explained in detail the reasons for the existence of these criticizable conditions at The Seaside. We expect that before the rising of the General Assembly these reasons will not longer exist.

The fact that in spite of its scant accommodations, The Seaside has been so great success is due in part to the enthusiasm and skill of Dr. John F. O'Brien, the superintendent. He has been ably seconded by Miss Rippen the headnurse, and by a group of patient and tender assistant nurses. Dr. O'Brien has been much in demand by the medical societies of other states, who wish to hear from him, at first hand, of the wonderful cures wrought by Connecticut at The Seaside.

However, in the analysis, the success of the Seaside is due chiefly to the prompt and thorough and intelligent support that the people of the state, as a whole, gave and still give, to the institution, and to the medical philosophy on which it is based. The people of the state, through their representatives in the general assembly have repeatedly refused to be moved by intimidation, or by calory, from their purpose of making The Seaside at Niantic a success, so great a success that in a few years from all the states in the Union will come medical pilgrimages to learn Connecticut's methods of straightening and curing the crumbling bones of her tuberculous children. Already these pilgrimages have begun; but they have only begun.

Getting Skinnier Every Day

Hollows in Cheeks and Neck Growing Deeper Every Week

Something Must Be Done and Done Right Now—Quick

Tens of thousands of thin, run-down men—yes, and women too—are getting discouraged—are giving up all hope of ever being able to take on flesh and look healthy and strong.

All such people can stop worrying and start to smile right now for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, which any druggist will tell you all about, is putting flesh on hosts of skinny folks every day.

One woman, tired, weak and discouraged, put on 15 pounds in five weeks and feels fine.

We all know that Cod Liver Oil is full of flesh producing vitamines, but many people can't take it because of its horrible smell and fishy taste, and because it often upsets the stomach.

McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets are as easy to take as candy, and if any thin person don't gain at least 5 pounds in 30 days your druggist will give you your money back—and only 60 cents for 60 tablets. Ask Lee & Osgood Co. or any live pharmacist anywhere.

But be sure to get McCoy's, the original and genuine, and bear in mind that for thin, sickly kids they are wonderful—a very sickly child—age 9, gained 12 pounds in 7 months.

STORRS HENS SHOWED OVER 4,000 EGGS IN WEEK

Over 4,000 eggs is the record of the hens for the 16th week of the Storrs laying contest. To be exact, the official records tallied up to 4,198 eggs, or a yield of nearly 43 per cent. This is a gain of 718 eggs over the previous week's production and is relatively 102 eggs better than for the corresponding week a year ago. In earlier years when the birds entered in the contest numbered an even 1,000 they averaged to make the 4,000 egg mark in the 20th week from the first of November. In the current contest, however, there are 40 per cent. more birds or a total of 1,400 hens that should obviously reach 4,000 eggs earlier. The debatable question is whether or not the management can mathematically compute with eclipti-cal accuracy the expected performance of the larger flock and predict by just how many weeks they ought to precede the records established in former years by the smaller unit of 1,000 hens.

In the fifteenth week Hanson's Leghorn Farm from Corvallis, Ore., was best performer with a production of 53 eggs. Of the entire 140 pens in the contest this Leghorn pen is now leading instead of Thomas H. Matteson's White Wyandottes that have been setting the pace for the last five weeks. It may be remarked incidentally that this same Leghorn pen held the lead for six weeks earlier in the contest and now that they have got it again the question is how long they can keep it. Fred H. Sampson's pen of Rhode Island Reds from Springfield, Mass., was second best for the week with a score of 51 eggs. Deer Brook Poultry Farm's pen of the same breed from Short Falls, N. H., was a close third with a total of 50 eggs. Carterloa Farm's pen of White Wyandottes from Troy, Mo., and two pens of Leghorns owned by Lewis Farms at Davisville, R. I., and Meadowedge Farm at Sterling Junction, Mass., all tied for fourth place with 46 eggs. There was just one other little upset in the 15th week in that the New Hampshire pen of Reds moved up into third place in their class.

CASSIDY SAYS MANCHESTER WANTS TO WEAR UNIFORM

Hartford, Feb. 19. — "Manchester wants to remain a buck private but have a major general's uniform," was the way Representative Charles W. Cassidy, of Norwich, summed up the request of Manchester as presented in a number of bills heard today before the cities and boroughs committee. Manchester citizens appeared in favor of the bills which would change the designation of Manchester from "town" to "city" but would not give it the usual city government with a mayor at the head. Under the bill, the selectmen would continue to govern the town although other bills give them some additional powers. The cities and boroughs committee also heard a bill to consolidate the sixth and ninth school districts of Manchester.

NO GRAND CIRCUIT RACING AT HARTFORD THIS YEAR

Cleveland, Feb. 19—(By the A. P.) Hartford, Conn., and Readville, Mass., have relinquished their Grand Circuit dates, Win H. Kinnan, secretary of the circuit, was informed late today. Indianapolis and Milwaukee will take their places.

Rumors that meetings would not be held at the two famous tracks have been in circulation for some time, but it was not until today that definite decision was reached. The management of the Readville track, where Lou Dillon trotted the first two minute mile, informed the officials here that it had arranged to conduct its meeting but could not because Hartford was unable to carry out its plans.

Hartford is the oldest track in the sport. It was famous for its Charter Oak stakes, which was an annual feature. With either one of the tracks the Grand Circuit horsemen would not send their racers to the other for one week's meeting. Mr. Kinnan explained.

Milwaukee and Indianapolis have made formal application for membership, and will be admitted. Mr. Kinnan said Milwaukee will be allotted the week of August 31, the dates held by Readville and Indianapolis will take September 7 to 12. Hartford's original dates, Syracuse remains the only tracks in the circuit east of Cleveland.

Several weeks ago Columbus relinquished dates for its summer meeting but plans to hold its fall meeting as scheduled.

JOHNNY PILGARD REGRETS LOSS OF GRAND CIRCUIT

Hartford, Feb. 19.—"Hartford horse men will miss Grand Circuit racing at Charter Oak park. The loss is a source of deep regret," said John A. Pilgard, Grand Circuit follower for more than 25 years and a member of the racing committee here. He attributes the loss of Hartford, oldest track in the east and Readville, to the fact that owners cannot afford the long hauls from the lose circuit of the middlewest to Hartford and Readville, long bright spots in eastern racing but at the same time colorless spots.

CHAPMAN TECH FIVE HAS EVEN BREAK IN BASKETBALL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Feb. 19.—The Chapman Technical High school basketball season has little less than a month to run before the scanty togs are discarded in favor of baseball. At present the Red and Black is in a deep slump, and, with present appearances, it will take some good playing to bring the five out of the hole. In the 14 games played to date, the Tech record includes an even break as far as wins and defeats are concerned.

The record compiled to date is but a mere shadow of the fine success which marked the efforts of the Red and Black five last year, when the team won the eastern Connecticut championship and subdued some of the other strong fives in this section of the state. Chapman Tech will participate in the tourney at Storrs college this year, but it seems unlikely that Tech will repeat her performance of last year.

Several disturbing complications which set in during the month have caused the favoring of either Windham or Bulkeley High to win the tourney. But Tech may regain her lost strength in time to give either of these teams more competition than they are looking for. Regardless, even though the tourney seems to rest between the Thread City five and the Bulkeley five, there are some unusual situations which the teams are forced to face. Stamina as well as the ability of a team will determine the winner.

In the total points scored Chapman Tech leads her opponents by a scant 5-point margin, the total being 497 for Tech, while the opponents have 402. The season record to date is as follows:

Chapman Tech.		Opponents.
26	Pratt High	12
36	Madison High	23
20	Plainfield High	22
23	Deep River High	45
48	Killingly High	27

38	Plainfield High	17
33	Madison High	29
35	Stonington High	21

20	South Willington	37
23	Windham High	33

This (Friday) evening Tech travels to Danielson to take on Killingly High.

CLABBY'S COLTS DOWN FAST COMBAT TRAIN

Jack Clabby, now a member of the York, Pa., team, brought a team of ball players to the state armory on Thursday evening and administered a severe defeat to the Combat Train indoor baseball team. The Combat Train has made a wonderful record on the indoor diamond during the season and the defeat last evening is a bitter bill for Manager Cimikowski to swallow. Joe Faber, Baltimore Oriole, pitched Clabby's team to a victory, 7 to 3. The Combat Train lost the game when they went to pieces after Lieut. Burdick was forced to quit the game. Leo Cimikowski contributed his share of errors to the game some of them being costly.

FIRPO-TOWNSEND FIGHT IS ONLY EXHIBITION

Monte Carlo, Feb. 19.—What had been advertised as a fight between Luis Firpo, the Argentine heavyweight and Jack Townsend, American negro, turned out tonight to be nothing but an exhibition staged by Firpo with Townsend and Harry Drake, a light heavyweight from England.

ARMY-NAVY CLUB TO PLAY HARTFORD ALL STARS AT PARISH HALL ON SUNDAY

Led by "Dutch" Leonard, guard extraordinary of the Hartford Kaceys, the All Stars of Connecticut will clash with the Army-Navy five in Parish hall next Sunday afternoon. The All-Stars lineup will be composed of four captains and one coach picked from the five leading teams in the state and will make a team of chalked court performers equal to any in New England.

In the forward line will be Rube Cohen and Heine Carrington. Cohen is a former Hartford Y. M. H. A. star and now captain of the Lyons, probable champions of the city of Hartford. Carrington is coach of the West Ends of Bristol, without doubt one of the fastest quintets in the state. At the pivot position will be Harry Benson, well known star of the Recs of South Manchester and now captain of the Company G. team of the same city. Harry is a popular player in this vicinity having performed on the local court last season with and against the local five. "Butsy" Sturn, captain and invincible guard of the All Middletown team, will hold down one of the guard positions. Butsy's running mate on the back court will be Dutch Leonard, captain of the Hartford Kaceys and considered to be one of the best back court guardians in the state.

This is the initial appearance of these players as a team in any part of the state and the management of the local club hopes that the fans will turn out en masse to get a glimpse of this all-star aggregation in action.

The famous Vesper club of Philadelphia is probably richer in tradition than any other boat club in the United States. The club won its first national eight-oared race in 1887, and since that time has captured nearly forty national banners, double the number of any rival.

If history repeats itself next year should be a banner year for yachting, for in the past whenever there have been contests for the America's Cup the sport has enjoyed the greatest activity, and during the summer of 1926 the fourteenth series of contests in American waters for the classic trophy are expected to be sailed off Sandy Hook.

Ice baseball is being tried out as a novel winter sport in Cleveland and elsewhere this winter. The playing of baseball on skates is not altogether a new idea, as it is on record that "Pop" Anson and his colleagues of the Chicago baseball club played a full nine-inning game on skates one New Year's Day some thirty years and more ago.

NEW ENGLAND FARMING IS NOT DEAD

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

I am ready at all times and against all comers to maintain the thesis that New England farming is not dead.

But I won't deny that it has got a bad case of the "heebie-jeebies."

Now, the "heebie-jeebies" is a somewhat mysterious disease, like grippe and infantile paralysis. One can't doctor for it with much effect unless he first knows what causes it and what it is. In the absence of proven knowledge we are all of us inclined to make more or less shrewd guesses and argue for them with more or less dogmatism.

I estimate that there are something over 1,111 purely empiric guesses rambling around New England today, each one professing to be the one and only accurate diagnosis of the case. Naturally, there being that number of guesses, there are an equal number of nostrums prescribed.

You and I are, probably, no exceptions to what seems to be the rule. Doubtless we have our opinions as to what is the matter with agriculture and our home-compounded remedies which we think would cure it, I have, anyway. But I'm not going to let my pet dogma loose. I keep it chained to its kennel in my own back-yard and shall continue to do so. You may guess at it, if you please. But I warn you that guessing won't get anywhere. Also, that the answer would be apt to be conclusive to your mind, even if you should hit upon it.

In dealing with mysterious diseases of whatever outward manifestation, the wise physician seeks after the why and wherefore. He wants to know exactly what is the matter before he administers a cure or antidote. If he finds your trouble is duodenal ulcer, he doesn't dose you with remedies for rheumatism.

It's about the same with our agricultural "heebie-jeebies." The wise doctor, until he knews for sure what causes them and what they are, doles out his drugs as sparingly as possible. He doesn't follow the one-time rule of shooting a blunderbuss vaguely into the circumambient atmosphere on the chance of hitting something, somehow and somewhere. He wants to see his game before he speeds a bullet straight at it. So the wise farmer will fight shy of anybody's hit-or-miss diagnosis of farm troubles,—his own as much as his neighbor's,—and decline to accept offered dope till he knows that it is calculated to touch the right spot and do the right job.

In this I'm not planning to advocate any theories of my own about what's the matter or what might, could and should be done about it. I am going just to set forth a few facts bearing on one phase of the complicated question. It's only by compiling all the attainable or discoverable facts that we can hope, eventually, to build an impregnable explanation. So here goes:—

When I was a small boy my father bought the farm I'm now living on. He paid some money down and gave a mortgage for the balance. That meant that he was obligated not only to pay up on due time, but also to pay annual interest, meanwhile, on the mortgage. These two demands compelled him to "scratch gravel," if he hoped to satisfy them, as he did.

In those days the "eight-hour day" had never been heard of and would have been hooted off any farm, if even suggested. I was too small a chap to take very effective part in the farm work, but I could drive the cows to pasture.—You all know about what time the dawn breaks in midsummer. I was always allowed to sleep till the cows had been milked. Then it was a quick-step to breakfast and the pasture-wards excursion. Yet mother was just putting away the candles when I drifted downstairs. The cows had been milked by lantern-light, the older folks' breakfasts eaten by candle light. It was barely dim dawn, filtering faintly out of the eastern sky, when I was on my way to pasture with the cows. By that time, my father and older brother were out in the hayfields, hard at work. If it was light enough to see where to swing a scythe, it was light enough to begin the day's labor.

Moreover, with the exception of an occasional two minutes stop to swig a drink of water from the little brown jug, concealed under a dew-dripping swathe for the sake of coolness, and a scant half-hour for dinner, the work was continued as long as daylight lasted or showers failed to break it off. Then, when the long shadows began to creep from the westward, "Bub," that was I,—was sent after the cows and supper was eaten, again by candle-light.

Nor was this method of work exceptional. It was the rule with all our farming neighbors. The farmer who didn't have his "chores" finished and his field-work begun before the first sunlight tipped the mountain summits was set down as "shiftless" or something worse. Many a morning, as I have been hurriedly getting into my small boy's clothes in the half-dark, I have seen the big farmer who owned the 55-acre meadow across the road letting down the bars into it and setting the pace with his five-foot scythe for the hired men who followed him, all sweeping rhythmically across the field, in as orderly and irresistible a line as a troop of disciplined soldiery. Sometimes it would still be so duskish that I could not pick out the individuals. But the on-moving mass was clear enough. They used to work two hours or more before breakfast was sent down to them from the big farmhouse.

Then they allowed themselves 20 minutes for that meal and another 20 minutes at half-past eleven for dinner. They got their supper back at the house, after it had grown too dark to work longer at the hay.

These were days, remember, when the sun rose before four a. m. and didn't set till eight p. m. Fifteen hours a day.—leaving out the time taken for meals, etc., was nothing unusual.

Many of the farm-houses which I knew boasted families of six or eight or even a dozen children. They wore simple garments mostly of home-made construction,—but they were clothed. They ate simple food mostly farm-produced,—but they were adequately nourished. They were sent to school during school seasons and grounded at least in "the three R's." They went to church and Sunday school in carefully guarded "go-to-meetin' " suits. When not in school, they were early introduced to such small tasks as driving cows, bringing in wood, drawing water, and other things fitted to their strength. As soon as old enough and sturdy enough they took their share in the regular farm work the burden of which was increased slowly as strength and aptitude grew.

The crops raised were not greatly varied. Corn, potatoes, oats, wheat, rye, onions, a little buckwheat, a small patch of cabbages, the usual handy kitchen garden,—these were the "standbys." But the biggest and most important crop, after all, was the hay. And such crops of timothy and clover as they used to raise! Why, the same fields which now produce scarcely enough to reach the "big beam" in the barn used to roll up loads which we had to pitch, not only over that "big beam," but over the purlin-plate tie which spanned the bay eight feet higher. Sometimes we had to improvise scaffolds over the threshing floor to accomodate the surplus. It was the butter and cheese which came from this forage which was largely relied on for income.

Yet the prices obtained for such things were exceedingly low, judged by present-day standards. Butter had to be extra fancy to fetch a "York shilling" per pound,—twelve and a half cents. Cheese sold at half that price. Eggs ran anywhere from five to twelve cents a dozen. Those who sold hay thought themselves lucky to get $4 a ton for it, delivered.

Nevertheless, those old farmers were able to support big families, steadily improve the value of their farms, pay off mortgages and lay by a little something for possible 'rainy days." Now, the owners of those same farms are lucky if they can get enough off them to pay taxes and,—buy gasoline!

I can easily imagine the reader who is a product of the twentieth century, turning up his nose at this brief record of old-time farming methods and saying, But who wants to be a 15-hours-a-day slave to even a farm? Who wans to live a life of unending labor? Who wants to eat breakfast by candle-light on July mornings, and pitch hay by moonlight on July evenings?"

Beg pardon, but that's something I can't be cajoled or flouted or bullyragged into discussing. Wild horses could'nt drag me into the arena in which that debate rages. It's an entirely different question from the one toward whose solution I set out to contribute one small testimony.

The question was simply how the old farmers used to make a living off farms which younger and stouter men abandon as hopeless. I don't presume to say that the facts I have related completely and sufficiently answer that question. But they certainly have a bearing on it, are germane to it.

Who wants to mow grass with an old scythe? Who wants to dig potatoes with a rusty hoe? Who wants to reap oats with a heavy cradle?"—Nobody, so far as I know. Machines do such things quicker.

But, again, that isn't the strictly limited question I'm trying to cast a little light on. I might ask, in response:—

"Who wants his farm to return him an income? Who wants his fields to grow better and better, instead of wear out? Who wants to see the rural portion of the land prosperous?"—Why, everybody.

The question is why farms so sel-dom return an income; why fields wear out instead of grow better; why rural communities fail of the prosperity which is their due. They used to do these things. Why don't they, now?

In this talk I am simply bearing testimony to one fact which seems to me admissible evidence. If it doesn't mean anything to you, esteemed reader, you have the unquestionable right to reject it and strike it from the record. You're the judge.

There wasn't any gold nor were there any automobiles in those days. Perhaps, if there had been, our hard-working ancestors would have fallen for the eight-hour day and spent the remainder of summer's sunny hours on a golf course or motoring to and from one. I don't pretend to know. They might have. I don't admit that they were so much wiser or foresighted than we are as some try to make out. The fact remains that they didn't. They didn't event allow much time for pitching "quaits" or playing "rounds," games which were within their cognizance.

"Do you really think we ought to go back to the old methods and do the old hard work in the old hard way?" I seem to hear some of you asking that.

No, sir; No, ma'am, I do NOT. We should be degenerate descendants of worthy sires if we didn't learn in a hundred years how to do more things and how to do them better than the men of 1835. Unfortunately, so far as the average farmer is concerned, he isn't "getting there with both feet" as his granddad did. Why not?

Do you s'pose, by any chance, it may be in part because he fails to show an equal amount of industry, of thrift, of self-denial, of foresight? Those old 'uns did the best they knew how with such tools as they had. We young 'uns know more and have better tools and the same land. We ought to be able to give those ancestors cards and spades and still beat them, off-hand.

Why don't we?—You tell, please.

THE FARMER.

PENALTY NEEDED FOR RECKLESS JITNEY DRIVERS

"Some drastic emergency method of endorsement" to curb recklessness in the operation of jitneys will be recommended to the legislature by the state motor vehicle department, according to the current issue of the department bulletin. As the law now stands, it is difficult to discipline any one, other than the driver, for the operation of jitneys at excessive speeds, and if will be proposed that a law be enacted compelling the revocation of the registration of any jitney bus found to be operated illegally.

Some of the jitneys are as large and cumbersome "as a three and one-half ton truck with a practically unlimited potential speed," it is pointed out. "In view of this fact and because there have been many justified complaints of unusual speeds on the highways by such vehicles in violation of the finding of the certificate of the public utilities commission and in violation of the state law, and because it has appeared that arrest in itself punishes only the operator and not the carrier and consequently is ineffective," it appears to the department that the present session of the legislature ought to take action.

"The state through its public utilities commission, authorizes these specialized vehicles for specialized service under particular conditions carefully laid out," continues the bulletin. "It is fair to demand that the carrier so authorized be required to see that the operatives are within the meaning of the letter of the specifications under which they operate and at all times in obedience to the law. In short, it appears necessary to take hold of the public service bus situation from the disciplinary standpoint."

Overloading of long-distance high-speed jitneys ought not to be allowed under any circumstances, in the opinion of the department, but it may be wise to exercise some latitude on short run jitneys in cities.

Discussion of bills affecting the regulation of motor vehicles now pending in the legislature is continued from the January bulletin. "There is some sentiment to the effect that the public is not well enough served in distribution of licenses and registrations and it is suggested that, because the existing offices are crowded by last-minute applications, both by mail and in person, around the first of each year, there ought to be more branch offices," says the bulletin, continuing: "The department is in favor of more branch offices. To establish them not only means better service but also easier administration." It further states that if the ligislature decides to grant them, and the necessary appropriations be forthcoming, the office or offices so authorized will of course be forthwith established. Incidentally a plan for simplifying the application forms for motor vehicle registration certificates and operators' licenses to be used for the coming year will be considered.

Among the bills discussed are those to provide "neutral zones" at the end of each year and the beginning of the new year, during which people who intend to register their cars for the new year could operate their cares on their old markers. These propositions are considered to be impractical, as "the whole theory of the marker is to provide prompt and accurate identification." The department regards such proposals as plans that would put premiums on laziness. The bulletin says that "there must continue to be an exact time (day, hour and minute) for legal termination of one authority and the beginning of another. No other plan is practical."

It is made clear that the purpose of the bulletin in discussing proposed legislation affecting motor vehicles is to present all available information and observations on the subjects under consideration so that whatever action is taken by the legislature on these matters of constantly increasing importance will be in the light of all the data at hand.

DAMAGE BY DOGS COSTS STATE $10,000

"Why has anyone a right to keep a partially trained wolf and allow him to roam at large and hunt his living?" said Commissioner of Domestic Animals James N. Whittlesey this week in a talk on the dog laws to the Farmers' association of the general assembly. A dog is a domesticated wolf, declared the commissioner.

Over $10,000 a year is paid for damage to sheep by dogs, said Commissioner Whittlesey, but if the state can-not prevent the killing of sheep by dogs the paying of damages to sheep raisers will never make sheep husbandry pay. In 1919 the assembly passed a "roaming dog" law; in 1921 it improved it somewhat; in 1923 there was another amendment but Superior Court Judge Allyn L. Brown in a case in Tolland county decided that the present law did not constitute a direct prohibition against allowing a dog to roam. Poultry, live stock and domestic animals are not free to roam about and do damage without the owner paying for it. A bull is not allowed to roam even on the owner's premises after the bull is two years old, and the commissioner said he could not see why dogs should be allowed more privileges.

He told the farmers that a slight increase in the price of dog licenses would bring beneficial returns to the state. Under existing conditions and the raise effected a few years ago there has been $10,000 of the dog money turned over to Connecticut Agricultural college for the concentrated flock of sheep raised for sale; the returns to towns had increased from $52,000 to $67,500 and if the dog licenses — on both male and female dogs—was raised 75 cents it would further increase the revenue to towns $40,000 a year. Commissioner Whittlesey said some towns tax dogs as property besides exacting the license fee. The commissioner is in favor of a law exempting them from property tax and raising the license fee. He said he had failed to find a dog owner who objected to paying 75 cents more on his dog. The dog kennel license returns have doubled in four years, he said, and the kennel owners are very much in favor of the impounding of stray and vagrant dogs.

The commissioner said some of the waste and unused land in Connecticut had better adaptability for sheep husbandry than for anything else, but dogs roaming sheep-killing dogs make it impossible to utilize it for such purposes.

ASKS RECEIVER TO DISSOLVE PARTNERSHIP

Gurdon R. Bourque of New London, who is in partnership with Frank T. Creem at 15 Hobron street under the name of the G. R. Bourque Electrical Co., has brought suit in the Superior court for the appointment of a receiver for the company. He alleges that he has given notice to Creem of his intention to dissolve the partnership, that there are claims and demands requiring attention, and the books and papers of the company are in the hands of the defendants and he wholly neglects to attend to the business of settling the affairs of the company. Papers in the suit were filed Thursday at the office of George E. Persons, clerk of the superior court.

Papers were also filed in a suit against Alexander Loper of Stonington doing business in the name of Loper Fire Alarm Co., by the Westinghouse Traction Brake Co., Wimberdin, Pa. The claim is for $824. Both suits are returnable to the superior court in March.

CONSTIPATION means INEFFICIENCY

Watch your bowels! Constipation produces disease, misery, inefficiency, premature old age, senility. Have your bowels moved today? If not, you are constipated. They should act at least twice daily to be healthy. They should be kept open to carry off the parts of food the body does not use, and which, if left in the body, become horrible and loathsome poisons which breed sickness and often fatal disease. If your bowels don't move, they need help badly

Dr. Caldwell's
SYRUP PEPSIN
The Family Laxative

—gently opens the gates of clogged-up bowels and allows nature to restore a healthful condition. It is the prescription Dr. Caldwell used for years in his extensive practice and consists of a pleasing liquid combination of Egyptian senna, pepsin and aromatics. People have used it for over 30 years, and it has kept millions healthy and well.

It Helps Nature Do What Our Modes of Living Prevent

The work of professional men, clerks, bookkeepers, students, shop men and nearly every one today, because of deficient muscular activity, tends to produce constipation. If you are constipated, you need Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. 10,000,000 bottles used annually prove its effectiveness.

It is sold everywhere medicine is sold—and guaranteed. Try it at our risk. Your druggist will return your money if it fails to do as promised.

HINMAN'S NOMINATION CONFIRMED BY BOTH THE HOUSE AND THE SENATE

(Special to the Bulletin)

Hartford, Feb. 19—George E. Hinman of Willimantic was confirmed as an associate judge of the supreme court here today in both the house and senate by flattering votes in each house. In the house he was unanimously confirmed and in the senate there was only one dissenting vote.

George E. Hinman came to this state in 1891, locating in Willimantic. There he was editor of the "Willimantic Journal" for three years. He began the study of law in 1895 and was admitte dto the bar in 1899 and then held various town offices and was prominent in politics. He was assistant clerk of the house in 1899, clerk in practiced law in Willimantic. He has 1903 and clerk of bills in 1905, 1907 and 1911 and engrossing clerk in 909. He was secretary of the republican state central committee from 1902 to 1914. He was elected attorney general and was then appointed to the superior court bench by Governor Marcus in 1914 and served from 1915 to 193, H. Holcomb.

The business of the day follows:

THE HOUSE

The house was called to order at 11.30 by Speaker Darbie. Prayer was offered by Chaplain Lewis. The committee on military affairs reported favorably on the project of state armories at Manchester and Bristol. As the bills carried an appropriation they were sent to the committee on appropriations.

The committee on roads, bridges and rivers, reported unfavorably on bills creating trunk line roads in the towns of Weston, Wilton, Westport, Norwalk, Southbury, Southport, Stevenson, Middlebury and Monroe and the bills were rejected. This committee reported favorably on H. B. 692, that provides that railroad companies shall keep in repair all structures over or under their tracks at any highway crossing and that the municipality where the structure is located shall give written notice of any defect in any such structure to the agent of the railroad Co.

Committee on cities and boroughs reported favorably on the bill concerning the salaries of officers of the city of Putnam. The bill was sent to the judiciary. The bill that concerned the repayment of monies paid for liquor licenses in Fairfield county that had been referred to the appropriations committee, was in the opinion of committee a proper subject for consideration by the claims committee, and it was so referred. The committee on military affairs reported that the reports of the adjutant general and quartermaster general should be accepted and placed on file in the office of the secretary and it was so ordered.

Hinman's Nomination Confirmed

The nomination by the governor of Frank D. Haines as an associate judge of the supreme court was confirmed by a vote of 216 to 1. The nomination of George E. Hinman for the same position was unanimously confirmed with a vote of 214.

The bill giving Waterbury permission to issue water bonds was passed. In concurrence with the senate S. B. 95 relating to building and loan associations and S. B. 233 relating to saving bank investments were rejected.

Notices were given and at 12.24 the house adjourned till Friday morning at 11.30.

SENATE

Senator Shaw of the Twenty-fourth district occupied the chair in the senate today.

The committee on cities and boroughs reported favorably on senate bill 237 concerning the erection of trade school buildings and providing for the purchase of property for schools in towns where a trade or vocational school is maintained. The report was accepted and the bill rejected. Senator Smith chairman of the committee stated that the committee on education had under consideration another bill covering the same subject.

The committee on incorporations reported favorably on the bill authorizing Cheney Brothers of Manchester to increase its capital to $20,000,000 The committee also made a favorable report on the bill amending the charter of the Waterbury Button company Both bills were tabled for calendar.

The committee on the judiciary reported favorably on the governor's nomination of Frank D. Haines of Middletown and George E. Hinman of Willimantic to be justices of the supreme court of errors and judges of the superior court. On this motion of Senator Cronin both reports were accepted. The senate by unanimous vote confirmed both nominations. The first vote was on the nomination of Judge Haines who received twenty-five votes the total number of ballots cast. There were twenty-six votes on the ballot for the nomination of Judge Hinman and they were all in favor of his confirmation.

The committee on the judiciary reported unfavorably on Bills Nos. 60 and 210, to make Armistice day a legal holiday. Senator Cronin, in explaining the report of the committee, said the bills were strongly opposed by manufacturing, banking and other interests. While there was some sentiment for it the committee felt that there was not enough sentiment in the state to warrant the making of Armistice day a legal holiday. The report were accepted and the bills were rejected.

An unfavorable report was received from the committee on the judiciary on senate bill No. 211 concerning the transmission lines of public utilities corporations. The bill was rejected.

The bill amending the charter of the Fourth Meriden Mutual Benefit Building and Loan association was referred to the committee on incorporations.

An unfavorable report was received from the committee on finance on the bill authorizing the city of Bridgeport to issue bonds to the amount of $3,980,000. The report was accepted and the bill rejected.

Reject Smoking Ban

The committee on public health and safety reported unfavorably on the bill regulating smoking on public service cars. The purpose of the bill was to prevent the smoking of pipes, cigars and cigarettes in cars. The report was accepted and the bill rejected.

A petition from David B. Decker and other in opposition to the passage to an act entitled "an act authorizing the shellfish commission to lease certain shellfish grounds" was referred to the shellfish committee.

The bill making an appropriation for the county of Fairfield for refunding of liquor license as required by chapter 164 of the public acts was referred to the committee on claims on the recommendation of the committee on appropriations.

The committee on finance reported favorably on a bill to authorize the city of Waterbury to issue water bonds to the amount of $800,000 the bonds to run for forty years. The report was accepted and the bill passed under suspension of rules and transmitted to the house.

There was only one matter on the calendar starred for action. It was the substitute for house bill No. 22 which provides that "no person shall take, assist in taking or attempt to take any fish through the ice with any tip-up bob o rother device from any Willimantic reservoir situated in the town of Bolton and Vernon from February 1, 1925 to April 30, 1928." It was passed.

Senator Cronin directed the attention of the senators to the necessity of providing more business for the senate by making committee reports, and Senator Smith, chairman of the committee on cities and boroughs announced that in future his committee will begin hearings at 1.30 instead of 2 o'clock.

The senate adjourned to Friday at 11.15.

Rub It On At Bed Time

For Deep Chest Colds

All colds should be treated with vapors, for vapors alone can carry the medication DIRECTLY to the air passages and lungs.

Vicks is a "vapor" treatment in salve form. For deep chest colds you first apply hot wet towels over throat and chest to open the pores, then massage briskly with Vicks for 5 minutes, spread on thickly and cover with a flannel cloth.

Vicks not only penetrates like a poultice or plaster, but the ingredients, vaporized by the body heat, are inhaled all night long.

This double action usually checks the most stubborn cold overnight.

NEW EXCHANGE FOR S. N. E. TEL. CO. AT NEW LONDON TO COST $330,000

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Feb. 19.—The Southern New England Telephone company, which acquired the site on Washington street where its general office now stands, will follow its predicted plan of erecting a modern office building on the street during next year. This announcement came today from Frank M. Dooley, Jr., New Haven, of the commercial service division of the company, in addressing the Kiwanis club at its weekly session in this city. Mr. Dooley stated that the new structure would cost probably $330,000 and will be for the sole occupancy of the business offices and exchange. The contract at the Crocker House annex, now occupied by the exchange, will expire within another year.

Mr. Dooley also stated that it was planned by the company to cause a special cable to be laid between New Haven and New London and Norwich which will connect New London with the cable that passes through Willimantic. It is also planned to lay a cable from Willimantic to Hartford which will connect New London and New York by two cables instead of one as is now the case.

Rev. William Melville, formerly of New London, now located in Omaha, where he is pastor of a church, was in New London this week visiting his father, Joseph Melville, who is seriously ill with kidney trouble at Lawrence hospital, where the patient recently underwent an operation.

Police Sergeant Samuel Hick resumed duty today in charge of the 3 p. m. squad after having been confined to his home, Blydenburg avenue, several days as a result of a severe cold and tonsilitis.

H. R. Douglas, contractor, tonight reported to the police that he had been informed that lumber was being stolen from the Barrows building, in course of construction, corner of Golden and Green streets, and that the thefts were then going on. Patrolman Patrick Sheehan was assigned to the complaint and visiting the structure found only an aged woman picking up bits of wood for kindlings, and that no theft was being committed.

Miss Emily Dawley returned to her home in Stonington today, having been under treatment at Home Memorial hospital a fortnight.

Floyd Gallup of Waterford has gone to St. Petersburg, Fla., where he will remain several weeks.

Attorney Frank L. McGuire is in Pittsburgh, where he will be detained several days on business.

Another new fire alarm box was installed today by Chief Rose when Box 161 was located at the corner of New and Bayonet streets. The new box makes 60 boxes now in place throughout the city.

Hans Hellwich, mate of the Merritt-Chapman-Scott Wrecking Co., Inc., tug Commissioner, died late last night at Lawrence hospital from blood poisoning, getting an infection of the hand several days ago, when that member became lacerated in a block and tackle. Mr. Hellwich leaves no near relatives.

A few hours prior to his death, late yesterday, Edward Burckle, Bank street, and Mrs. Minnie T. Wilson, of Brooklyn, N. Y., sold the structure on the east side of Bank street adjoining the Empire theatre, to the Post & Lester company, present occupants of the structure. Mrs. Daisy Klinck Clarke and Mrs. Florence Klinck Crandall, of this city; Edward V. and Lucille A. Wilson, of Brooklyn, and Doris Kukuck, Larchmont, N. Y., who also had an interest in the property, also quitclaimed to the purchasing company.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operator's license of William H. Long, 16 Robinson street, to be suspended. Long in the police court last Monday, was convicted of the charge of operating a motor vehicle last Saturday night while under the influence of liquor. A fine of $100 was imposed.

Miss Edna Green resumed her duties as stenographer in the office of City Clerk Julian D. Moran today, having been ill at her residence on Home street for several days.

Edward R. Burckle, 68, of 908 Bank street, died late yesterday at his home after a long illness. Mr. Burckle was the son of the late J. G. Burckle, a former marketman and was employed by his father for many years. Of late years he has been a real estate agent. Mr. Burckle is survived by a sister, Mrs. C. D. Wilson, of Brooklyn; four nieces, Mrs. Waldo B. Clarke and Mrs. Herbert O. Crandall of this city; Miss Lucille Wilson, of Brooklyn, and Mrs. William Kurkuck, Larchmont, N. Y., and by a nephew, Edward V. Wilson, of Brooklyn. Mr. Burckle was owner of race horses a number of years ago.

Michael Connors, about 70, a resident of New London many years, died late last night at Lawrence hospital, where he had been under treatment for several weeks. He is survived by a daughter, who resides in New York.

Mrs. Catherine Bonville, 60, widow of Joseph Bonville, died late yesterday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Charles U. Sauter, 372 Montauk avenue. Mrs. Bonville formerly resided in Meriden and moved to New London about eight months ago. She had been in ill health several weeks. Mrs. Bonville is survived by two daughters, besides Mrs. Souter, they being Mrs. Joseph Gaffney, Bridgeport, and Mrs. Richard Halliwell, Waterbury, and by two sons, Bernard and Joseph Bonville, both of Meriden. Three grandchildren also survive.

Mrs. Harold Sargent and infant son, of Ann street; Mrs. Michael Seerano and infant son, Eldredin avenue, Groton; Miss Ruth Lamotte, Niantic; Mrs. Oscar James and infant son, Stonington and Miss Louise Graber, Niantic, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed today.

The 65th anniversary of St. John's Literary society, was celebrated last night with a banquet at the Hotel Mohican and was attended by a large assemblage of members. The principal speaker of the occasion was Rev. Raymond O'Callahan, curate at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, who took for his subject, Conditions in Europe. Rev. Father Callahan's utterances proved most interesting and instructive. Other speakers were William T. May, Attorney John C. Geary, Edward S. Neilan and Rev. Thomas H. Tiernan, formerly curate at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, now located at Unionville. The officers were all re-elected.

Fire caused considerable damage to the residence of Frank Silva, 169 Main street this afternoon when an oil stove exploded. Besides the residence being damaged, much of the furnishings of the house were destroyed or damaged. Mr. and Mrs. Silva were not at home when the fire occurred. When they went out they left an oil stove burning. The supply tank finally exploded, causing a quantity of oil to be scattered near the stove with the result that the fuel became ablaze and ignited the furnishings. Clouds of smoke were noticed issuing from the house by some passerby and an alarm was rung in from Box 26, corner of Main and Federal street. On the arrival of the firemen the blaze was burning briskly and several lines of chemicals were stretched to the building, as was one line of water. The water was not used, however, for the chemicals sufficed to extinguish the flames. The damage to the building and to the household effects will entail a loss estimated at $1,000.

A Polish youth in running across Main street, near Crystal avenue, last night was knocked down by an automobile operated by an employe of the Star garage, Bank street. When the machine was brought to a stop the boy was lying beneath the engine and it was believed that he was seriously hurt. The youth was taken to the office of a physician, where an examination shewed that he was suffering only from minor bruises. The boy resides on North Bank street.

It is reported that a collection agency is making collection of debts in New London and that there is to be hard work put in, to the end that some of the debtors shall be made to settle.

There is a proposition before the city council for the improvement of Maple avenue, but what will be done in the direction of making the improvements cannot be told until the matter has been reported to the council and that body decides whether the money necessary to make the street what it should be will be appropriated. Maple avenue is but one of the highways that are in need of improvements. It is an untravelled highway compared with many in the city and for that reason the council may balk at making the improvements asked for. There are many streets that are travelled to a much greater extent than is Maple avenue and residents along them as well as parties who drive over them are clamoring for repairs in them. The city council must sooner or later recognize the fact that permanent repairs must be carried on to some extent every year and that in that way only can highways result that will stand the wear and cut down the maintenance bills. Examples of the value of permanent streets are Water street, Broad street and on State street, where little or no money has been expended in many years for repairs.

TO CHANGE OLD BACON HOTEL, COLCHESTER STAGE TERMINAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Feb. 19.—The Garitt property on Bank street is to undergo another change. It is contemplated now to make two stores where there is but one large one at present. The building has undergone many changes in a half century. It was formerly the Bacon hotel, when John L. and William Bacon were the owners. Then it became a cafe and the late Charles Kunzleman conducted it for many years and made some money there. It later was a restaurant and one of the best in the city when William H. Wordell was the manager. It was the first restaurant of the pretentious sort that New London had; but it did not stay as such long. It was afterward altered and was occupied by Hirsch, who still is the tenant. Now the store is to be split in halves. As the Bacon hotel it was well known in all this section. The Colchester stage made it a terminal and from there went and came all who departed from and entered New London from the old rubber town of Colchester. Munsell, a barber, occupied the basement under the hotel, and the steamer Sunshine, which for many years was operated to all the towns on the Connecticut river as far as Chester, made its landings at the wharf opposite the hotel. A large bell on the wharf announced the arrival and departure of the steamer and the hotel had its porter at the boat as often as the craft arrived. It was there that the late Morris W. Bacon, who was purser for many years of the steamer City of Boston, and Henry Bacon, purser of the City of New York, famous Norwich line boats to New York, got their start in life. No hotel between New York and Boston was better known than was the hostelry of the Bacon brothers.

MRS. M'GRAIL SENT TO NORWICH STATE HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Feb. 19.—Mrs. Michael McGrail, 24 Bellevue place, who became suddenly insane at her home last night and disappeared in scanty attire, only to be located and taken charge of by the police, displayed violence early this morning. City Physician George P. Cheney, who was attending the woman, ordered her committed to the Norwich state hospital for the insane for observation. Acting Lieutenant James D. Gaffney and Patrolman John Foley went to the McGrail residence and took charge of the woman, conveying her to the asylum.

WOMAN'S BARITONE VOICE ASTONISHES RADIO FANS

A former Norwich young woman, Mrs. Jeremiah Riordan, whose maiden name was Della Dufresne, is given special notice by the Bronx Home News because of her singing over the radio.

The News says:

One of the most remarkable radio entertainers of the present time and one who has been singing for the benefit of the radio public since radio entertainment became the vogue, is Della Riordan, 203 W. 112th St. Mrs. Riordan's voice is remarkable for the reason that she is possessed of one of the rarest of gifts, that of being able to sing baritone so as to resemble a man's voice and to sing her own natural mezzo-soprano.

Mrs. Riordan spent her early life in Norwich, Conn., where she was born. She began singing at the age of seven and since that time she has been before the public as an entertainer.

Since the advent of the radio she has become well known to residents of Harlem and the Bronx as well as millions in other sections of the country who watch eagerly for announcement of her singing in the radio programs. Last night Mrs. Riordan sang from WNYC and will soon be announced by stations WEAF and WJZ.

An amusing incident related by Mrs. Riordan is the tale of a dinner party in Jersey City at which a party of men were listening in on the concert. It seems that after Mrs. Riordan finished singing one of the men suggested that the singer must be a great big powerful woman.

In the midst of the discussion one man suggested that he call the radio station and inquire what sort of person the singer was. He was informed that she was a small woman with a normal woman's voice. The party was satisfied but much comment passed around the table as to how such a thing was possible.

Mrs. Riordan is the mother of two little boys to whom she is devoted. She says that her profession makes very exacting demands upon her time, but the boys come first. When she was asked how it was possible for her to simulate the voices of a man and at the same time sing a sweet natural soprano, she replied that it was due to the peculiar and rare construction of her vocal organs.

She has unusual control over her voice because of the height of the roof of her mouth, which is greater in her case than in the average person. Mrs. Riordan's voice has a range of two octaves in the lower voice and an additional octave in the higher soprano, an unusual accomplishment in a singer.

When she was a child, Mrs. Riordan attended schools for the purpose of training her voice. A little later she went to Providence, where she became a pupil of Prof. Babcock at the Providence Conservatory of Music. She at first elected to pursue the operatic profession, but was induced by her family to give up the idea.

Now she intends following her own inclinations in the matter and has under consideration several offers from musical directors in the large cities of the east. Mrs. Riordan was at one time in vaudeville and was well known to patrons of the Keith Circuit. She said she gave up her career for the sake of the two little boys, but has decided to go upon the operatic stage.

Connecticut College

The teams for the Connecticut College basketball season have been chosen. There will be six games for which the schedule is already planned:

Tuesday, Feb. 24—Senior-Junior I, Freshman-Sophomore II.

Friday, Feb. 27—Freshman-Sophomore I, Senior-Junior II.

Tuesday, March 3—Senior-Sophomore I, Junior-Freshman II.

Friday, March 6—Junior-Freshman I, Senior-Sophomore II.

Tuesday, March 10—Senior-Freshman I, Junior-Sophomore II.

Friday, March 13—Junior-Sophomore I, Senior-Freshman II.

The basketball games are well attended, the gymnasium being always crowded. There are certain sections of the hall set off for the various classes who are led by their cheer leaders. Many visitors also attend.

From the teams chosen it is expected that this will prove the best season ever.

It is not only in the orchestra that one finds true music lovers; it is not those who have the best seats at a concert who enjoy it most; it is these who seek good music and great artists by depriving themselves of some other pleasure to get some rush seat at a concert who appreciate well known artists. At Kreisler's concert in New London, some small boys were noted waiting for the second balcony door to open. A curious bystander rudely "listened in" on their conversation:

"Hardly any kids here tonight, are there?"

"Nope, weren't many at Rachmaninoff's concert either, but when I was in Hartford I heard Paderewski an' there were just gobs of boys there."

CHILD HIT BY AUTO SUFFERS BROKEN THIGH

Bernice Earhart, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Earhart of 315 Laurel Hill avenue, is a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital, suffering with a fractured femur or thigh bone, resulting from being struck by an automobile Thursday noon.

The little girl had been playing with the daughter of a neighbor and about noon time stepped off the sidewalk on Laurel Hill avenue, directly in front of an automobile driven by Albert F. Shugrue of 28 River avenue. Mr. Shugrue brought his machine to a quick stop, but the forward wheel of the car ran over the child's foot.

A machine owned by Harry Land stood nearby and Mr. Land quickly ran the little girl to the hospital where her injuries were treated.

Among Mt. Holyoke Debaters.

Miss Margaret Chapin of Norwich Town, a student at Mt. Holyoke college, is one of the squad of eight selected after a trial debate from which four will be selected to represent the college in an intercollegiate debate.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

New York, Feb. 19—Considerable irregularity in price movement developed in today's stock market with business confined largely to professional traders. Total sales fell well below one and one half million shares.

The "secondary reaction," which invariably follows the first rally after a sharp decline, took place during the day. The selling came largely from traders who had brought stocks "for a turn" during Monday's drastic turnout. The usual Thursday rumors about an increase in the re-discount rate were circulated during the day, and again proved groundless. Some speculative disappointment was caused by the failure of the directors of the National Lead and Texas Gulf Sulphur Companies to increase the regular dividends, closing quotations of these stocks showing net losses of two and 1 3-8 points respectively.

Impressive buying of Baldwin Locomotive, which carried that stock up to a new high for the year at 139 3-4, was one of the day's features, the closing quotation of 138 3-4 representing a net gain of 2 3-4 on the day. American Locomotive dropped from 121 1-2 to 119 1-2 and then rallied to 120, off 1 3-8 on the day. Dividend action on the stock, due today, was postponed one month, owing to the absence of President Fletcher. United States Steel common showed a net loss of 1 3-8 at 128 3-8.

Strength and activity of New Haven common, which touched 34 1-2, the highest price since 1922, and closed slightly below that figure for a net gain of 1 5-8, was the outstanding development in the railroad list. Good buying also was noted in Frisco common which advanced two points to 69 7-8, and then cancelled about half its gain. Texas and Pacific also touched a new top for the year at 55 7-8. Delaware and Hudson, Gulf, Mobile and Northern preferred, Hudson and Manhattan preferred and Frisco preferred sold one to two points higher.

Heaviness was noted, however in St. Paul common and preferred, Baltimore and Ohio, Norfolk and Western, Union Pacific, Chicago and Northwestern, Missouri Pacific and St. Louis Southwestern, all of which closed a point or so lower.

Air Reduction, which sold as low at 35 1-8 yesterday, today soared to 109, where it was up 7 1-2 points on the day. A bullish demonstration in United Cigar Stores carried that stock up over 7 points to 55, a record price for the present 525 par shares. Operations for the raise also were successfully conducted in Utah Securities, which jumped six points to 50 7-8 and in American Foreign Power preferred, which showed a net gain of 3 1-2 at 94. United States Cast Iron Pipe fluctuated within a range of ten points, closing 4 points lower at 221.

Call money renewed at 3 1-2 per cent and then eased to 3, where it closed. Time money and Commercial Paper rates held firm with an increased demand for funds reported by the leading banks.

Foreign exchanges also showed an improved tone. Demand sterling ruled about 5-8 of a cent higher around $4.76 8-8 and French francs held steady around 5.22 1-2 cents. A better inquiry also was noted for Japanese yen, which were quoted at 39 1-4 cents or nearly a cent above the rate a month ago.

A four-hour day in industry, would be possible if workers were placed in work for which they are best fitted, in the view of Dr. Donald A. Laird, of Colgate University. He so told the New York Chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants. The difference in human abilities are amazing, he said. One coal miner loads twelve times as much coal as another, while it is not rare for one salesman to sell 350 times as much goods as another. A worker may have low ability for one type of work but high ability for another. Every plant should be combed for employes with low ability and those found transferred to work for which they have more ability, he advised.

It was in 1843 that Charles Goodyear, Yankee inventor, accidentally discovered the secret of vulcanization. The accident consisted of dropping a mixture of rubber and sulphur on a hot stove in his home. Today, says the India Rubber Review, vulcanized rubber literally holds up the stockings and trousers of the world. More than 15,000,000 motorists ride on it. More than 50,000,000 persons walk on it daily. Infants cut their teeth on it and old age uses it for false teeth. Balloons and dirigibles of rubber float aloft while submarines plough beneath the ocean surfaces propelled by electricity stored in rubber cells. Yet Charles Goodyear was pauperized by expensive law suits instituted to protect his sixty different patents which were awarded him after years of struggle, and he was deprived of the fruits of his discovery through a technical irregularity in the registration in France and England of his patents. He spent his last days in humble circumstances.

Peter and Jumper Keep Their Secret

A secret can be kept by two;
To tell a third will never do.
—Jumper the Hare.

Secrets are fun. Don't you think so? But when more than two know a secret it is very likely to soon be no secret at all. It is queer how what two people can keep to themselves three people cannot. Now Jumper

"Won't it be fun to tell everybody how bold we have been?"

the Hare and Peter Rabbit had a wonderful secret. At least, it was wonderful to them. They had been in Buster Bear's bedroom and seen Buster asleep there! They just ached to go out and boast about it. They just ached to tell everyone they met what they had done. That is just what Jumper had started to do when he met his cousin, Peter Rabbit, and then took Peter back there.

When they came out of Buster's bedroom they took care that no one saw them. "Won't it be fun to tell everybody how bold we have been?" said Jumper.

Peter scratched a long ear with a long hindfoot. He scratched the other long ear with the other hindfoot. He wobbled his wobbly little nose. He stroked his whiskers. "It would be fun if any one would believe us," said he slowly.

"Why shouldn't they believe us?" Jumper asked.

"Why should they believe us?" demanded Peter. "I didn't believe you when you first told me you had been in there, and I am your own cousin."

It was Jumper's turn to scratch a long ear with a long hindfoot. "I hadn't thought of that," said he.

"There's no fun in boasting about anything that nobody believes," declared Peter. "I know, because I've tried it. It will be a lot more fun to keep it a secret. Nobody knows we've been in there."

JURY VERDICT OF $4,000 FOR CRANE IN ALIENATION SUIT

A verdict for $4,000 damages in favor of Earle A. Crane of Lebanon was returned Thursday afternoon by the jury in the superior court at New London in Crane's suit against W. L. L. Spencer, a Lebanon storekeeper, for $15,000 damages for alienation of the affections of Crane's wife, Nellie. The verdict was returned late Thursday afternoon after the jury had been out about 70 minutes. Judge Allyn L. Brown accepted the verdict.

Spencer was under cross examination by Attorney G. Curtis Morgan most of Wednesday afternoon. He admitted having told Mrs. Crane that he would see that she would be well paid if she took care of him, and also admitted that he had made provision for her in his will.

The cross examination was resumed Thursday morning, and Attorney Morgan attempted to learn from the witness if he had been the only member of the American Mechanics lodge of Lebanon who blackballed Crane when the latter applied for membership. The witness stated that that was a lodge secret, whereupon Attorney Morgan withdrew his question.

Mr. Crane testified Thursday morning that Spencer had, in the winter of 1923, purchased underwear for Mrs. Crane and that the latter had appeared before Spencer to see if he liked it. Mrs. Crane, when placed on the stand, branded the testimony as false.

Evidence was concluded at 10.40 o'clock and the opening argument was delivered by Attorney G. C. Morgan of counsel for the plaintiff. He was followed by Attorney Charles L. Stewart, counsel for the defendant. The latter produced an able argument and called attention to discrepancies in the testimony of the plaintiff, and letters written by him. After court reconvened at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, Attorney Abel P. Tanner of counsel for the plaintiff delivered an able summation, after which Judge Allyn L. Brown charged the jury.

It is expected that the fund will reach the goal, $5,000, by this (Friday) evening when the campaign comes to a close. Max Hanover spoke briefly on the boy scout campaign and expressed the wish that the campaign will be a success.

BANQUET FOR WOOLEN OVERSEERS AND BOWLERS

The first annual banquet of the bowling teams and overseers of the Norwich and Yantic mills of the American Woolen company, was held Thursday evening at the Yantic Fire Engine House. There were over 75 present and an evening of pleasure was had with George B. Gaskell, paymaster of the Yantic mill, filling the bill as chairman.

The banquet was a forerunner of many more to follow for it is planned to form an overseers' association among the overseers of the Norwich, Yantic and Winchester plants of the American Woolen company, the purpose of which will be to enjoy good fellowship and learn to know one's fellow worker.

Activities for the evening began at 6.30 o'clock when the following appetizing menu was served under the direction of A. Zabriskie:

Grapefruit Cocktail
Clam Bisque
Roast Native Turkey
Giblet Gravy
Mashed Potatoes . Mashed Turnips
Creamed Onions . Green Peas
Cranberry Sauce
Olives Celery
Dill Pickles
Apple Pie and Ice Cream
Cakes Rolls
Coffee
Cigars Cigarettes

Immediately following the banquet, activities for the evening got off to a fine start when Frank Grieve called the Yantic bowling team to the front and after a few words of congratulation, presented them a gold duckpin, awarded as a bowling trophy, for their victory over the bowlers of the Norwich mill.

Frank Carberry, well known local entertainer, was next and he kept things lively with a fast song and dance sketch. Prof. W. J. Banfield followed with a little magic, introducing several new and novel feats of mystery, the favorite hat trick getting the usual applause from his delighted audience. From mystery the audience was taken to the land of music by Harry Spicer who favored with several vocal selections.

Charles F. Molter, agent of the Yantic mill, spoke briefly to the assembly, and, as shop talk was prohibited, his talk was along lines of humor and was well received. Robert Lyon, baritone, favored with a group of songs that were pleasingly rendered, after which A. H. Perry made an interesting speech. Down the Maine Trail, this meeting the approval of his audience.

James M. Morton, agent of the Norwich mill, with his clever stories on the Scotchmen, and other amusing anecdotes, was as usual a feature of the evening and his talk was followed by one along similar lines by Charles Harvey, superintendent of the Yantic mill. L. B. Sampson, cashier of the Norwich mill, spoke briefly on current and uncurrent topics, after which John Weller gave a hard-boiled talk on Rivets and Bolts. Herman A. Gibbs, always a popular speaker at mill banquets, proved himself "up to snuff" in his short talk as did Thomas Bedford, whose speech was well received.

Under the heading, Charles Plaskitt will explain to "Con" Hamill, "How it Is Done," these two men kept their audience in fine humor, getting ringing applause when they concluded their sketch with the whistling song, Washington Post March. A speech by Rufus Beeman, followed by a duet by Charles McNally and Sidney Shabecoff, brought the entertainment to a close, Mr. Shabecoff's encore, A Spanish Ballad, proving one of the hits of the evening. Throughout the evening a fine musical program was rendered by Thumm's orchestra of Norwich, the newest jazz numbers, waltzes and ballads being most cleverly interpreted.

Those attending the banquet as guests of the bowlers and overseers were Charles F. Molter, agent of the Yantic mill, James M. Morton, agent of the Norwich mill; L. B. Sampson, cashier of the Norwich mill; Prof. W. J. Banfield and Senator Herman A. Gibbs.

COUNTY FAIR DATES LATER IN SEPTEMBER

The New London County Agricultural society at a meeting Thursday morning in the office of Secretary Edwin V. Ross, Chapman building, voted to change the dates of the annual county fair from Labor Day week to September 17, 18, 19. For the past 20 years the county fair has opened each year on Labor Day. Among the reasons given for the change were that the society could be better able to secure better and faster horse racing. Under the prevailing dates it was found difficult to bring fast horses here for Labor Day. This year the fair will come one week previous to the Springfield fair. The first week in September is rather early for good agricultural displays as vegetables and fruit are not in condition to be exhibited. Labor Day marks the closing day of the short resort season which means that many people are out of town that day. For a number of years the heaviest attendance at the fair has come on Labor Day and it has come to be known as a one-day fair instead of a three-day fair. It also has been difficult to secure vaudeville acts for the fair as there is a heavy demand on vaudeville throughout the country at the Labor Day season.

The cattle and poultry men are unanimous in favor of the change in dates from the standpoint of humane treatment of the stock as the weather is generally exceptionally hot at Labor Day. The new dates will cut down competition from neighboring fairs, particularly the state fair at Hartford, the Worcester fair and the Willimantic Elks fair.

The building committee was authorized to prepare plans for a permanent farm machinery building, the plans to be submitted to farm machinery exhibitors for their approval, following which the matter will be referred to the executive committee. The building committee elected comprises Charles B. Bushnell, chairman, Edwin V. Ross, A. J. Bailey and Lyman L. Chapman.

Fred G. Prothero was re-elected to have charge of the exhibition hall and Avery Gallup was re-elected superintendent of cattle and was authorized to name his assistant. John H. Curry was made superintendent of the poultry department with the privilege of appointing his assistant and Kenneth H. Webb was appointed as superintendent of the automobile department. The matter of naming the judges in the various departments went over to a future meeting. A. J. Bailey and Charles D. Greenman was re-elected to the finance committee and the matter of selecting an advertising committee was left with the secretary. The secretary was also authorized to select the vaudeville numbers for the fair.

The meeting considered plans for a dog show and it was voted to have the secretary confer with the American Kennel club with a view to erecting a suitable building in which to exhibit the dogs. It was also voted that the secretary, Edwin V. Ross, and John H. Curry, investigate and recommend any changes thought advisable in the poultry department.

The meeting was presided over by President Charles B. Bushnell. The members of the executive committee present were: President Charles B. Bushnell, Norwich; Edward M. O'Brien, Montville; J. Lawrence Raymond, Lyme; Gilbert S. Raymond, Norwich; John H. Curry, Yantic; George G. Grant, Taftville; Charles D. Greenman, Norwich; Simon Brewster, Griswold; George G. Avery, New London; Edwin V. Ross, Norwich.

The Boy Rangers of America met at the home of their guide, Rev. George Warren Potter, in Niantic, on Wednesday afternoon with an attendance of 19. It was decided to start a new tribe as many boys have expressed a desire to be admitted and only 16 Rangers are allowed in each tribe.

THE PICTURE GARDEN

There's a quiet English garden in a picture on my wall
An old, old fashioned garden where the hollyhocks are tall,
The roses romp in riot and the sunflowers sway and lean;
And a lovely little lady walks the grass grown paths between.

It's a funny little garden where no flowers grows by rule;
But you know the breeze that's blowing is a perfumed breeze and cool,
A breeze that loves the blossoms as a boy did long ago;
And disorder is true order where the fox-gloves bloom and blow.

The Canterbury bells are ringing softly in the wind,
Syringa buds are blossoming for any one to find,
The sun is shining softly and the grass is gray and green,
And a lovely little lady walks the box edged paths between.

It's a picture—just a picture—on my staid and stainless wall—
Of an old, old fashioned garden, and a lady, that is all;
But it stabs the stilly silence, wakes a memory like a blow
In the heart of one who loved the two, oh, long, long ago.

Short Romances of Every Day Life

The Best Laid Plan

By Phil Moore

I COULD see Uncle Abel bending over his big ledger before I stepped into the hall. Then I turned on the light and glanced in the mirror as I hung up my coat. I wasn't exactly a beauty, but my eyes were the sort of blue that looks well with dark lashes, and there was a glow to my face.

But mother and Uncle Abel were talking.

"Did Gail go with Dwight Severance to the party?" he asked.

"No," mother answered. "She went with Roy Carruthers. He asked her first."

Uncle Abel liked Dwight Severance. He was steady as an old clock, and Roy—well, the old ladies of Westfield called him "wild." He hadn't done anything "desperate" yet, but when the wheels of life moved too slowly, he wanted to oil them up a little.

"I don't like Roy Carruthers," Uncle Abel grumbled.

"Gail is going to Dayton for a long visit," mother answered in a soothing tone, "and new scenes and new faces—"

Then I quit eavesdropping and broke in upon their conference.

When I came back from Dayton Uncle Abel was gone. My married sister, Marion, came over for the evening and we sat around the library fire talking softly. By and by mother sent Jamie to bed.

"Gail," she began, "before your Uncle Abel died he made his will. He had more than we realized. He gave something to each of us, but—now don't get excited, dear—he has left the bulk of his property to you."

"To me, mother?"

"But there is one condition," Marion put in, in her clear, incisive voice.

"But not one that will make the slightest difference to you, Gail," mother went on. "You are to have the money when you come of age—that will be in eight months—provided you don't marry Roy Carruthers. If you should ever marry him, which, of course, you haven't the remotest idea of doing, the money goes to your cousin in Putney, Harvey Titus."

"And Harvey will take precious good care of that money, if he ever gets it," pronounced Marion.

"But of course he won't ever get it," mother returned, placidly.

"I don't think I'll marry anybody. I don't mean to be a prey to any fortune hunter. I mean to do a lot of good with that money. Perhaps I'll paint the Congregational church. But one thing is certain—I mean to have wonderful clothes."

It was a new experience for me, my being an heiress. Mother wouldn't consent to my using any of my legacy in advance, so I had to make the most of my flowered organdies and my one made-over silk. But Marion said I was becoming to my clothes. I had never been exactly a wallflower, and now I became popular. Neal Connor, an up-to-date young man whose wildness left poor Roy's in the shade, was ardent in his attentions. Mother began to look worried.

"Don't be afraid, mother," I reassured her. "No fortune hunters! If I ever marry, it will be a man so rich that my little legacy will be a drop in the ocean of his colossal wealth."

"Dwight Severance isn't a fortune hunter. He has been devoted to you for years, and he has such good habits."

"But I don't like his habits of smiling with his mouth shut, and his lukewarm devotion isn't very exciting."

I was not really happy. I knew that all this attention was offered to the village heiress, not to my very self. Roy Carruthers was safe in Putney. He was working in a bank there.

By and by Roy came home. He had a new position in the National Bank. I had a little dread of a feeling of embarrassment in our first meeting, but we met in the old frank, easy way. He asked me to go to the Orpheum with him to see Ann Murdock in a photoplay. He asked mother, too, and she was going, but Jamie fell off the shed roof that afternoon and broke his collarbone, so we went alone.

On the way home Roy asked me to marry him!

"Why, Roy don't you know?"

He laughed. "Of course. I've been here four days and I know all the affairs of the bank president, the minister and the garbage man, down to the minutest details. But I love you, Gail."

Marion was with mother when I went in.

"How is Jamie?" I asked mechanically.

"Very much better. You don't need to worry, dear."

Marion gave me a searching look. "She isn't worried about Jamie, mother. Something has happened."

Then I told them.

"Well," said Marion, "I knew Roy had nerve, but this goes a little beyond."

"That's like Roy," mother explained. "When he was a little fellow, if you told him he couldn't have anything, it only made him more determined to get it. I hope you refused him kindly, Gail."

"No, mother, I accepted him!"

Mother turned pale and Marion screamed. Then we talked and talked. Marion stormed and mother pleaded. At last mother went to look at Jamie's collar bone.

Marion spoke more gently now. "My little sister, a 17-cent purse and a million-dollar disposition are a poor combination. You'll be unhappy."

"No, Marion; I shall be happy. I want to be loved, and Roy is the only man I can ever marry, knowing that he loves me for myself alone."

Well, Roy and I were married, and we went housekeeping in the old Darmer cottage. The roof leaked and we could not afford a maid. Still, you may imagine that if I was not perfectly happy I did not let mother or Marion see it. Roy was just bubbling over with happiness. One day he came in and found me crying. Sybil Horton, who had married a wealthy widower, had come to invite us to her reception.

"She came in her limousine," I sobbed.

"Is that all? I thought she came in a hearse. But we must go."

"I haven't anything to wear."

"Get your glad rags, Gail. We can afford so much."

I got the "glad rags" and we went. The day the bill came in I got another letter. It was Harvey Titus, asking me to meet him in Putney Saturday, when he would make over half of Uncle Abel's legacy to me.

"Roy, I can't believe it! Harvey Titus!"

But Roy did not seem surprised.

"Roy, you know something about this."

"I do," he confessed. "You see, his only hope was in your marrying me, and I bargained with him that if you did marry me he should give you half. Well, he has been square."

"But you haven't been square," I blared. "You have been mercenary and scheming. Oh, Roy, Roy! I can't forgive you!"

"You have another letter, Gail."

I turned pale as I read it. "It's the bill for my costume. Oh, it's enormous. What shall I do?"

"Don't worry, dear. You can pay it."

"Why, so I can, Roy, do you really love me?"

"I do, Gail."

"Then perhaps we can be happy after all."

"Perhaps we can. Will you let me ride in your limousine sometimes?" he asked, meekly.

Then we both laughed.

Ideas For Sale

By Parke Whitney

YOU haven't received your raise yet, Joe?" asked pretty Mrs. Clarkson, somewhat tremulously, as her wide, blue eyes looked yearningly across the supper table to her husband.

Joe, the good looking young husband glanced up from the food he was rapidly making disappear. "Not yet, honey. Marlowe and Crimmins are good at making promises but that's about all, as far as I'm concerned."

"Oh, dear—"

"What's wrong now, hon?" demanded hubby with a touch of censure. "We don't owe anybody."

"But we aren't saving anything. I thought—they owed you a raise."

"Sure they do, but I can't afford to kick. Marlowe and Crimmins is about the biggest wholesale house in the city, and little Joe can be easily overlooked by the big fellows when it comes to raises and promotions."

"But you said you had several suggestions—"

"I did, hon, but by the time they get to the big chief someone else gets the credit for them."

"I think that's a shame, and we needing the money."

Joe looked at her querulously. "What is the matter? Forty a week isn't so bad. We're getting by."

"That's all. There's just the two of us now, and—"

She stopped significantly, and Joe's eyes widened with understanding.

"And we haven't any money ahead for doctors' bills," he said thoughtfully. And then he slipped around to his wife's chair and smiled encouragingly. Never mind him, hon, Joe will get the raise somehow."

"If you only saw Mr. Marlowe," she said, her pretty face tilted up to his.

Joe laughed. "Marlowe? The big chief? A fine chance of bearding that boy."

"But I was reading today, Joe, where he spoke before the Chamber of Commerce. I saved it for you. He said that the trouble with business today was the lack of young men with initiative. He said men never tried to evolve any new ideas about doing tasks that others assigned them."

"That's what he says, from away up on the top of the heap," answered Joe, that if I suggest anything new someone immediately over me throws it down or else uses it and gets the credit. The only way is to attract the attention of someone near the top, and you have to wait for the opportunity."

"No, you don't, Joe," exclaimed Nellie Clarkson, eagerly. "Mr. Marlowe said that it was a false idea to wait for opportunity. He says you have to give opportunity your address."

"Give opportunity your address?"

"Yes. Look, Joe, why don't you go directly to Mr. Marlowe and tell him that you have initiative and ideas, and make him do something for you?"

Joe's eyes distended with amazement. "Go to Marlowe?"

"Yes, you're not afraid of him, are you?" she challenged. "You said you weren't afraid to talk to any man."

"I know, but—oh, all right."

The next morning a somewhat nervous Joe Clarkson stood on the threshold of Franklin Marlowe's private office.

"I came to give opportunity my address," said Joe.

Joe swallowed quickly. "I read the speech you made before the Chamber of Commerce. I believe I have initiative, and I have originated some ideas for which I never received credit. I think I am fairly observing, and I feel that if you will grant me permission to go over the whole plant I will be able to make suggestions that will save considerable money."

"You mean you want me to create a special position for you?"

"Yes, sir, at my present salary. You see," and Joe smiled. "I am trying to create an opportunity for myself."

Marlowe hesitated, and smiled. "That is bringing it home to me pretty well. I don't see but what I will have to make good and give you a chance. Now, it is up to you to make good. Have you any ideas in mind?"

"Why—not definitely," answered Joe, with confusion.

He didn't have any ideas, and that knowledge robbed him of much of the pleasure he had anticipated in telling Nellie that Marlowe had given him an opportunity to make good.

"Never mind," said Nellie encouragingly, "you'll get some good ideas."

"Say hon, you use a lot of our articles. Is there anything you can say about them that might help?"

The young wife's pretty brow puckered. "Well, I don't like the way they put up baking powder and salt and some other things. When you open the package it is only a little more than three-quarters full. I mind that much more than I would buying a smaller package or paying more money."

"That gives me an idea," exclaimed Joe.

Some days later Joe was summoned into Marlowe's office.

"Mr. Clarkson," said the firm's head, "you have made several suggestions that I think will prove of value. That central filing system of yours, making a department of stenographers instead of each executive having his own, and that system that saves several steps in handling orders, are all commendable ideas. Let me say, however, that they are mechanical. Now there are two apparently small ideas that interest me. Why did you have that bargain order we had placed for packages concealed and order instead smaller packages that we had to pay more for?"

"Well, Mr. Marlowe, we got the first order because it was for packages that were made up already. But at the price we were selling the articles for we couldn't fill the packages, and I know that women would prefer to pay more or get smaller packages than to feel themselves taken advantage of by unfilled packages?"

Marlowe nodded. "And why did you place Miss Wilson in the mailing department and Miss Butters in her place as switchboard operator?"

Joe smiled. "Miss Wilson is rather good looking, but has a somewhat unpleasing voice and does not always use the best judgment. Miss Butters is rather plain looking, but is smart and has a very pleasing voice. I found that some of the accounts we have recently lost was because of a bad impression obtained from doing business over the 'phone. And I have also observed that the men in the mailing department seem to take more interest in their surroundings with a good looking girl in their midst."

Marlow smiled. "You have what I hoped you would have—an understanding of human nature. Now I have some good ideas. One is that you continue this work at a considerable increase of salary."

A Lesson Well Learned

By Margaret Taylor

BOBS FREEMAN descended upon her sister, Barbara, one Summer afternoon with bag and baggage and announced that she had broken her engagement to Dick. Barbara was aghast, and Bobs would say no more. When Barbara's young husband came home from the city he reported a dismal young lover glooming around the town.

"She gave him no reason," Page told Barbara. "Threw him down flat and came out here."

"And she's taking up Percy Soper again. He's coming over this evening."

Bobs deliberately vamped Percy in the shadowy garden that evening. He was cautious, remembering that she had dismissed him in favor of Dick once upon a time, but Bobs tried hard and was rewarded by a kiss upon her cool cheek—after Percy had found her left hand ringless.

When at length she said she must go in, Percy invited her to ride to Laurel Beach next evening. Laurel Beach was a romantic spot, and Bobs accepted. It was late when she finally escaped. Barbara met her in the hall and stared and told her she was wrinkled and rumpled and frowzy.

"That's what I want to be!" flamed Bobs. "I want to be treated rough. Dick and I had been engaged six months and he asks if he can kiss my hand! I'm going to find a caveman and marry him. So there!"

She rushed upstairs, past Page, sneaking back to his room from the baluster, where he had heard her confession. "Whew!" he whistled. "So that's it!"

Dick took it like a soldier and said that if it were Percy she wanted it was tough for him.

"'Tain't Percy, it's rough stuff," grunted Page. "I have a plan. You use it and teach that girl a lesson."

Little suspecting that her fate had been settled by two young men at luncheon, Bobs went off with Percy. There was warm moonlight, and in a romantic spot by the sea Percy stopped the car and kissed Bobs hard and many times. She learned then that rough stuff from the wrong man was worse than having the right man ask to kiss her hand.

"Take me home," she said in a small voice. Percy obeyed, puzzled. Bobs Freeman had certainly wanted what she got.

After a satisfactory conversation with Grandmother Corliss the next morning, Dick drove away through the acres of pine trees which surrounded her house and smiled at a rough cabin, standing in among them.

That evening, at Barbara's request, Bobs sauntered through the darkness to the garden wall in search of a book. Someone rose from the other side, flung a scratchy blanket over her head and dumped her into a car. Then whissed away.

Struggling frantically, she threw the blanket off and stared at Dick, square-jawed and ferocious.

"Get back in that corner," he growled, "and keep quiet, or I'll knock your block off. You prefer being dragged off by the hair, but I prefer this way. See?"

Bobs was secretly thrilled to the eyes. Finally they stopped before a rough cabin.

"Get out!"

"I won't."

"Get out!" He dragged her in and shut the door.

"Get something to eat!"

"I won't!"

"Get something to eat and get it quick. Who d'you think you are?"

He pushed her to the rusty stove. She struggled with a fire and he smoked a cigarette, watching her with considerable enjoyment.

Finally she set a tolerable meal before him. "Open the door," he growled, "It's hotter than blazes!"

Percy was on Grandmother Corliss' piazza, asking her advice. She was a friend of his mother's he felt he had a right. She advised him to go back to Ann Appleton. Percy remembered Ann, thanked grandmother and started off. She suggested nervously that he go through the garden, but he had his car and said he must go down the drive.

Grandmother collapsed. "Those silly children! If Percy sees them he is sure to misunderstand!"

Which is what Percy did. Coming upon an oblong of light among the trees, he decided to investigate. Leaving his car, he crept forward and discovered Dick Abbott angrily facing Bobs Freeman across a littered table in a badly-lighted cabin. Suddenly Dick grabbed her and kissed her many times and hard. Bobs forgot everything in the discovery that he could be rough. Finally she sighed, lifted her head, and stared straight at Percy. Dick felt her stiffen. He turned, and the three stared at one another until Percy disappeared.

He bumped into a tree and said a word. Then, "Bobs Freeman! Well! Well!"

Dick gathered his forces. "Get some sleep," he said, gruffly. "I'm going to sit right here all night."

Bobs sank upon the cot, speechless.

The next morning she asked what they were going to do now.

"We're going to get married!"

"I wouldn't marry you for worlds," she blazed. "I hate you. You're rough and rude and horrid. Ugh!"

She darted from the cabin. Dick overtook her in three long strides and again dumped her into the car. She gave up the struggle.

They were married in a near-by village. As they came back through the trees, she wondered why they did not stop at the little cabin. Instead, Dick drew up before a big white house and led her into a room to face Grandmother Corliss and Page and Barbara.

"Ah, ha," Page crowed. "Say could not stop him—how'd you like the rough stuff?"

Bobs stared. Grandmother, the cat being half out of the bag, told her the whole story of how they tried to teach her not to be silly. Bobs fled.

Dick found her sobbing in the garden.

"Get up!"

"I wuh-won't!"

"Get up!"

"Oh, guh-go awuh-way," she sobbed. "You aren't a cuh-cave man. You even had to huh-have Puh-Page fix up a puh-plan!"

"Oh, Bobs," he said, "I don't want to be a cave-man. I want to be just a man and love you."

This completely satisfied Bobs.

Out of a Job

By Claire Wesson

SHE didn't have a job and there wasn't one in sight. Room rent was in two days, and her typewriter needed a new ribbon. The blue eyes were a bit discouraged and the mouth had lost its smile. Everything seemed so hopeless. The gray day just matched Kay Lane's mood. She was sitting on a bench near the river's edge. A high hedge screened her from passersby and the traffic on the bridge. She sat staring at the swirling dead leaves and the muddy water of the river. Suddenly a shadow fell across the leaves. A slender, youngish man with confused brown eyes stood by the bench, swaying uncertainly, and with a hand tightly clasped over the back.

"Do you mind if I—sit here?" he questioned weakly.

Before she could reply he sat down on the bench beside her with limp heaviness, and leaned back with closed eyes and shaking breath. She regarded him with suspicious eyes. Bootleg whisky had been her first impression. But there had been no trace of it at his approach.

"Excuse me for intruding," he murmured. "I didn't think there would be anyone here."

"You should be home in bed. You are ill." She said this impatiently, frowning at him. Men didn't have a bit of sense, anyway, she thought angrily.

"Yes, I agree with you." He gave a little grin. "But I don't own a home or a bed at present."

"Oh," she said. "I'm sorry I can't help you," she reflected, after a pause.

"Please—I'm not a beggar—yet," he said quickly.

"Then what are you?" She faced him squarely.

"A wanderer," he said simply.

"Recently arrived on the freighter San Pedro from South America. Acquired malaria while there, and some one acquired all but a few pesetas of my money when I arrived here. Jobs don't seem to be very numerous, either."

"Are you a job hunter, too?" she asked, with a little laugh. "We seem to have that much in common, anyway."

"I may get a ship to the West Indies tomorrow, though," he said.

"And I may get my story accepted tomorrow," she said.

"And if we don't?" he questioned cynically.

"Don't think of it!" she begged.

The street lights twinkled on.

"But won't you tell me your name, and may I not write to you if I do go away?" he pleaded. "A friend helps a lot," he added wistfully.

She looked at him with a steady keenness. Then she nodded assent. Hastily she produced a fountain pen and from a notebook tore a scribbled name and address.

"Thank you," he said quietly. "I can't give you my address because I'll be in different ports. But I'll surely look you up; and here's hoping we meet again in better luck."

"Good-by. I hope the same," she smiled.

The next day a certain story was accepted for the munificent sum of $65. And the portable got a new ribbon.

The youngish man in blue dungarees on the deck of a squat tramp steamer plowing out of the harbor looked wistfully back at the fading city. "Nice girl," he sighed. And at every port he mailed a letter.

A month later Kay Lane stories were appearing in nearly all the magazines. Success comes quickly when it does come.

She moved to a better neighborhood and acquired a little, three-room apartment—a quiet little place on the third floor. Across from her apartment was an empty one, whose tenants were a writer who was away gathering material for his stories, and an actor, who was also away much of the time on tour. So she was not disturbed when she worked. She could not write to her wanderer of the change of address, but her mail was forwarded from her old address.

Then one day the apartment across the hall was opened. One of its occupants had evidently returned, for there was a banging of doors and heavy walking.

That evening as she was trying to catch an elusive word needed in a story she was working on she was startled by a harsh voice in the neighboring apartment crying out in agony: "Help! Oh, help us! For the love of heaven, help us!" She sat frozen for a moment. Then there came a shrill scream of terror. A man's voice said brutally, "Shut up!"

She flung open the door and looked across at the door of the other apartment. She was about to turn into her room, when again came that unnatural cry.

"I'll choke you if you screech like that again!" threatened the man's voice.

Kay moved a few feet nearer the other apartment, wondering anxiously what she could do. There came another shrill scream. Just then the door was flung open and a youngish man with brown eyes emerged.

"Why!" she exclaimed. There was a moment of surprised silence.

"Wanderer!"

"You sold—" Again that terrifying scream. "Confound that parrot!" he exclaimed angrily. "You sold your story, didn't you?"

"But you—I thought you were really a wanderer. Instead, I find you a writer with a perfectly nice apartment," she accused him with a touch of disappointment in her voice.

"Just like you," he laughed. "But I honestly was out of a job that day I met you. And this apartment is only half mine. A friend shares it, but he's away now. The day I met you he had just left on a short trip and expected to be back before me, so I was locked out of my own apartment. The landlady didn't recognize me and wouldn't let me in with her pass key."

"I've been having luck lately, so that accounts for my change of address," she smiled. "But it's all so queer and unconventional," she added.

"'A meeting queer is often dear,'" he quoted with a gay smile.

Plain truth will influence half a score of men, at most a nation, or an age, while mystery will lead millions by the nose.

Famous Lion
The Lion of Lucerne, work of Thorwaldsen, was executed in 1821 in memory of 20 officers and 760 soldiers of the Swiss guards, who fell defending the Tuileries on August 10, 1792.

Let the Water Run Out
Brushes should be dried with the bristles turned downward, so the water will not soak into the backs of the brushes and loosen the bristles.

Island Really Mountain
Sunday Island, in the Pacific, is really the tallest mountain in the world. It rises 2,000 feet out of five miles of water, and is thus nearly 30,000 feet from base to the summit.

Bird Hunts Snakes

The fanciful resemblance of the long feathers of his crest to a quill pen thrust behind the ear suggested the name "Secretary" bird. This bird's habits, says Nature Magazine, are far from literary, as its business in life is hunting snakes and similar animals. It is an African, and is one of the largest birds of prey.

51 MEN WERE KILLED ALMOST INSTANTLY BY EXPLOSION IN MINE AT SULLIVAN, IND.

Greatest Disaster in History of Indiana Coal Fields—Rescue Workers Were Handicapped by Fumes Which Flooded the Mine Immediately After the Explosion—Explosion Occurred Either When Miners Cut Into Abandoned Workings or a Slight Cave-in Opened Entries in Which Gas Had Collected—Deaths Were Caused by Burns or Suffocation.

Sullivan, Ind., Feb. 20.—(By the A. P.)—In an explosion of gas that wrought the greatest mine disaster in the history of the Indiana coal fields, 51 men are believed to have been killed almost instantly this morning in the Merchants Coal company mine on the outskirts of this city.

There were 121 miners in the mine at the time of the explosion. Rescue crews went to work at once and the rescue team of the United States bureau of mines at Vincennes, Ind., reached the scene of the disaster by motor truck an hour after the terrific explosion. They were on the bottom within 35 minutes after arrival.

C. O. Thomas, check-wayman at the mine, the officials of the mine and rescue workers all were of the opinion that there is no possible chance of the men being alive.

Miners who were injured were brought to the surface at once.

The work of bringing out the dead proceeded slowly, the bodies being brought out singly. Rescue workers were handicapped by fumes of gas which flooded the mine immediately after the explosion.

Tremendous crowds thronged the mine scene soon after word of the disaster spread throughout the town and surrounding communities, and automobiles were parked along the roads leading to the shaft for distances of several miles.

Wives and children of miners employed in the shaft crowded about, seeking information and groups of wailing, sobbing women and children formed, as the news was broken that all of the men were known to be dead.

A signal to the hoisting engineer was received within three minutes after the explosion but one of the cages was caught on the bottom by wreckage and miners were forced to climb down the shaft to the bottom and cut their way the wreckage before the hoisting engine could be used. Only one cage could be used in the work of bringing the bodies to the surface. A row of waiting ambulances removed the dead to the city.

Sheer courage and heroism marked the work of the rescuers who braved the deadly fumes of gas and descended time after time into the mine to bring out the dead. Many were overcome and several were carried from the mine.

Deputy state mine inspectors, were at the scene soon after explosion and went into the mine immediately. Albert Daily, chief state mine inspector, was expected momentarily.

Most authentic reports of the disaster were that the explosion occurred when miners either cut into abandoned workings or a slight cave-in opened old entries in which gas had collected. The miners' lamps setting off the pocket gas. The explosion occurred in entries off the main east entry on both sides of which were abandoned entries. Most of the dead were trapped in these entries and in an entry off of them.

Death in all instances was caused by burns or suffocation, according to reports.

John M. Lowery, of Sullivan, president of the coal company, and superintendent of the mine, was on the bottom at the time of the disaster and was overcome by gas, being carried from the mine.

First reports of the tragedy were that several men had been killed and that about 40 were entombed in an entry. Later reports from mine officials disclosed, however, that the entire 51 men working in the immediate vicinity of the explosion were believed to have been killed almost instantly. As the force of the explosion reached out through the mine it was spent, and the remaining 70 men were brought to the surface uninjured. Of the missing, 44 were loaders, four machine men, two motormen and one probably a trip rider.

Mine bosses from surrounding mines and many volunteer workers from nearby mines descended into the shaft in efforts to bring the dead to the surface.

Heroic work of Harman Kelly, of the Glendora mine, John Kinsella, boss at the Baker mine, and an expert in mining, Kriep Patrick, of the Ebey Vale mine, John Boyles, of the same mine and Jack Raines of the Baker mine, resulted in the early discovery of many bodies, Kinsella being overcome in his daring efforts to reach the bodies immediately after the explosion. He and Kelly were the first to descend. Kinsella was overcome after he had worked his way up an air course, where he found nine bodies.

Men who had been in the mine said the explosion seemed to go in gusts, some being suffocated, others horribly burned beyond recognition, while others were but slightly burned. Many were buried about the rooms and entries. The rescue work was impeded by the gas which was being forced from the working as rapidly as possible, the mine fan being undamaged by the blast. Fumes of gas escaped from the mine shaft as the air was pumped through the mine, and two bystanders were overcome.

Rope lines established by local authorities and miners failed to check the rush of hundreds who flocked to the mine.

Twelve bodies had been brought to the surface at 6 o'clock, the work of the rescuers being unremitting and fresh workers being available on all sides as those in the mine came up on the verge of exhaustion.

HEAVY PENALTIES FOR BREAKING AND ENTERING

Boston, Feb. 20.—Three of the longest sentences in the history of Massachusetts jurisprudence were meted out in superior court here today when Judge Bishop sentenced Harry Davis of Providence, R. I., Nathan Green of Philadelphia, and Joseph Lewis of Chicago, to terms of 20 to 25 years each in state prison for the men had pleaded guilty to charges of breaking and entering, use and possession of explosives and burglars' tools, in connection with the robbery of a jewelry store here.

Consideration of the past records of the offenders, who had served long terms in Sing Sing, Elmira, and other penal institutions, rather than the enormity of the present crimes with which they were charged, led to the imposition of the record sentences, it was said at the district attorney's office.

The men were classified by District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien, who directed the case for the commonwealth, as "enemies of society, whose entire lives had been devoted to crime."

Sentences of from 14 to 17 years were pronounced in connection with the breaking and entering charges and from 8 to 9 years as the penalty for use and possession of burglars' tools. The remaining charges were filed. Total sentences of 36 to 40 years had been asked by District Attorney O'Brien.

The men were trapped in a Washington street jewelry store on the early morning of February 6 after they had dynamited a safe and scattered valuables about the premises. They were taken to the state prison at Charlestown immediately after the trial to begin serving the sentences.

HUGE STILL FOUND ON FARM NEAR WATERBURY

New Haven, Feb. 20.—Three prohibition agents from Boston, operating under the direction of Andrew B. Stropp, division chief of prohibition enforcement for New England, and working with New Haven and Hartford enforcement officials and men, today raided the farm of Pasquale Perrotti, on the lower Waterbury road in Woodbridge and confiscated two 200-gallon stills and two barrels of denatured alcohol. The officials said after the raid that they were convinced that the plant was a source of supply for practically all of Connecticut.

The officials, who have been investigating conditions here for nearly a month, held search warrants when they raided the farm. They discovered that just previous to their visit the plant had been afire and it is believed that much of the evidence sought had been destroyed. The officials said, however, that considerable evidence was found.

Perrotti was placed under arrest and arraigned before Commissioner Lynch. He was held under bonds.

TO SERVE TERM IN PRISON OF WHICH HE WAS WARDEN

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 20 (By the A. P.)—Albert E. Sartain, for one year warden of the Atlanta federal penitentiary, was sentenced in United States court here today to serve one year and six months in that institution, following his conviction this morning on a charge of conspiracy to accept and receive bribes.

Laurence Riehl, one time next door neighbor of the former warden in Columbus, Ohio, also convicted, was sentenced to serve one year and one day in the Atlanta prison. L. J. Fletcher, former deputy warden of the prison, was acquitted.

Trial of the three defendants continued for 11 days. The jury returned the verdict after deliberating 16 hours.

Counsel for the convicted men at once announced their intention to file application for a new trial and July 24 was set as the date for the hearing on this motion. In the meantime, Sartain and Riehl were released on bail.

Specifically the defendants were charged with entering into a conspiracy with Father Thomas P. Hayden, then a chaplain, at the prison, to accept the sum of $10,500 from members of the so-called "Savannah crowd" of convicted violators of the prohibition laws.

Father Hayden, who was not indicted, testified for the government and admitted his guilt.

GOVT WILL SCRUTINIZE FURTHER FRENCH LOANS

Washington, Feb. 20.—Plans of the French government to seek two new loans from New York banking interests are expected to be scrutinized somewhat closely by the American government.

High officials today refused to comment on the announcement made in the French chamber of deputies yesterday by Finance Minister Clementel that promise to float two loans, aggregating $125,000,000, had been obtained in the United States.

The position was taken at the White House that no declaration of American governmental attitude could be made until a definite and affirmative proposal had been outlined by France. It clearly was indicated that Washington officials were not prepared to regard M. Clementel's announcement as a basis sufficient for advice such as is given to financial interests in the case of foreign requests for loans.

CONTRACT AWARDED THE EMERGENCY FLEET CORP.

Concord, N. H., Feb. 20.—The Emergency Fleet corporation was awarded cash totaling $400,000 and full control of the Atlantic Heights housing project at Portsmouth in a decree handed down in U. S. district court here today in the foreclosure suit of the fleet corporation against the Atlantic corporation, a shipbuilding company of Portsmouth.

Thespians Favor "Play Jury System"

As the Best Means of Cleansing Broadway, New York, of Objectionable Dramas.

New York, Feb. 20.—"The joint committee opposed to political censorship" was named today at a hurried meeting of managers, playwrights, actors and friends of the theatre to push the "play jury system" as the best means of cleansing Broadway of unt drfiama as now alleged to be represented in thirteen flourishing productions.

The committee will meet District Attorney Banton tomorrow, at his invitation, and is headed by John Emerson, president of the Actors' Equity association; Owen Davis, playwright, and Rev. Charles K. Gilbert, president of the Protestant Episcopal social service commission.

The "play jury" plan has been moribund two years despite its having received public endorsement when first presented. As now revived to hold off the ogre of state censorship on Broadway, the "jury" would be chosen from panels of 400 selected citizens. An initial panel, made up today from 5,000 names taken from the Social Register, Metropolitan opera boxholders, the stock exchange and similar organizations, will be placed before Mr. Banton tomorrow.

The "jurors," each of whom would serve upon but one play, according to the plan, would make but two decisions, namely, whether a suspected play should be taken off the boards at once, or could be re-written to delete offensive scenes or lines. The Actors' Equity promised to supply the "teeth" to the first decision by withdrawing its players immediately. For revision, the producer would be given one week, when the play would be reviewed again to see if changes were satisfactory.

The eleventh-hour rally to the "play jury" was made by representatives of nearly forty organizations, including the Managers' Protective association, Actors' Equity, Drama league, Authors' league, Greater New York Federation of Churches, the better public shows committee and many others.

Broadway awoke this morning in chastened mood. Soon after breakfast David Belasco, producer of "Ladies of the Evening" and "The Harem," and Kenneth MacGowan, representing Eugene O'Neill's latest play, "Desire Under the Elms," were having a heart to heart talk with District Attorney Banton.

Mr. Belasco, according to Mr. Banton later, promised to have the plays rewritten in time to substitute for the present versions by next Tuesday night.

Mr. MacGowan left Mr. Banton's office under the impression, he said, that Mr. Banton would prosecute unless "Desire Under the Elms" was taken off entirely. Mr. Banton followed this up by publicly giving as his opinion that the producers could make no revision of the play "which would make it respectable enough to conform with the requirements of the penal law."

Mr. MacGowan said he was willing to stand by a "play jury" decision, and announced a special performance of the O'Neill drama tomorrow morning for 1,000 faculty members of local colleges and schools.

Speculators along Broadway tonight reported a rushing business, seatholders showing a dispositiin to "do their theatregoing early."

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

King George Comfortable

London, Feb. 20—(By the A. P.)—King George who is suffering from bronchitis, passed a comfortable day and is progressing satisfactorily, it was learned at ten o'clock tonight. No official bulletin was issued by the physicians in attendance on the monarch.

Former Crown Prince in Berlin

Berlin, Feb. 20—Former Crown Prince William, who is here attending a meeting of German agriculturists, today walked along the Unter Der Linden in Mufti accompanied by one of his former friends and was followed by many persons, some of whom shouted "hoch." Die Rote Fahne, the Communist organ, denounces the presence of the former kaiser's son here as a "provocation."

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The emergency officers retirement bill was passed by the senate.

The house passed the bill to increase the salaries of members of congress.

Hearings were opened at the war department of the Chicago sanitary drainage question.

Brigadier General Mitchell gave the house aircraft committee further testimony on the effects of air bombs on battleships.

The point of order raised against the conference report on the Muscle Shoals leasing bill was sustained in the senate.

Removal of Senators La Follette, Ladd, Brookhart and Frazier from their present committee assignments was determined upon.

America's attitude on a new French loan by American bankers, it was said at the White House, will await definite proposals by the French.

President Coolidge was represented as feeling it would be unfortunate should congress fail to enact farm legislation before adjournment.

The senate foreign relations committee voted to ask about charges that the state department "muzzled" Count Michael Karolyi, former Hungarian president.

Recommendations of Secretary Weeks, it was learned, will guide President Coolidge in the question of reappointing Brigadier General Mitchell as assistant army air chief.

Informal conversations, President Coolidge believes, have not proceeded to the point where he is committed to call an arms conference in advance of formulation of the project sponsored by the league of nations.

NOT AN ACCESSORY IN MURDER OF HER HUSBAND

Portland, Me., Feb. 20.—Mrs. Lottie Freeman Cote, was found not guilty of being an accessory in the murder of her husband, Alphonse Cote, at their farm in North Gorham, Nov. 7, last, by a jury here today. Charles H. Fielding, who pleaded guilty to the murder charge, appeared as the state's chief witness in Mrs. Cote's trial.

The jury reported the verdict after deliberating two hours and 10 minutes. Mrs. Cote was placed on trial Monday, Feb. 16. Fielding, when about to be placed on trial at the same time, pleaded guilty. Ralph B. Sanborn, 19-year-old son of Mrs. Cote, through another marriage, is under indictment charged with being an accessory after the fact.

The body of Cote was found buried in a shallow grave, which had been plowed over, on the Cote farm, eight days after he had been shot through the head by Fielding, according to his own confession. Authorities investigating the disappearance of Cote, obtained the information which led to the discovery of the body from Sanborn, they stated. Cote, it was alleged, was lured from his home by a report that there was a deer a short distance from the farmhouse.

Los Angeles Making Flight to Bermuda

When Passing Over Barnegat Light the Dirigible Was Making 55 Miles an Hour.

Aboard the Dirigible Los Angeles—En Route to Bermuda, Feb. 20—Sporting the blue and white flag of the assistant secretary of the navy, the air liner Los Angeles started her journey from Lakehurst, N. J., to Bermuda today.

Within a few minutes after rising from her home field, the big airship gradually picked up speed and, passing over Barnegat Light, was making 55 sea miles an hour, with four engines running. Her action was steady and even, with vibration absent, giving the sensation of riding in a Pullman car over a fabulously smooth roadbed.

Rear Admiral Moffatt, chief of the bureau of aeronautics, seated himself in the passenger car and stayed there.

"On a trip to Bermuda," he philosophized, "one should look it over, for everyone goes there for a vacation. However, I am fortunate enough to be on this ship and make the trip in probably 12 hours and get back to Washington Sunday night, having lost only one day at my desk and having two in Bermuda. This is only a forerunner of what anyone may enjoy in a few years."

Assistant Sec. Robinson is making his first voyage on a naval vessel in his official capacity, and although the vessel happens to be an air liner, he has been given all the honors and ceremony customary on a battleship. He has inspected the ship from stem to stern, and expressed great delight with his experience.

Fog or low-hanging clouds prevented a clear visibility during the first stage of the trip and only an occasional surface vessel was seen.

REPUBLICAN SENATORS ARE TO DISCIPLINE RENEGADES

Lafollette, Ladd, Brookhart and Frazier Are to be Barred From Party Councils—Republican Leaders Have Decided That the Four Senators Would be Given Special Treatment in Committee Assignments in the Next Congress—They Are to be Placed at the Foot of Committee Lists, with All Opportunity for Advancement Removed.

Washington, Feb. 20.—Republican leaders of the senate have determined to remove from their present committee places the four senators recently read out of the party councils—LaFollette, Ladd, Brookhart and Frazier.

These leaders disclosed today that the action would be taken by the republican committee on committees late this month, and that the four senators would be given special treatment with reference to committee assignments in the next congress such as was given in this congress to the farmer-labor senators, Johnson and Shipstead.

LaFollette was read out of the party at a republican senate conference before the beginning of this session because of his action in running as an independent presidential candidate against the nominee of the republican party. The other senators were excluded from further party conferences because of their support of the Wisconsin senator.

Republican leaders in the house, in determining the personnel of committees in the new congress, plan in the treatment of the insurgents to follow along the line mapped out by administration leaders in the senate.

While the insurgents probably will be reassigned in most instances to committees on which they are now serving, they will be classed as a minority distinct from the democrats and placed at the foot of committee lists, with all opportunity for advancement removed.

Under this plan, Senator LaFollette would lose the chairmanship of the manufacturers' committee, and his position as the ranking republican on the powerful finance and interstate commerce committees. He also would lose his rank on the Indian affairs committee.

Senator Ladd of North Dakota would be removed from the chairmanship of the public lands committee—the famous Teapot Dome investigating body—and his rank on the agriculture committee and territories committee.

Neither Senator Brookhart nor Senator Frazier has high rank on committees, but the Iowa senator would lose promotion on the claims, education and labor and military committees, made possible through the retirement of senators now outranking him. Senator Frazier similarly would lose promotion on the mines and pensions committees.

Chairman Watson of the senate committee on committees said the contemplated action in the senate would be in line with the resolution adopted at the conference last November, but some senators, taking a different view of the meaning of the resolution, indicated that there probably would be a row on the subject when the committee assignments are taken up at a republican conference soon to be called to perfect the slate of officers for the new senate.

SUE TO RESTRAIN ISSUE OF INTERN'L SILVER CO. STOCK

New York, Feb. 20.—Stockholders of the International Silver company claiming to represent 5,000 of its less than 7,000 shares of common stock, filed suit in the state supreme court today, to restrain company officers from carrying out a proposed special issue of stock to company heads.

The complaint made by a stockholders' protective committee alleged that George R. Wilcox, president, Isaac W. Cokefair, vice president, and three other directors dominated the affairs of the corporation because they comprised five of the six members of its executive committee.

This group, according to the complaint, got the company to issue to them in June 1923 supposed treasury stock having a valuation of $250,000. This stock was used without due notice, it was said, to buy "The Colt property," in Meriden, Conn., the following December for $125,000.

The complaint alleged specifically that Cokefair's stock was not in the treasury, but had been or should have been retired. Injunction is asked to block the stock issue as a whole on grounds of fraud and because it would permit certain preferred stockholders to benefit.

The International Silver company was organized under the laws of New Jersey in November, 1898. The petition declares the company now produces and sells 45 per cent of all silverware in the United States and is in a prosperous condition.

Raymond D. McGrath, Sidney C. Borg and Arthur Lehman are the suing stockholders making up the protective committee.

LABOR CHIEFS ARE NOT IN ACCORD WITH LA FOLLETTE

Chicago, Feb. 20. (By the A. P.)—Conflicting political ideas of Senator Robert M. La Follette and of union labor leaders came to the surface today in the preliminary gatherings of delegates to the national conference for progressive political action here tomorrow.

Chiefs of 10 labor organizations, including three of the "Big Four" transportation brotherhoods and the railway employes' department of the American Federation of Labor, decided with only one dissenting vote to oppose formation of a new party.

The lone vote against opposition to the third party idea came from William H. Johnston, president of the Machinists' International. He explained that in taking this stand he was not pledging his organization to any political course as he had no authority in that respect.

Robert M. La Follette Jr., who attended as an observer, let it be known that his father favors organization of a new party but thinks that it should be "freed from the affiliation of any group."

"The time is ripe for the formation of a new party," said the La Follette statement.

"Formation of a new party at this time would be futile," said the union leaders, through Edward M. Keating, editor of the official organ of the American Federation of Labor, and spokesman for today's meeting.

MRS. BUDLONG DISAPPEARS; IS TO FOLLOW HER HUSBAND

New York, Feb. 20.—The feud between Mrs. Milton J. Budlong and her husband, the petroleum prince, was tinged with new mystery tonight on reports that the woman who for eight days has passively resisted all attempts to oust her from the Budlong's New York apartment had disappeared.

The report was that she had slipped away, disguised as a house servant, and had gone by automobile to Newport, R. I., the home of her husband and two children whom the courts recently placed in Budlong's custody.

When last seen by news reporters, Mrs. Budlong was standing nonplussed but defiant in the room which she had made her prison since last Friday morning.

Walls and floor were bare. Furniture movers employed by her husband last night had removed to Newport most of the apartment fittings. They returned today and took away the last couch, the last chair, the last dish.

Only two alternatives remained to the woman. She could go to Newport and carry out her threat to establish herself in the residence which Budlong announced today he had been compelled to acquire because of Mrs. Budlong's occupancy of the New York apartment.

Or she could spend another night as a voluntary prisoner where she was. If promised to be a hard night, with no place, except the floor, to lie down, or even to sit. Besides, the lights had been turned off as the furniture movers left.

It would not be a night of fasting however, for Mrs. Budlong, at the advice of physicians, has ended her hunger strike of seven days, and now partakes of orange juice and milk.

That Budlong had deserted the local field of battle to establish a new headquarters at Newport was announced in a letter the first contingent of furniture movers left behind.

"Margaret," it began, "your conduct has made it impossible for me and the children ever again to occupy that apartment. I have decided to become a resident of Newport, R. I., and cease to be a resident of New York state."

Mrs. Budlong's only comment was that this development made her "feel quite chipper," and that "where he goes I'll go. I'll go to live in his Newport home. I think it would be better there for the children than in New York. It's a victory for me, for that has been one of my contentions all along."

Apparently, however, she made no immediate move towards Newport. Her reported absence from the uptown apartment tonight indicated that she may have stolen a march on the reporters as well as on Budlong's private detectives.

STUDENT RESCUED FROM THE FACE OF WEST ROCK

New Haven, Feb. 20.—The services of both the police and fire departments were required today to rescue James H. Alden, a Yale student, when the young man attempted to climb the face of West Rock, but failed and was left stranded in a perilous position when he found that he could not climb any further and feared to retrace his footsteps down the steep incline.

He signalled to spectators at the base of the rock for help, but no one dared to climb the rock, so word was telephoned to the Westville police. They in turn called upon the firemen for aid. The firemen, working from the top of the rock, lowered a rope to the young man. The "mountain climber" was then lowered to the ground. The rescue was watched by a large crowd of spectators.

Jonathan Pollack, a live stock dealer of Gurleyville, was fined $20 and costs, totalling $48, in the Coventry town court just before midnight on Monday at a special session of the Peace court held before Justice of the Peace Albert M. Gilman, when found guilty of having made out a worthless check in the amount of $37. The check was made payable to Thomas Marra of South Coventry for the payment of merchandise and was dated February 23. Pollack had drawn up the check on the Hartford Trust Company and within a few days it was returned to Marra on the grounds that Pollack did not have any funds in that institution. Grand Juror Robert G. Brooks was notified and brought the case before Officer Henry Heinold of the Stafford Springs barracks. Pollack was given an opportunity to make the check good, Thursday afternoon, but he failed to take advantage of his chance and Officer Heinold set out on a search for the man. Pollack was located in Mansfield and was immediately taken to Coventry for a hearing. He made many excuses but admitted his guilt. Justice Gilman severely reprimanded the man for his business tactics and along with the fine and costs imposed a thirty day jail sentence, which was suspended on condition that the money be paid Marra Pollack agreed to do this and pulled out a big roll of bills and then and there paid up what he owed the court and Marra, a total of $37.

The menu served by the Catholic Daughters of America was: fruit cocktail, cream of tomato soup, croutons; roast turkey with dressing and giblet sauce, mashed potato and turnip, creamed onions, cranberry sauce, celery, olives, pickles, rolls, ice cream, wafers, salted nuts, after dinner mints, and coffee. Following the banquet, there was singing and whist. The first prizes went to Miss Kathryn Kennedy and Arthur Keegan and John Stave.

The assembly hall at the Natchaug School was filled Friday afternoon, when the children of the two sixth grades entertained the pupils of Four A, the three fifth grades and about seventy-five of their friends and parents, in celebration of the birthdays of Washington and Lincoln. The program was divided into two parts and given in chronological order, with the children of Six A in charge of the first, introduced by the teacher, Mrs. Susan Sullivan. The opening song was "Mount Vernon Belle" given in chorus by the class, to the tune of "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground." This was followed by a recitation by the class, "The Spirit of Patriotism." Ruth Rogers, costumed in white as "Miss Columbia," gave a recitation "To Washington," and Washington's Speech of Acceptance was very well delivered by Cygmunt Wojcik. One of the most interesting numbers on the program was a reading and tableau given by five girls in costume, with "Betsy's Battle Flag," read by Gertrude Simoneau, Ruth Black, as Betsy Ross sewed the stars on the first American flag, surrounded by a group of busy Colonial dames, Esther Muirhead, Phelma Slack, Marion Hall and Vera Rabinowitz, in the quaint costumes of the period, mostly made by the children. The tableau which closed the recitatino was "The Birth of Old Glory." Another recitation, "Valley Forge," was excellently given by Esther Muirhead, in one of the real hoop-skirted overskirted, bernffled silk repp dresses of perhaps sixty five years ago. The dress was originally made and worn by her great-aunt, of whom the family, it is said, made a great deal of fun at the time on account of its brilliant color, a rich green. It was worn with a lace fichu. Spencer Lincoln recited "Washington's Farewell Address," and this was followed by an action-song, "the measured paces slow," of Mozart's Minuet. The class gave an exceptionally good example of two-part singing, and their costumes, with each in a white wool periwig (made by himself) were charming. Arthur Sweet's recitation, "Washington's Recreations," bringing out the fact that that gentleman was fond of dancing even at 64, admirably introduced the closing number, "The Days of Long Ago," which was the slow, old-fashioned minuet danced to the music of Beethovan's Minuet in G by Gertrude Simoneau, Alan Donovan, Marion Hall, Milton Hills, Sadie Mandell, John Rija, Vera Rabinowitz and Frank Rice. The program was arranged in connection with the work in this grade in reading, language, history and the regular studies. The invitations were written for a writing lesson and decorated with a lady in minuet costume at a drawing period. Incidentally, this grade registered a 100 per cent spelling lesson Friday morning and had 100 per cent perfect attendance for the month.

The second part of the program, in honor of Lincoln, was given by the children of Six B, and arranged by the teacher in that rom, Miss Mary Gibson. A recitation was given by Dorothy Dineen, "So Can You." A poem "Little Boy Abe," was given by Basil Standish, Leo Neff, Louis Goldstein, and Max Melamed. "Lincoln, the Greatest," was given by Pauline Delude, and "Gems from Lincoln's Speeches," by Viola Walker. The program concluded with America, sung standing in chorus by children and visitors.

At Freshman Lyceum, in the high school assembly hall, Friday morning, "Thirty Minutes for Refreshments," the one-act comedy given some time ago by the sophomore class, was repeated for the freshmen. They are: Elizabeth McKinley, Lewis White, Charlotte Webster, Janet Scripture and Ralph Williams. Kerman Lavigne and Elizabeth McKinley were elected to membership on the Student Council.

STRANDED NEWARK MEN GENEROUSLY BEFRIENDED

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, Feb. 20.—Edgar Plumneau and Arthur Leckie, of Belleville, N. J., employes of the Metropolitan Lumber Co., of Newark, N. J., were forced to accept the generosity of Maurice L. Leonard of this city, Friday, after being left penniless, in Andover, Thursday night, when the car which they were driving, broke down. The machine is owned by the lumber company, and when it went out of condition, the two young men telephoned their employer and asked him to supply them with funds for a room over night and meals, but this was flatly denied them. The boss said "that they could starve until Saturday morning when he would send another men along to take them home." The men spent Thursday night in the Andover station and walked nine miles to this city Friday. As the day was drawing to a close they told their story to Mr. Leonard who had been hired to tow the car to this city for repairs and the local man made a timely contribution. Within a few minutes the young men were enjoying a substantial supper.

FIRE AT POLINE STORE FROM OVERHEATED STOVE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, Feb. 20.—Fire from an overheated stove at the rear of the Abraham Poline men's and boys' clothing store, 865 Main street at 7 o'clock Friday evening, it gave members of Engine Co. No. 1 a fierce fifteen minutes' struggle before extinguished. A telephone call from Caleb J. Allbro, who conducts a store next door to the Poline place and the personal warning of two men who saw the smoke and ran to the Bank engine house, brought out the pumper and ladder truck. Chief James A. Tighe, Lieut. Henry J. Kelly and Assist. Lieut. Roger English were in charge. A line of hose, 200 feet in length was laid.

The firemen were forced to break through the front and rear doors of the store and for several minutes their efforts to reach the vicinity of the stove were checked by thick clouds of dense smoke. The blaze was confined to a portion of the woodwork and a show case in which overcoats were smoldering. Mr. Poline could not estimate the amount of loss by fire, smoke and water, but he stated that the contents were partly injured. The Poline store is located in a one story brick building owned by the John M. Hall estate.

Willimantic, Feb. 20.—Harley Woodworth of South Coventry was placed under arrest in that village Friday afternoon by officers of the Stafford Springs state police barracks when found to be driving a Buick roadster without front or rear registration plates. The officers met the unregistered car on one of the streets of the village and after a brief but rapid chase overtook the driver. Brought before Justice of the Peace Albert M. Gilman, of the Coventry town court at 7.30 o'clock Friday evening, Woodworth pleaded guilty to the charge of driving without registration markers and was fined $15 and costs, amounting to $26.60 which he paid. Grand Juror Robert O. Brooks prosecuted the case.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

WHY SOME OF THE APPLES ARE SHINY

One of the attractive features of an apple is its shiny red cheeks which catch the eye in the market. Fancy fruit merchants polish their apples to make this feature even more attractive. Why does the apple shine when polished?

The apple has the peculiar trait of waxing its skin which renders it impervious to moisture from the outside and also prevents the escape of the juices within which is one of the reasons why apples keep so well. Russet apples which do not have this waxed surface wither much more quickly than varieties with waxy skins.

The change from the downy surface of the young apple to the shiny waxed surface of maturity is interesting. When about half grown the fine hairs have disappeared for the most part and the shiny surface begins to show. The wax is forming over the surface. The subject of the waxing of the apple has not been given much study yet it is known that if develops to the greatest extent on apples which are grown in direct sunlight and that the wax is thickest on the exposed side. It is also known that it forms better under dry than wet conditions. The red or sunny side of the apple is its best waxed side and the red cheek polishes most readily from this fact.

Apples grown in warm sections develop a waxier surface than those grown in cooler climates. Apples on the north side of the tree have less wax than those on the south side of the tree.

ARRANGE FOR TUBERCULOSIS TESTS BY SECTIONS

Every year many dairy cattle succumb to tuberculosis. The dairy farmers are beginning to realize the advantages of having federal accredited herds and more and more each year are having their animals submit to the federal and state tests.

The best way to start this clean-up is by sections. This is either a town or a neighborhood should all start at once. In this way there is not the danger of reinfection from the neighbor's cattle.

Another big advantage of this method is securing the replacements. When from 30 to 50 head is wanted in the neighborhood the owners can get together go to an accredited area and ship in the desired numbers without any difficulty. But where the men start to have this test individually and only four or five cows each are needed for replacement it is difficult to buy just what is wanted and when it is wanted without paying more than is necessary. Furthermore, by combining and going into an accredited area to secure these replacement cattle a better selection can be made.

ADVANTAGES OF TWO ROOM BROODER HOUSES

"Without doubt at this time of the year the question of how best to brood small chicks, is one of the uppermost thoughts in the mind of the poultryman, whether from the standpoint of raising a small flock or a large one," says E. A. James, poultryman of West Springfield.

"Speaking exclusively of the coal burning colony brooder, I feel that sometimes we make a mistake of referring to the number of chicks to be placed under a brooder (or more properly speaking) around a brooder, and forget other important points to be considered. Now the number of chicks is important, but I do not believe it is the first important factor to be considered. As they come in order of course the brooder house comes first, brooder stove second, and chicks, third. I would favor the two-room brooder house. The room in which the stove is to be placed should be built as free from drafts as it is possible to make it, the room may be in size anywhere from 10x10 to 15x15 feet. It should be built with a ceiling over head six feet and six inches high with some means of ceiling ventilation, to be used when weather is cold and chicks are too small to be exposed to an outside air current.

"The next important feature is to secure a stove of sufficient size to heat this room beyond question to the desired temperature at all times in the severest weather without having to ceaf up or shake the grate oftener than twice in 24 hours. The ceiling above mentioned will be found advisable for two important reasons, first, a more even temperature can be held in the room with less fuel consumption in cold weather; second, as the days grow warmer and the heat of the sun increases through the day, there will not be so great a variation of temperature in the house due to warm, sunshiny days and cold nights. As to other ventilation for the brooder room, it should be built as near the ceiling in the wall as possible, on the north and south side of the room, and so constructed as to permit opening little or much at the will of the attendant as weather conditions require, and these openings to open from the top down so that in no case the drafts come directly on the chicks.

"The adjoining room or cold room as we will call it, may be built to one side of the brooder room if desired, but I prefer to have it in front of the brooder room or on the south side for two reasons, first, it can be more easily warmed on cold mornings from the brooder room not having any exposed north wall. Secondly, more fresh air can be let in through the cold room to ventilate the brooder room without possible danger to chicks caused by an extreme change in temperature as might be the case from a direct outdoor opening. The cold room may be any size you wish from the same size of brooder room to twice its size, depending upon number of chicks you wish to group in one flock, and whether the two rooms with additional yards are to be their permanent quarters until matured. The cold room is where all feed and water should be placed not later than the third day in sufficient number of containers so there cannot be overcrowding to enable them at all times to get plenty of food and water.

"The opening between the rooms, as well as from the cold room out of doors, should be built in such a manner, as to be opened from a small space to one large enough to allow the chicks exit at all times without crowding or stampeding as is frequently the case in early morning. The brooder room does not need to be as light as the cold room, and it will be found to advantage to have some means of darkening the windows so as to make the room perfectly dark. This will aid in putting the chicks around the brooder at night for the first few days, also broilers may be driven into the brooder room, darkening the windows and catching for market with comparative ease, rather than spending part of the night to catch them out as is many times done.

"The cold room should be as light and airy as possible, in fact the whole front should be built in such a manner that it can be all opened or closed at will with a ceiling over this room also as to make it cooler in hot summer days. With rooms of the above type the chicks will never suffer from the heat on the most extreme summer days.

"Now to sum up the advantages of the two-room brooder house over the one-room brooder house, they are as follows: The two-room house can be built more economical as you can breed more than twice the number around each stove."

PRE-LAMBING LOSS IRRESPECTIVE OF BREED

Pre-lambing loss is no respecter of breeds, all being affected in about equal degree, though observation shows that crossbred ewes have the greatest mortality from this cause. The explanation of this fact is the greater proportion of twin lambs which crossbred ewes produce. Another striking observation is that ewes which, while in the affected condition, give birth to lambs very often recover. The ailment is associated entirely with lambing early under shed conditions, and with excessive supply of nutriment. The longer the ewes are fed on a ration which furnishes too large an amount of nutrition, the greater is the likelihood that the ailment will appear. On the other hand, sheep which have been on range until a short time before lambing and have had abundant exercise, even though fed nothing but hay, have shown no losses from this cause. In a case where a band of 600 old ewes was divided among several ranch sheepmen, three lots, fed high and receiving little exercise, suffered a 30 per cent loss. One lot, whose owner used the preventive measures described, suffered no mortality.

Owing to the rapidity with which the ailment attacks susceptible animals, treatment is of doubtful value. In some cases, the disease has been diagnosed as hemorraghic septicemia and preventive treatment applied to the rest of the band, but as the ailment had already run its course among the susceptible animals, the apparent arrest of mortality was a misleading result.

The present profitable condition of the sheep industry in general, has resulted in the retention of many aged, broken-mouthed ewes which still bring good prices. Many of these have been sold to corn belt breeders and feeders for whose benefit the foregoing observations are largely presented.

MADE HENS COMFORTABLE GOT MORE EGGS

One woman stated at an extension school that her birds doubled in egg production within 10 days after rearranging the interior of her poultry house according to the direction of a county agent. She had the roosts placed on the side of the building with no dropping boards and the roosts were three feet apart. Thus, the birds were so far apart that the cold air circulated all about them, to be chilled during the night and the birds did not lay many eggs.

She was told to put the roosts in the end, the farthest away possible from the open front; to have dropping boards to prevent cold air draughts from coming up underneath the birds; to put the roosts near together, not more than one foot apart, and to have four roosts abreast. In this way the birds were kept close together while roosting, thus keeping warm during the night by their own body heat.

In other words she increased her egg production by making her birds more comfortable, without changing her grain rations. It took about four hours' labor to bring in a profit where before they were hardly paying on themselves.

Foolish, Foolish Peter Rabbit

Who gets puffed up will rue the day
And find, alas! it doesn't pay.
Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit was so puffed up over having done something that none of the other little people of the Green Forest, excepting his cousin, Jumper the Hare, had done that everybody noticed it.

"What are you so puffed up about?" demanded Sammy Jay, peering down at Peter.

"I'm not puffed up!" retorted Peter indignantly. "Even if I were it would be no business of yours."

"Oh, well, whatever it is doesn't amount to anything," declared Sammy, his sharp eyes twinkling.

"You'd think it amounted to something if you knew what it is," retorted Peter quickly.

Sammy Jay laughed right out, and Peter wished he had kept his tongue still. "So you admit that you are puffed up over something," cried Sammy. "Tell me what it is, Peter."

But Peter turned his back and wouldn't say another word. Sammy Jay chuckled and flew away. Presently Peter could hear him screaming over in the Green Forest, telling everybody within hearing that Peter Rabbit had a secret and was all puffed up over it. Peter could have bitten his own tongue for having let Sammy Jay know that he had a secret. He knew that now he would have no peace at all. Everybody would want to know what he was puffed up about. He knew that he would be teased half to death and that he would be made fun of wherever he went. There was nothing for him to do but to keep out of sight as much as possible, and this he did.

But he couldn't keep away from the Green Forest. He spent most of his time over there, and it was over there that Reddy Fox surprised him. It was over near the place where Buster Bear was sleeping the winter away. Peter was under a pile of brush where Reddy couldn't get at him. Of course, Reddy had heard about how puffed up Peter was, and of course, Reddy began to tease him about it.

"The idea of one who is afraid of his own shadow thinking he has anything to be puffed up about," said Reddy in the most unpleasant way. "Ha! ha! ha! The idea! You wouldn't dare do anything to be puffed up about, and you know it, Peter Rabbit. They tell me you have a secret. That is a joke, too. I don't believe there is anything you know that I don't know. The idea of such a fraidy as you getting all puffed up! Then foolish Peter Rabbit couldn't keep his tongue still. "I dare do something that you don't dare do," he boasted. Reddy Fox laughed louder than ever. "My, how brave we are betting!" he exclaimed.

"Just the same I do," retorted Peter.

"What?" demanded Reddy Fox.

"If you'll go over by that old log and give me a fair start I'll show you," replied Peter.

Reddy went over by the old log. Peter crept out from the pile of brush. "Catch me if you can!" he shouted, and away he raced.

Away went Reddy after him. Straight for Buster Bear's bedroom Peter headed, and then with Reddy almost at his heels he disappeared in that bedroom. Reddy didn't follow him. Such a surprised look as there was on his face.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

A car driven by Owen Davidson, of Hampton, brought up against the iron fence along Reynolds street side of the Westfield Congregational church property Friday morning, after bounding over the sidewalk and threatening to demolish the protecting barrier completely and drop down into the grounds of the church. Mr. Davidson, who was uninjured, got into the tangle when he swerved the wheel of his car while coming down Main street to escape a collision with a Connecticut Mills company car driven by James Mazzarelli that came suddenly out of Spring street. Mr. Davidson successfully avoided a crash between the cars, but caused some damage to his own machine when it struck the fence. Mr. Davidson is in the employ of the state highway department. Chief John McFarland investigated the accident and took a statement from each driver.

The Service Battery basketball team has been putting in some well planned and strenuous practice this week in preparation for the game scheduled for tonight with the Manchester Atlas five. The Judeans of Hartford took the measure of the Service Battery players on a recent visit here, this being mentioned merely as incidental to citing that the Manchester Atlas team is of about the same caliber as the Judeans. In a few words, the Atlas team is a mighty fast, clever and well schooled basketball team. The Service Battery players, good as they are, will do well if they beat them. Not in the habit of looking for setups, the army men will do their best to tie returned victors tonight, assuring the fans a game well worth seeing.

There must be something that is inducing all the talk of spring other than the desire therefor. Now here comes a group of Danielson men who are right out in the open talking baseball. They are enthusiastic about it, too. George DeForest has been elected manager and Jean Perreault treasurer. Trasurers have not been overworked in baseball organizations hereabouts for the past few seasons, both hope blooms eternal and maybe 1925 is the season during which a fine team will be developed here, big crowds enthused in supporting the game and the possibility achieved by the management of making a financial success. At least every earnest fan hopes this may be true. It does appear strange that smaller eastern Connecticut communities can have such good teams, every season, attract big attendance and put on such fine attractions. The boosters will be out this year aiding to make it possible in Danielson. A good team of players already has been signed to play under the Danielson banner. May they have the utmost success!

Edward M. Yeomans of Hartford, referee in bankruptcy, has decided that George W. Gilpatric is the rightful owner of the 449 shares of stock in the Whilipe & Gilpatric Coal and Wood company, which were issued to his son, G. Harold Gilpatric, and hypothecated by him. The finding was given out Thursday by Mr. Yeomans. Arthur E. Howard of Hartford, trustee for the bankrupt estate of G. Harold Gilpatric, will take the case on appeal to the United States district court.

The elder Gilpatric filed his claim a month ago before Referee Yeomans. He was represented by Josiah H. Peck of the law firm of Holden & Peck, Hartford.

On the witness stand Mr. Gilpatric told the referee that he was not aware of the fact, until the incorporation papers were read to him in April, 1931, that the shares had been made out in his son's name, instead of his own. He made no protest and did not comment on it to his son, as he had full confidence in him and believed that the property would be administered for his benefit.

The capital stock of the company is $90,000, there being 900 shares of the face value of $100 each. After the partnership between Mr. Gilpatric and Hiram S. Whipple had continued for ten months it was decided by Mr. Whipple and G. Harold Gilpatric that, because of the father's ill health, the business should be incorporated. This was done with the elder's knowledge and consent, but he supposed that the 449 shares would be in his own name, the same number that were issued to Mr. Whipple. One share is held by John W. Whipple and one by George W. Gilpatric.

The stock was afterwards used by G. H. Gilpatric as security for a loan of $6,000. George W. Gilpatric in his application asserted his willingness to discharge this note to have the shares transferred to him. He further said that G. H. Gilpatric had never put any money into the business and that the firm was not indebted to him or to anyone.

There will be a referendum vote on the amendment to the charter of the city of Putnam providing for the payment of a salary of $500 a year to the mayor, $10 to the alderman-at-large for each of the 12 regular meetings of the city council, $5 to the eight ward members and authority for the council to pay the chairman of the highway committee not to exceed $200 a year.

There was a hearing before the committee on cities and boroughs on the general assembly. At this hearing Samuel Rich, one of the representatives from Putnam, said that he was voicing the sentiments of a great many citizens in asking that there be a vote taken by the electors of the city before the measure was passed. The committee recommended the adoption of the bill if the people desire it.

The referendum vote will be taken at the regular city election the first Monday in December, at the time of the election of mayor and aldermen.

The bill providing for an increase of 50 per cent. in the salaries of the judge, assistant judge and prosecuting attorney has the approval of the committee and it undoubtedly will be passed.

Both bills were introduced by Mr. Rich after having been indorsed by the city council, and were assigned for a hearing before the committee on cities and boroughs for Wednesday afternoon. It was later found that this committee is without jurisdiction on bills increasing salaries and the one referring to the city court was reassigned to the judiciary committee.

WESTERLY

High Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell of Washington county was presented a gold sheriff's badge at the Friday morning session of Third district court, before the calling of the docket, by the Westerly Bar association. The secretary of the association, A. T. L. Ledwidge, said that with Everett E. Kingsley he had been named a committee to procure a badge for newly elected Sheriff Mitchell. He therefore turned over the badge to Probate Judge Edward M. Burke, president of the Westerly Bar association, to make the presentation.

Judge Burke said that when the general assembly elected one of the townsmen to the office of high sheriff it was fitting that Sheriff Mitchell, who had acted as a deputy sheriff under the late Sheriff John R. Wilcox for fourteen years, a court officer and a patrolman on the Westerly police force, should have been named. He said that the bar of Westerly came into close association with Sheriff Mitchell and that they were well pleased with his fairness, courtesy and close attention to his duties. A token of the confidence was this badge which he asked the acting judge to present to him and which he hoped he would wear with honor to himself and to the county of Washington.

Acting Judge M. Walter Flynn, Jr., said that it was fortunate that the statute permitted him to act in the absence of Judge Michael J. Turano, who was engaged in trial of a case in Providence, and who wished him to express his regret at not being present. It means more to the Westerly lawyers to have the sheriff from Westerly and it was fitting that the presentation take place in their own district court, which he knew was made with the whole-hearted accord of the Westerly Bar association. "Take it and wear it as long as you desire," said the presiding officer.

Sheriff Mitchell in responding to the presentation address said that this handsome badge came to him as a great surprise from the people associated with him. "Mr. President and all members of the Westerly Bar association, thank you one and all for the badge. I assure you this token will be a remembrance of friendship in the future as well as in the past."

A short informal reception and congratulation from the members of the bar present, police officers and court attendants generally followed.

The sheriff's badge is a gold pin shield with the coat of arms of Rhode Island in blue enamel on the face, with the words "Sheriff. Washington "Presented to F[illegible] Mitchell Feb County." On the reverse is inscribed 19, 1925, by Westerly Bar association."

Acting Judge M. Walter Flynn, Jr., clerk, in the Third district court Friday morning read the following:

THE INHERITANCE TAX.

When President Coolidge spoke to the National Tax association at Washington and declared that the government ought to get out of the business of levying a federal inheritance tax, he struck home at a taxation situation which has nothing outside of an unusual emergency to commend it. It was for such an emergency during the war that the federal tax was revived. The president would still leave the authority with congress to revive such a tax should occasion warrant it, but he believes that the emergency is past, that the tax should be reduced to the point of elimination as soon as possible, and in that stand he offers convincing arguments.

Those who have had anything to do with settling estates know that the situation is bad enough when the inheritance tax is confined to the states. There are but one or two states where such a tax is not collected but the situation is such that it is possible for three or five states to levy upon an estate if there is involved the stock of a corporation doing business, like railroads, in as many states. Pile upon these state levies the federal tax, which was increased in the recent revision of the revenue act so that it may amount to 40 per cent, and there are instances where taxation embarrasses industry, cripples estates and amounts to no more than confiscation of capital. It is not a tax on income but demands a huge slice of capital itself.

Is there any wonder that the president says, "If we are to adopt socialism, it should be presented to the people of the country as socialism and not under the guise of a law to collect revenue"?

The president has directed thought to the situation surrounding the inheritance tax in a manner that should result in the removal of a war measure now that the war is over. Even the situation regarding the collection of the tax by the states is bad enough and calls for remedies that will stop the injustices, but the opportunity for the removal of the federal intrusion into the field of the states is so obvious that it deserves early attention. It likewise turns the thoughts of many toward a situation which too often escapes attention until it is too late.

The president has been heard upon this subject before. He is no less sound because of reptition. He knows what he is talking about and speaks to the point quite the same as when fighting extravagance that there may be a reduction of taxes.

PRESIDENT STORRS' CHANGE.

The people of Connecticut are indirectly if not directly interested in the retirement of President L. S. Storrs from the Connecticut Trolley company and his appointment as managing director of the National Association of Street Railway Companies. They are interested not only because it means a call to larger duties and responsibilities but because this organization in which more than three-quarters of the street railways of the country are included thought so well of the manner in which the Connecticut company has been managed that it wanted similar influence brought to bear in connection with its own activities, or an extension throughout the country of the good services which have hitherto been confined to Connecticut.

Guiding the affairs of the Connecticut company has been no sinecure during the past several years. There are many positions which have many more attractions than the presidency of a trolley company, even at the present time, but it is no secret that the Connecticut company has had its troubles along with the rest and from many angles, but through excellent guidance and the meeting of the problems as they arose with judgment, tact and common sense serious obstacles have been overcome and a brighter outlook obtained.

The company has been fortunate to have the aid of President Storrs. His policies have made a good impression and will without doubt be continued as he moves to larger duties.

STICKING TO THE RHINE.

Germany had been looking forward to the withdrawal of the allied troops from the Rhine in accordance with the treaty terms which provided for this but while it longed for and looked for such a retirement it failed to look well to those responsibilities on its part that would warrant or encourage such a move.

The allied forces were to retire provided Germany had broken up its war machine. That was clear enough and imposed a burden on Germany. Germany has made some progress toward such an end in conspicuous places but what it has done is not sufficient to overcome what it hasn't done. It is, for instance, unable to convince the interallied military control commission that it has disarmed. When that commission reports that in Germany the police organizations have never been demobilized as a military force, when stocks of arms and ammunition are larger than the treaty permits, when the army of 100,000 which it is permitted by treaty is being trained for war rather than domestic purposes, when the annual recruiting goes beyond the fixed limit of 500 and when there is a general staff organization secretly guiding the training of the nucleus of an army, what can Germany expect from the allies?

Germany has undertaken to tell the allies that it has complied with all requirements. When investigators undertake to check this up and find in so many instances that it is not so, there can be only one answer. Germany has failed to establish such confidence in the minds of the allies. They are unwilling to trust it. Failure to comply with the treaty terms when contrary claims concerning compliance have been made arouses suspicion. Germany should have seen the wisdom of guarding against that. The impression is gained that it is trying to deceive the allies. Whether that is so or not it has left itself open to such a charge by its conduct and inability to convince the commission.

Germany has been obliged to pay a bigger price in certain ways because of its conduct, and it is unfortunate that it isn't disposed to eliminate the distrust.

NORWICH AND AUTO REGISTRATION.

Is Norwich and vicinity going to be satisfied with legislation that will provide for the addition of only three new branch offices of the department of motor vehicles, none of which is to be located here?

Norwich had its experience with the present arrangement at the close of the past year. Automobile owners found it necessary to stand out in the cold for hours and then failed to obtain their registrations, and this after being obliged to travel 25 miles or more. Some failed to get them even from the headquarters of the department at Hartford and the recognized inability of the department to meet requirements resulted in the prosecuting authorities refusing to insist upon the new markers by threatening prosecutions for a week or so after the first of the year. There were also many who were encouraged to go to additional expense in order to get their tags by the required time.

More applications are being made for auto registrations every year. It can be expected and it is only fair to the people of the state that adequate accommodations should be provided for their convenience. This can be done by establishing branch offices in each city of the state. Just why the residents of one city should be made to go to another to get their registrations is beyond explaining.

The addition of three branch offices of the motor vehicle department will only serve to partly meet the situation. It will do nothing to relieve the situation in those cities whose convenience is entitled to some consideration but which as yet have failed to get it.

Norwich should have a branch office. Willimantic should have a branch office. Putnam should have a branch office. So should Middletown and other communities which have a sufficient population to permit them to become cities. If there is not enough business for them to make them permanent they should at least be temporarily established during the periods when the bulk of the work is being thrown upon the department.

Is Norwich planning to seek such an advantage for itself?

JUDICIAL NOMINATIONS.

When Judges Hinman and Haines were named to existing or coming vacancies on the state supreme court of errors, selections which marked the good judgment of Governor Trumbull, it was necessary for him to fill the vacancies that will follow on the superior court bench.

The sending of the names of Edward M. Yeomans of Andover and Alfred C. Baldwin of Derby to the senate by Governor Trumbull for superior court judges means the choice of a democrat and a republican from opposite ends of the state, whose qualifications and ability are such as to insure the maintenance of the high standard of the state courts and a conscientious administration of the laws of the commonwealth.

Mr. Yeomans will provide Tolland county with a judge, the one county without one since the death of Judge Reed. There was considerable effort put forth by others in behalf of this appointment, and while the choice reflects in no way upon the others it must be regarded as a good one. Politically and as state referee of bankruptcy Mr. Yeomans is widely known.

Mr. Baldwin's choice will be particularly pleasing to his part of the state, but the whole commonwealth has reason for satisfaction at the decision to elevate him to the superior court bench.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Is it not surprising how many analogies there are between the activities of nature and human conduct? After what we passed through last week it is entirely appropriate to speak about the extravagances of nature. On Lincoln's birthday the writer had an engagement to meet in the northern part of the state. As it involved some 50 or more miles by trolley he had abundant opportunity to see nature as it boned right down to a real rampage. The swollen Quinebaug was holding high carnival all along the route. Ice jams were frequently seen; farm houses on the lowlands adjoining the river were virtually islands. Mud and slush were the order of the day generally. The thought that came to mind was this: Is this great excess of water merely waste? Here we are not quite released from shortage, yet millions of gallons were plunging tumultuously on to the sea, unutilized. Was this sheer waste? Or has nature some secret conservation that we know not of?

It would seem by this statement that nature is excessive—extravagant if you will. In the social world we should call such deeds "painting the town red." At any rate it is a streak of wildness that in our present state of limited scientific knowledge, we call a rampage. Still are not those so-called rampages kept within the domain of law? Suppose we should have three or four times as heavy a rainfall as we have ever had yet; or suppose the wind should sweep along at 150 or more miles an hour, and that a cyclone should become general rather than comparatively local; or suppose a snow storm of ten feet should fall upon New York—what then? Because these things have never come is it evidence that they are scientifically impossible? The goodness of God is still seen in the working of his natural laws.

Isn't it sometimes difficult to tell just where economy ends and parsimony begins? The miser is the illegitimate son of the economist, and parsimony is frugality gone to seed. That economy needs to be practised in all of our concerns is self evident. No matter how great one's wealth may be, wastefulness is always an economic crime. Its antidote is economy. No matter how vigorous one's physical health may be, it is simply sheer madness to deliberately expose one's self to malignant disease. However expert a swimmer my be, he would be a fool to attempt the Atlantic. Whenever we pass the point of moderation in anything we become unreasonable, and the unreasonable is always the excessive, and this is only another way of spelling extravagance and waste. If young people would spend their money on the budget system they would be surprised to see how much they foolishly waste in letting it go hit or miss.

As a people do we need to guard carefully against the strong tendency of the times toward the centralization of power, or rather against the over-centralization of power in our national congress? This question has been brought squarely to the notice of the American people in the child amendment act. It must be admitted that the spirit of that act was praiseworthy. It was, however, loosely drawn and ambiguous, and that caused wide-spread misunderstanding. The tremendous vote against it was not because the people generally were opposed to the welfare of children, but because it was putting into the hands of congress a power that belonged to the states, whose sovereignty they propose to safeguard. To protect little children and older children from excessive labor and from dangerous machinery is in the air and will certainly materialize, but it must be done through adequate legislation.

Is there not a great lesson in the rising temperature and the increasing sunlight? During the days of this prespring weather I saw the red bulbs of rhubarb poking up through the surface of the soil in my garden. Personally I think it was a great error of judgment on the part of the rhubarb. Its reputation for wisdom will probably be shattered before these words appear in print. But as rhubarb is not a sensitive plant it will very likely be bold enough to try it again later with a little more caution. But this plant does not stand alone in the line of deluded vegetable growths. Some trees, big enough and old enough, not to be fooled by the fickle weather, have put forth the swelling bud, but they will be "nipped in the bud" when one of our whirligigs in temperature comes. It has been stated that flocks of wild geese have been seen. We hope that their instinct has not been misled—and yet the 20 of March is some distance ahead.

The average man, being imperfect, has his faults, yet he has a kind heart and feels keenly when others are in pain or sorrow. If this is not so how shall we explain the universal interest that is now taken in the Floyd Collins case? Why have the newspapers given it headline space all over the country? Collins was not in any sense a man of unusual prominence. He was unknown outside of the section in which he lived. Still his case for a while was the most talked of in the whole country. The papers made no mistake in sensing the interest that his sad case aroused. It was not curiosity but a genuine pity for the poor fellow in such a sad plight. If it were feasible not an agency in the whole country would have been denied had there been the least chance of being useful. It shows that a really great people are a very kind people, as a really great individual is always kind-hearted.

There are two massive abutments upon which the Brooklyn bridge is suspended. As a matter of course they are not so very far apart. A suspension bridge must have, at least, two abutments and they cannot be so very far apart. Applied nationally, we many call one of those abutments, Washington, and the other, Lincoln. "The Father of his Country" is logically connected with its great "Emancipator." It is a singular, and at the same time, beautiful, coincidence that their birthdays should be only twelve days apart. This fact makes the analogy to the two abutments all the more significant. The abutments of a bridge are usually made of solid blocks of granite or other imperishable material. The first idea is that of strength and then beauty and utility. Washington and Lincoln were strong men; they were so useful that it seems as though they were raised up for the work they had to do. They both possess beauty of character.

There is every reason and the best of reasons why the American people should have made so much of February 22, and the reasons are no less pertinent why they should not continue to do in the future what they have done so loyally and whole-heartedly in the past. It may be well to revive the fact that another American, of whom the nation may be justly proud, first saw the light of day on February 22, twenty years after the death of Washington, and that was James Russell Lowell, who was born in 1819. Russell belongs to that somewhat autocratic literary coterie produced and fostered by the atmosphere of Harvard college in the first third of the 19th century. Like Longfellow (whom he succeeded) he was one of the honored members of its faculty.

CITIES AND PLACES THAT ARE NOUNS AND VERBS

The National Geographic Society, suggesting that the English language is full of geography, inquires whether you can connect these words with cities or places:

Lima beans, laconic, limerick, china, coffee, canaries, bauxite, survey, gasconade, troy weight, sisal, cologne, bologna sausage, tangerine, derby, castile soap and astrakhan.

Geography classes are doing this variation of "cross word puzzles" by giving the approximate latitude and longitude of places to be named.

Can you name a seven-letter fabric from Cambrai?

Or a five-letter surgical dressing that took its name from a town in Palestine?

Or a popular seven-letter color named for a famous battle in Italy?

The number of common words that had their origin in place names is surprising, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Calico traces its ancestry to Calicut, madras to Madras, and cashmere to Kashmir.

"Textiles have the habit of appropriating town names for trade marks and the very history of the art of making cloth can be followed along its westward march by putting capitals to familiar terms and slightly changing the spellings. Silk takes its label from old China—both terms having a common origin in Seres, the early name for the people of China. Damask rightly reminds us of Damascus, although honor for the cloth's creation goes to China. Europe called it damask because Damascus was the easternmost city which they knew as its source. In justice to Damascus it must be said her own looms later made the weave as perfectly as her steelworks made damascene blades.

"Muslin still is woven in the cool, damp cellars of Mosul from long staple silky cotton of southern Mesopotamia. Fustian is a heritage of Rome in Egypt. The 'fossatum,' or walls, protecting an imperial legion on the Nile became the nucleus of Cairo and in the Fustat, or Old Cairo quarter, Arabian weavers created fustian. Names bear living testimony to France's contribution to the textile art; cambric is the child of Cambrai, not long since a focal point of the West Front. Tulle, in Central France made possible the gauzy cloud of beauty for many a modern 'creation', while gauze itself honors Gaza in Palestine; Arras, also on the Western Front, made wall hangings so well that civilization forgets to capitalize the 'a'; and gingham is said to relate to Guingamp in Brittany although it may go back to a Malay term 'ging gang,' meaning striped.

Cows and Cloth of Jersey

"Worsted barely manages to squeeze on the maps of Norfolk county, England, today, so little connection has it with the production of thousands of yards of worsted. The channel island of Jersey is well advertised by its cows, but who connects it with the Jersey cloth that it originally made for stockings? Axminster in Devon admits it has made no rugs for more than one hundred years.

"These towns and places proudly boast their inventions but the way of inventors is hard—they often fail to get the credit. There is a noble bird in America, which graces our feasts annually, but because some on thought it was a native of the Near East we call it turkey. The guina pig ought to be a Guiana pig and about all panama hats see of Panama is the canal. And finally there is Brussels carpet—it is almost painful to explode the myth, but Brussels makes no Brussels carpets. They were made in Wilten, and took the title Brussels carpet because the designs imitated the famous Brussels tapestries.

Names of Men and Rivers

"A man achieves fame's pinnacle, it has been said, when his name is incorporated into the language as a verb. The verb 'pasteurise' is a splendid wreath on Pasteur's grave. Few cities or countries give us verbs, although they have given hosts of nouns and adjectives. Sixty miles south of Smyrna, a river empties into the Mediterranean after twisting a 380-mile tortuous course. Modern maps call it the Menderes but once it was known as the Meander, memorialized in the verb, 'to meander.' In 1500 when the classics of Greece and Rome were being saved to the world by the first master printers, Aldus Manutius of Venice brought out an edition of Vergil, dedicating it to the States of Italy. For this volume he created a new font of type simulating script. When we italicise today we use that font. A Chinese port serves to label a practice in the verb 'shanghai.'

"Make a better mousetrap, it is said, and the world will wear a path to your door. Names of towns and countries in our language are trademarks of famous 'mousetraps.' Venice early adopted the sentiment 'when better mousetraps are made, Venice will make them,' and this city has given its name probably to more things than any other. There is tribute to its craftsmen in the terms venetian glass, venetian sauce, venetian red, venetian ball, venetian blind, venetian carpet, venetian chalk, venetian (a textile,) venetian door, venetian embroidery, venetial flat point, venetian mallow, venetian pearl, venetian raised point, venetian soap, venetian sumac, venetian swell for organs, venetian white, venetian window, and a venetian, meaning a domino for masqueraders.

"Sardine" and "Sardonic"

"Sardine and 'sardonic' have little in common but they had the same mother, Sardinia. The first arose from the native practice of preparing small fish and the last from the fact the ancients got there an herb that puckered up the mouth. The Phoenicians got salt at a little port in southern Spain and so they called it, 'salsa,' meaning to salt; but when we use its revised form, salsa, we mean a luscious grape. 'Vandal' and 'frank' are the opinions of dying Rome concerning certain Germanic tribes.

"Long ago a bloody battle was fought near Magenta, Italy. Quite unconscious of the gory allusion, women often wear magenta named for this reddened field. In 1856 a fancy dressed troop of Croats from Austria were in France and the consummate glory of their costume the busy business man perpetuates today as his only vanity—the tie, or a cravat, from 'Croat.'

"Patricians of Rome liked to summer at a pleasant, sheltered seacoast resort they called Baia. Rome's Miami has given its name to thousands of indentations on hundreds of seacoasts and in some tongues it still is 'baia.'

Champagne Deserves Another Name

"Champagne should be called perignon, and thereby hangs a tale. Certainly the man who may have invented the use of corks to stop bottles as well as a wine deserves a place in the language. Dom Perignon was a monk back in the eighteenth century. It had been the custom to stop bottles with pads of hemp or cloth steeped in oil, but the monk conceived the use of cork instead. The firmly stoppered wine, he discovered, cut up all sorts of antics, that soon became famous. The Evil One helped in its manufacture, so rumor spread, but finally Dom Perignon's secret leaked out. The world goes elsewhere than to Champagne for the concoction today, though it is called champagne, forgetting Perignon.

"The English language is full of geography. But how many of us connect these terms with cities or places: lima beans, laconic, limerick, china, coffee, canaries, bauxite, savoy, gasconade, troy weight, sisal, cologne, bologna sausage, tangerine, derby, castile soap and astrakhan?"

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Charles S. Barrett, who is perhaps the most widely known of the members of the new federal agricultural commission, is serving his twentieth year as president of the Farmers' Union, a national organization especially strong in the south. Mr. Barrett is a Georgian, who, for the first part of his life was a general farmer and school teacher. Impressed with the need of unity among the farmers of the south, he set about building up an organization that in the course of time came to have such influence in Georgia that it soon spread to other states. Mr. Barrett has been on intimate terms with Presidents Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson, Harding and Coolidge, and by each of them he has been appointed on some federal commission. He makes his home and headquarters at Union City, Ga. His half dozen farms are scattered from the Blue Ridge Mountains to Florida.

Jerima Faced a Life of Perpetual Poverty

Taken from a happy home and placed in a nunnery, Maria Jerima obediently followed her mother's wishes that she live a life of celibacial, but the prospect of losing her beautiful spun gold hair was too terrifying.

Born in Brunn, Czechoslovakia, her early girlhood was filled with happiness. Her eldest sister was taken ill and when she was at the point of death, her mother, ardently pious, made a vow that if the child regained her health, Maria, the youngest should become a nun.

After the sister's recovery, Maria, always obedient, was taken, with her few belongings tied in a kerchief, to a convent to begin a life of perpetual poverty. After kissing her mother farewell at the portal she prepared to take the vow. Then came the recollection that nun's hair was shorn, and she felt that she could not part with her tresses.

Learning that three reprimands to a novice meant dismissal, she sewed the gowns of two novices together at chapel, stole apples, fought a fellow dominee player—and was dismissed.

Then began her preparation for social life, but after studying the piano, violin, violoncello and singing she obtained the chance to sing in the Olmuts theatre at Olmuts, Austria, and made her debut at 19 as Elsa in Lohengrin. Her reception was favorable and after five months she summoned her courage and with little funds went to the Volks Oper, at Vienna, and obtained a position. The director was exacting and the hours of rehearsal long, but she won success.

Called to the Court Opera at Vienna, a forfeit for cancelling her contract with the Volks Oper was demanded, and met by the Court Opera. Success then came rapidly. She created many roles, became a favorite and married Baron Leopold Popper de Podhrag", scion of a noble family.

Refusing offers to leave opera and become an actress she came to America at 30 and made her debut at the Metropolitan Opera House at New York, as Maria in Die Tote Stadt, and her voice and charming personality won an ovation.

Today she is praised as one of the greatest singing actresses of the world.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

TACNA AND ARICA

"What are Tacna and Arica—beside a controversy?"

The question arises because a decision is pending on whether or not a plebiscite is to be held in Tacna—a question that has hung fire since the "nitrate war" of 1883.

The National Geographic Society says:

"Tacna, at present, is the northernmost province of elongated Chile and has an area about equal to that of Massachusetts. Tacna also is a city, the capital of the Province of Tacna, whose 14,000 people comprise half the population of the province.

"Arica, the port of Tacna, once was a thriving city of some 30,000 people. Then it shipped out important products—ores, alpaca wool, barks, and chinchilla skins. Today it has fewer than 5,000 residents and is important principally as the salt water terminus of the railroad that cuts across the lower Andes from La Paz, Bolivia. Another railway runs to Valparaiso, 927 miles to the south, not a long trip in a country of magnificent longitudinal distances.

"The term, Arica, as a regional designation has disappeared from the map; the province which bore that name has been merged with Tacna.

"Volumes have been written about the Tacna-Arica controversy—a controversy that had its historic origin exactly 100 years ago when the Republic of Bolivia was born.

"A glance at a map will show the geography of the dispute. Tacna is Bolivia's closed corridor to the sea and it is the Alsace-Lorraine of Chile and Peru.

"Tacna is mountainous, but that easy description gives a false picture. The Andes do not project a series of ranges into the province, but extend a plateaulike cordilliera, with solitary peaks rising here and there in majestic grandeur. Once their crests were volcanic caldrons, now in their old age they wear their graceful caps of snow.

"These older mountains contribute wisdom, as well as dignity, to the scattered children of the valleys. In the irrigated districts of Tacna sunset is the time fixed for transferring the water from one section to another. But in a valley, below the sharp rise of the inclosing hills, the instant of sunset may occur earlier at the western end of the valley.

"After the sun has set in the lowlands it continues for some time to light up the snow-clad mountain peaks. Therefore the ancient agriculturists agreed that sunset occurred when the sun ceased to illuminate the snow-crowned mountains. And, to this day, the farmer folk of Tacna look to their mountains for this benign good night signal.

"The Sama River is the northern boundary of Tacna and the Sama Valley yields grapes which have made the name of Moquega, the bordering Peruvian province, famous among connoisseurs; and helped swell the world's raisin output to the point where the distributers began to inquire whether or you had your iron today.

"And now that science has traced goitre to the absence of the tiny regulatory quantities of iodine your system needs, certain American cities call upon the Chilean littoral for iodine, dump it in their municipal reservoirs, and perform another modern miracle of preventive medicine.

"Nitrate of soda is virtually a Chile monopoly and many of the tiny plants occur in Tarapaca, along Tacna's southern border. Whether the world uses swords or ploughshares, Chilean nitrates have a ready market—they enrich the soil and they help make explosives.

"Iodine is a byproduct of extracting nitrates from the caliche rock. The nitrate establishments limit their production to every sixth year so the market may not be over-stocked.

"Tacna yields sulphur and boyax. There also, is grown the coca plant, source of cocaine, which thousands who have had the toothache call blessed. This plant has peculiar leaves. The upper surface, deep green, smooth and velvety, is unlike the under side, which is light green with a band of paler color on each side of the midrib.

"Tacna and its northern and southern neighbors but only comprise one of Natures greatest wholesale drug warehouses, but it was from Machu Picchu, the ancient city of the Incas to the north, in Peru, that the world's greatest grocery staple, the potato, originated. This seat of a marvelous agricultural system was explored by a National Geographic Society Expedition led by Hiram Bingham, now U. S. Senator from Connecticut."

Today's Puzzle

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Beauties of Heaven.

God teaches us about Himself and about heaven through the knowledge we possess. If He were to send prophetic vision of the glories of the life to His servants today the vision might be full of mechanical, electrical and scientific wonders, instead of like those of Daniel or John. There might be wonderful heavenly auto cars and flying machines and other such vehicles for annihilating speed as our present knowledge would enable us to have vision of; also of art and music, we would doubtless see the greatest pictures and hear the most wonderful music we could imagine. All our knowledge would be used to aid in giving us some conception of the glories of heaven; and then we should be very far from forming an adequate conception of the reality.

But our faith will help us to overcome our limitations, and we shall believe that there is no possibility of overestimating the greatness of God or of what He has prepared for us. That is the great thing. We cannot know just what it will all be like in any definite way, but we can know that we shall not be disappointed. We can know that Heaven will be greater, more beautiful, more wonderful and more satisfying in every way than any idea we can form of it. And we may know that any vision of it that is vouchsafed us here will have something to correspond to it when we reach the heavenly city.

Do we see pearly gates before our mind's eye? We shall not be disappointed in the pearly gates. There may be nothing to correspond with what we should now think of as gates, but yet the pearly gates will be there—there will be something we shall recognize as the beautiful gates of our dreams. Do we see a great white throne, hosts of angels? All these things will have a place in heaven. Do we see the cloud of witnesses and in the crowd faces of loved ones? We shall not be disappointed, but shall surely find the facts in this and all other particulars for any of our dreams.

This world is intended to teach us of heaven, and we may be sure that there is not a glory of sunset, a magnificence of sea, a beauty of land, that will not find some counterpart in heaven.

Stories That Recall Others

A Case in Point.

Speaking of divorce cases, a women related the following, mixup to a group of her friends:

It was a case where the wife was the plaintiff. She and defendant had married in 1911 and the husband in 1921 obtained a divorce; the two remarried in 1923, separated in 1924 and the wife sought a divorce in 1925. The defendant was her third husband. Her first husband had died and she had obtained a divorce from No. 2 and married No. 3 less than a year later. Three of her female witnesses were divorcees; the first husband of one of these obtained a divorce and she got a divorce from her second husband. The daughter of the defendant was married three times, having obtained divorces from her first two husbands. The defendant was a far-sure widow when he married the plaintiff, the first time, his former wife having died. The outcome, according to the last information, was still in the hands of the court.

They Got Even With Everybody.

St. Valentine's day permits of many pranks. A grocer sent comic valentines to five of his best women customers living in a nearby apartment. He neglected to include his name with the valentines. They were doubtful compliments and touched with bits of sarcasm, so discussion was rife as to the identity of the sender. No one dreamed that the sender was only a disinterested grocer. Considerable jealousy and ill-feeling existed among the occupants of the apartment house and each of the five secretly accused her neighbor of participating in the affair.

Hardly had the early morning mail been received when five determined women dropped brooms and dishes and made a hasty advance on the nearest store where valentines could be obtained. The kind was bought that showed vengeance was intended. None knew exactly who the conspirators were, but one took no chances. She sent a missive to every possible or probable culprit. That evening the mail boxes were stuffed with valentines expressing sentiments varying from sarcastic comedy to mild threats of murder.

Too Early for King to Rule Hungary

The Hungarian premier, Count Bethlen, referring to recent utterances of the leader of the legitimists Count Julius Andrassy, declares that the Hungarian throne must remain unoccupied until the country succeeds in solving the problem of finding a person in full agreement with the great powers. The present conditions of foreign and internal policy are not such that this question can be settled without disadvantageous consequences and the affair is not of such importance that its solution cannot be deferred to a suitable moment.

Snakes of the non-poisonous varieties are a popular form of pet among English society women. One woman has more than a hundred of these reptiles.

SUFFERED TWO YEARS

Finally Relieved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Says Mrs. Anderson

Rangeley, Maine.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me greatly for pains in the sides and back, headaches and tired feelings. I suffered two years and it seemed as though I could not get my work done from one day to the next. After reading letters from others who had taken the Vegetable Compound I decided to try it and now I can do all kinds of work sewing, washing, ironing and sweeping. I live on a farm and have five in the family so am busy most of the time. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends and hope my letter will help some one to take your medicine."—Mrs. WALTER E. (Special to The Bulletin)

Westerly, R. I., Feb. 20.—Fire started in a pile of shingles in the basement of the Crandall garage, on West Broad street, Pawcatuck, Friday evening, shortly before 9 o'clock. An attempt was made to ring in a fire alarm from Box 54, West Broad and Morgan streets, but the box refused to work and the Pawcatuck fire alarm whistle was sounded from the valve on the roof of the Cottrell press works plant. The P. S. Barber fire company under Egineer Pierce Morrison responded and two lines of hose were laid from a West Broad street hydrant and the flames were soon out. Entrance to the garage which was closed was made by breaking out a window and automobiles were run out into the street, so that when the fire company arrived the hose could be directed through a hatchway into the basement. HARTFORD MAN DESCRIBES HOW TO FORM CREDIT RATING BUREAU

ALFRED C. MOREAU

Methods for the formation of a credit bureau in Norwich were explained to the Norwich credit exchange Friday evening at a supper-meeting held at 6.15 o'clock at the Wauregan house with an attendance of thirty. This was the 63rd weekly meeting of the exchange.

J. Fred Fleming, president of the exchange, spoke of the benefit that has come to the members through the exchange and introduced the speaker of the evening, Alfred C. Moreau, manager of the Hartford credit bureau, who had previously had several years credit experience in Fall River and Providence.

Co-operation, said Mr. Moreau, is the essential thing in credits and all members profit by each other's experience. Slow collections actually operate to retard sales, but tactfulness in collection efforts increase sales. The credit rating bureau must be efficient in all details, he said, must be in a position to give immediate answers to its members, and in a position to give impartial and unbiased information to those privileged to receive it. It will pay for all the time the members want to put into it, the community will profit by it and the merchants will profit. After you have had the credit bureau for a while, he predicted, you will not want to give it up for anything.

Mr. Moreau gave many instances from his experiences of the benefits to merchants through the operation of a credit bureau and described the preliminary steps needed to be taken if one is to be established in Norwich.

There was apparently a considerable sentiment in the meeting in favor of the formation of a credit rating bureau in this city.

DESCRIBES GREAT WORK IN HELPING THE POOR

The regular meeting of the women's federation and parish house deparment of Park Congregational church was held in the parlors of the Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial on Friday afternoon. A food sale under the direction of Mrs. William H. Collins preceded the program.

The president, Mrs. Frederick W. Cary, led the devotional exercises and announced that routine business would be omitted as guests were present. The chairman of the parish house, Miss Louise C. Howe, had charge of the program, which opened with two songs Sunrise and The Thought of You, feelingly interpreted by Mrs. E. A. Harris, accompanied by Mrs. Charles A. Saxton.

Miss Howe then introduced Miss Halle Woods, superintendent of the bureau of relief of the association for investigating the conditions of the poor, which has its headquarters in the Associated Charities building, New York. Miss Woods gave a resume of the departments and work accomplished since it was founded in 1843.

For the last ten years educational work has been done from a fund received from the Rockefeller Foundation and many fatherless children have been able to fit themselves by an opportunity for two years of high school, trade or vocational school, or commercial school after compulsory schooling is over. Over 6000 families have been tided over during long or short illness of the fathers during the past year. Visiting nurses and dietitians are employed in teaching mothers in the homes. Public baths and playgrounds are maintained and in the Fresh Air work a home where four hundred mothers and children are given a stay of ten days, a boys' camp, a vacation farm for little girls, and a small place where 16 old people are given brief vacations.

In the various departments nearly a million dollars were expended last year received from eleven thousand individuals besides groups who gave donations.

This organization is one of six to distribute the funds received from the appeals of the New York Times, "100 Neediest Cases." Last year nearly $250,000 was divided among the organizations in response to those appeals. Two or three most interesting cases were related by Miss Woods.

Three charming slumber songs by Mrs. Harris closed the formal program which was followed by the social hour with afternoon tea served by the committee, Miss Edith M. Bliss, Miss Alice W. Coggswell and Miss Alexandrine Trumbull, with Mrs. Carl Eaton and Miss Hannah Prowell at the tea table.

BULKELEY FIVE TAKES CLOSE GAME FROM SOUTH KINGSTON HIGH TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Peacedale, R. I., Feb. 20.—Bulkeley invaded South Kingston High school's home floor and departed with a hard-earned victory, completing the fifth consecutive victory for the Orange and Black. The contest marked a terrific strain on both the players and spectators alike, and the ability of the visiting five to finish strong was one of the determining features of the Whalers' victory. The final tally showed the score to be 23 to 20, with Bulkeley the favored team.

Gradually overcoming the lead which the locals were able to establish by stellar work in the first quarter, Bulkeley erased off a point in the next quarter and drew nearer her rival. At half time the whistle shrilled its notes of time out and the home five was able to hold a scant one-point lead against the Bulkeley machine. A substitution in the Bulkeley ranks in the second half seemed to be for the better, and a more evenly balanced machine met the efforts of the Rhode Islanders. Taylor had tossed in five field baskets in the first half, the lone point of field goals harvested by Bulkeley in that period. But a double watch was set upon his tracks in the second half, and Harris and Watterson were able to account for three goals from the field between them. Taylor did not remain completely inactive and dropped in two field and two foul goals during that eventful period.

After a hectic third quarter, Bulkeley took the lead after Harris had sent a field goal through the hoop. The score stood 19 to 18 for Bulkeley, the only time during the entire game the orange and Black led her rival. The last quarter featured a close defense by both teams, but still Bulkeley was able to outscore and outplay the South Kingston five. At the termination of the game the Bulkeley five gained their fifth consecutive win.

Buck Taylor was again the outstanding star for the Orange and Black five, with his accurate shooting and fine all round ability giving him scoring honors. Taylor had seven field goals with two fouls, for a total of 16 points, more than half of the entire Bulkeley team. Contanza for Kingston played well.

AGGIES CLASH WITH HOLY CROSS FIVE TONIGHT

(Special to the Bulletin)

Storrs, Conn., Feb. 20—A fast basketball game is promised at Storrs tomorrow night, when the Connecticut Aggies are scheduled to meet Holy Cross on the Hawley Armory court at the State College. Coming as it does but three days after the Mass. Aggies tussle, it will mean the second hard game during the week for the Storrs five, and for this reason Coach Dole has not driven his men to any extent in making ready for the game. No practice was held yesterday and only a light session was indulged in today. The team went through a drill on signals and formations, and also put in a session of basket shooting both from the floor and the foul line.

Coach Dole will start Captain Balock and Schofield in the forward berths, Eddy at center, Allard and Makofski in the back court. Lined up against them for Holy Cross will be Passalno and Peloquin, forwards; Riley center, Burke and Farrell guards. This is the regular Holy Cross combination, and one that has been traveling at a fast pace for the Purple this season. Riley and Peloquin are the two outstanding stars of the Worcester combination, and both are freshmen playing their first year on the varsity. If past performances count for anything, the Aggies will have to watch these two men closely, if the Holy Cross offense is to be kept in check. Throughout the season, these two freshmen have connected regularly for the larger portion of the Purple goals, and they will require close guarding tomorrow night.

Holy Cross defeated Clark last Wednesday by a 45-27 score, which indicates the Purple possess a strong attack. Earlier in the month Clark fell before the Storrs team with a 42-26 score, and if comparative scores can be considered, it would indicate that the two teams will be fairly evenly matched when they line up tomorrow night.

This will mark the first meeting of Holy Cross and Connecticut since 1923, when in the last game between the two institutions the Purple was defeated 31-22 at Storrs.

The game will be called promptly at 8 p. m.

ROWING ACTIVITIES AT YALE ARE SUSPENDED

New Haven, Feb. 20.—All rowing activities at Yale have been suspended until Monday following the announcement of the death of Mrs. E. J. Leader, wife of the university's head rowing coach. During the absence of Coach Leader, the rowing activities will be directed by George Murphy, regular freshman coach, and Leon Moore, coach of the class crews.

Yale's four varsity crews will take to their eight oared shells next week and the freshmen will use the two-oar barge.

BRITISH TEAM IS PUT OUT OF RACQUETS PLAY

New York, Feb. 20.—The British threat to the American crown was eliminated today when N. C. O. Williams and J. C. Simpson, stars of the Queens club, London, and the only foreign entrants, met defeat in the second round of the singles tournament at the Racquet and Tennis club.

The decisive defeat of Simpson by Stanley W. Pearson of Philadelphia by scores of 5-4, 15-5, 15-7, was an outstanding upset. Williams was beaten by Hewitt Morgan of New York in a keenly fought match that went the limit of five games. The American pulled the match out after dropping the first two games, winning by scores of 11-15, 9-15, 15-13, 15-3, 15-3.

The elimination of Jay Gould of Philadelphia, the national court tennis king, by Stanley G. Mortimer of New York was another feature but was not regarded as a reversal, since Gould is comparatively inexperienced at racquet. The scores were 15-9, 15-6, 15-9.

Clarence C. Pell, of New York, the defending champion came through victoriously against Considine Hutchins of Boston, 15-7, 15-7, 10-15, 15-4, and will meet Morgan tomorrow in one of the semi-final matches. Pearson and Mortimer will be opponents in the other.

CONNECTICUT ALL STARS WILL PLAY AT PARISH HALL SUNDAY

Desirous of giving the fans in this vicinity the greatest basketball attraction of the season the stage is all set for the All Star quintet, Connecticut's premier aggregation, to invade the local court tomorrow afternoon.

The All Stars made up of the leading performers of each of the five topnotch outfits of the state, insist when they take the floor against the Army-Navy Five that they will present to the followers of the sport the most perfect quintet that has ever played in Parish Hall. Rube Cohen, captain of the Lyrics of Hartford, and Heine Carrington, one of the best long shot artists in the game, will team up in the forward positions. Harry Benson, Silk Town's leading performer will be center, while Dutch Leonard of the Hartford Kaceys and Butsy Sturn of the All-Middletown team will form the defense.

The local quintet, while believing they will encounter the stiffest opposition of the season, feel confident that they will come out on the long end of the score. Mondi Normandin, Willimantic flash and Jimmy Murphy, local athlete, will hold down the forward berths. Old Reliable Harry Mills will be assigned to the pivot position with Joe Belair and George Coleman doing the guard work in the back court. Eddie Murphy and Tommy Coleman will make up the reserve strength of the team.

In the preliminary encounter the A-N Seconds will stack up against the Battery B Five. The game is called for 3 o'clock.

At the Baltic gym on Friday evening the Stafford Springs Kaceys defeated the Baltic Wanderers 47 to 32 in a game that was rather one-sided. The Kaceys took the lead early in the game and held it throughout. A sad lack of teamwork on the part of the Wanderers was responsible for their defeat.

In the preliminary game the Bantams overwhelmed the Jewett City team 49 to 38. The score

New York, Feb. 20.—Tommy Gibbons and Harry Wills, the two outstanding contenders for the world's heavyweight championship, have agreed to meet at the milk fund charity bouts here next summer, it was announced tonight.

Gibbons agreed to the match some time ago. Wills, through his manager, Paddy Mullins, accepted the terms of the promoters today. The bout, which will be held in one of New York's baseball parks, will be scheduled for 15 rounds, and the winner will be matched later in the summer for a title bout with Jack Dempsey, providing the champion agrees to fight once more before retiring. The milk fund matches are promoted by a New York newspaper.

Paul Berlenbach, New York lightheavyweight, and Jack Delaney of Bridgeport will meet in the semi-final match on the same card, the promoters said, if terms offered the pair are met. The managers of the boxers have tentatively accepted, but have not signed contracts.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Notwithstanding to eghneral impression to the contrary, the regulated system of combat with the closed fists which now bears the name of boxing and which as a system had its origin in England, dates only from the earlier half of the eighteenth century. The rules, including the rounds and the intervals between, were the production of John Broughton, who died in 1885.

The announcement that Cure, the French billiard expert, is to attempt a come-back, serves to recall the fact that he was one of the participants in the first world's 18.2 balkline championship tournament, which was held in Paris in 1903. The other contenders were Slosson, Sutton and Vignaux. There was a three-cornered tie among Cure, Sutton and Vignaux for the first place, and Vignaux declared that he had won because he made the best general average. He declined to play off, and taking the matter into court was sustained. He defended his title against Sutton the following year and defeated the American in a 500 point match by a narrow margin of four points.

Though little known in America, Badminton is a popular game in the British Isles. The Badminton Association has a membership of more than 500 organized clubs in England, and there are probably several times that number of clubs that are not affiliated with the association.

The reports that Jack Dempsey may retire from the ring recalls the fact that James J. Jeffries was the only heavyweight champion of late years who voluntarily gave up his claim to the title and retired unbeaten because he could not find a man who dared to face him. After knocking out Jack Monroe in two round in 1904 Jeffries stepped aside but six years later he was enticed back into the squared circle to meet defeat at the hands of Jack

The decision of the stewards of the Poughkeepsie regatta to return to their old love, the four-mile varsity race, terminates one of the liveliest controversies in the history of American rowing. It is an open secret that the growing popularity of the American Henley at Philadelphia furnished the motive for shortening the distance at Poughkeepsie to three miles, the idea being that by so doing more colleges would be attracted to the big intercollegiate event. The threatened rivalry seemingly having disappeared, the stewards have decided to return to the four-mile course. Their decision is pleasing to all lovers of aquatic sports, for there was always something about that "last mile" that added zest to the big varsity race.

Lenten Sacred Concerts.

The Lenten season has ever been a period devoted to spiritual and mental uplift in which music has played a major part, inspired of this fact a large group of Norwich women have chosen Sunday March 8 and 15 as a most fitting time to give two sacred concerts as a benefit for Connecticut college. Because of its wonderful organ the Palace theatre has been decided upon as the place to hold these sacred concerts. The management generously donating the use of the theatre to the cause.

Dr. J. Lawrence Erb, director of music at Connecticut college and Miss Marie Tiffany, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company are the artists of the first concert.

Miss Tiffany, one of the most popular of American singers, came to New York in 1916 to meet friends. An audience was arranged for the young soprano with Galli-Casazza, and her engagement for the Metropolitan Opera company followed forthwith. She has sung many roles, some of them at very short notice, many of them without rehearsal, and her voice, charm and musicianship have made her a Metropolitan favorite. In the field of recital, Miss Tiffany has met with equally great success. Her performances in opera and in concert have placed "her name on every tongue where music is known."

Another factor is the phonograph. For several years Miss Tiffany has been one of the stars of the Brunswick. She is one of their steady best-sellers.

Dr. Erb, who is a distinguished organist, before coming to Connecticut college, was director of music at the University of Illinois. This is his first appearance before a Norwich audience.

The concert of March 15 is to be another great treat. Mr. Frank Farrell and Mr. Frederick W. Lester will play one of the famous Lizst Concertas with orchestral accompaniment. Mr. Farrell in the past few years has devoted a part of his time to concert work with great success. He has personally selected a concert grand piano for the concerta. With Mr. Lester in orchestral accompaniment on the theatre large organ this concert promises to be one of the high spots in the musical life of Norwich.

Mr. Lionel Storr of New York will be the song artist on this occasion.

Mr. Storr, a bass-baritone, possesses a voice of singularly beautiful quality, with ample quantity and range which he uses with exquisite taste and skill. He has command of four languages, his programmes are uniquely varied and as an oratorio singer he has few peers.

Tickets are $2 for the two concerts and are now in the hands of a committee. Fifty cents extra will be charged for reserved seats which will be on exchange at Palace theatre after 9 a. m. Feb. 25, 26, 27.

Next Week at United Congregational Church.

The Missions department of the Guild invites all women of the parish to come to the Community house at half past ten, Friday morning, prepared to make surgical dressings or baby garments, for a home missionary hospital. At noon the Kings Daughters Circle will serve a cafeteria lunch to all who are assembled at the Community house, and to those others who wish to come in for the noon hour. In the afternoon there will be adjournment to the Interdenominational meeting to observe the Nation-Wide Day of Prayer for Missions, held in the Church of the Good Shepherd at three o'clock.

The Pequot Camp Fire Girls will meet at the Community house, at 7.15 Friday evening to finish work on their baskets.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

Young Ideas, guaranteed to be as sprightly as it sounds, is the film attraction at the Broadway theater Sunday night only, when Universal presents the third of the Laura La Plante starring features. The story is by Sophie Kerr, popular fictionist, and was scenarized by Hugh Hoffman and directed by Robert F. Hill, the men who made Miss La Plante's first two starring successes, Excitement and The Dangerous Blonde.

The story concerns a young girl with old ideas, the mainstay of her family, who is so good natured she continues to support her relatives even after it is apparent they are simply "sponging" off her salary. She even does the work around the house. But a young man in love with her did wonders by the simple expedient of getting her into another house and then having the house quarantined, thus leaving the poor relatives to shift for themselves in the cold, hard world.

Eva Novak and William Fairbanks is the second feature at the Broadway theater Sunday night only. They are starring in The Beautiful Sinner, a detective romance which is a series of thrills from start to finish. A band of crooks land in this country after committing a robbery in Peru. They are discovered by a young criminologist and he decides to go on the case at the request of a secret service man. Among the band he finds a young beautful girl who has been vouched for by his aunt. Her connection with the band and the final working out of the mystery form the subject of a very interesting picture.

A comedy and news are the short subjects.

An entirely new program will be offered for Monday in vaudeville and pictres.

Palace Theater

The Palace theater management have brought some very fine orchestras to Norwich but Jimmy Gomes Radio Entertainers are without doubt the best aggregation that have been seen here this season. The Norwich audiences are showing at the Palace that they appreciate his ability as a leader and the talent of his associates by the continued calls for encores. Yesterday at every performance it was necessary to pull the lights in order to be able to go on with the rest of the bill. Jimmys interpretation of My Wild Irish Rose to symphonic Rhythm was a decided hit. The entire bill went over as all Palace shows have been going with a bang.

Inez from Hollywood is just packed with romance and thrills and Lewis Stone, Mary Astor and Anna Q. Nilsson in the cast show what a capable trio of artists can do with a story that has substance.

Starting next Monday the Palace management announce that five acts of vaudeville will be given on each end of the week. A strong bill is lined up for the holiday which features two headline acts. Catherine Redfield and her operatic sweethearts a company of seven with special scenery and the See Taya Troya, a fast tumbling act that has been featured in all the big time houses. Richard Barthelmess in his latest picture Classmates will be seen on the screen.

Strand Theater

It would be a difficult task to select a more attractive picture program than the offering at the Strand for Sunday, Monday, Tuesday. Two features will be shown and the both of them are said to be full of action and thrills. Kenneth Harlan and Jane Novak will be seen in A Man Without a Heart.

The plot of The Man Without a Heart hinges on the misunderstanding of a fancy free but very eligible young bachelor (Kenneth Harlan,) who though previously impervious to the wiles of the fair, suddenly finds himself falling in love with a young woman (Jane Novak,) a guest of his sister, whom he mistakenly believes is about to elope with his brother-in-law.

How he kidnaps her in a vain effort to prevent a scandal and how the tangle is finally straightened out after many exciting adventures and considerable embarrassment, forms a screen story of intriguing excellence.

The cofeature for the above days will be Sir Conan Doyles, The Desert Sheik, starring Wanda Hawley and Nigel Barrie. In this picture those who love thrills will find a plenty as it contains many exciting situations.

Today for the last time at the Strand Billie Rhodes in Leave It to Gerry and William Fairbanks in a thrill feature The Other Kind of Love will be shown continuous from two until ten thirty. A special holiday program of vaudeville Tryout acts will be the added feature at the Strand Monday night.

Breed Theater

Supporting the William Fox featured players, George O'Brien and Dorothy Mackaill in The Painted Lady coming to the Breed theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, cute petite Lucille Ricksen and Margaret McWade have interesting human roles that give them a chance for some fine character acting.

Miss Ricksen plays Alice, the sweet innocent kid sister of the hero, ignorant of life, who in her big brother's absence at sea goes on her first fast nightlife party at a Barbary Coast roadhouse and falls a pathetic prey in the brutish fangs of the Sea Wolf.

Her terrible experience on the schooner Vulture, her pitiful return home in the cold grey dawn to her old, anxious waiting mother, and her death from shock in her mother's arms are poignant drama poignantly enacted.

Margaret McWade, as the mother fully lives up to her big chance in this scene, and the equally big one when her big sea-faring son returns home, and she expires in his arms as he vows to pursue unto the ends of the earth the Sea Wolf who ruined Alice.

Al St. John in Stupid But Brave and Topics of the Day make up the remainder of the bill.

Today is your last chance to see Marion Davies in Janice Meredith also Days of 49, McCalls Color Fashion news and the Pathe news. Continuous show today 1:30 to 10:30 P. M.

Attractive Pictures at Y. M. C. A Sunday.

On account of the mistake of the film dealers the wrong films were sent two weeks ago for the Y. M. C. A. meeting and the pictures on Moses advertised on that occasion were not shown, but will be shown tomorrow in the large gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A. building. These pictures include The Exodus and the Red Sea Miracle, the Israelites in the wilderness, Mount Sinai and the Ten Commandments, the Law repeated and the death of Moses. There has been a marked interest in the other pictures of this series, and doubtless these final films on the life of the great leader of Bible history will appeal to a large number. It must be understood that this meeting is primarily for adults, and not for children; if, however, parents desire to bring boys and girls not too young they will be admitted, and not otherwise. Hugh Kinder will furnish music for the pictures and render solos.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
Lincoln's Favorite Hymn

If you cannot on the ocean
Sail among the swiftest fleet
Rocking on the highest billows,
Laughing at the storms you meet,
You can stand among the sailors,
Anchored yet within the bay,
You can lend a hand to help them
As they launch their boats away.

If you are too weak to journey
Up the mountain, steep and high
You can stand within the valley
While the multitudes go by;
You can chant in happy measure
As they slowly pass along—
Though they may forget the singer,
They will not forget the song.

If you have not gold and silver
Ever at your command;
If you cannot toward the needy
Reach an ever-helping hand,
You can succor the afflicted,
Over the erring you can weep;
With the Saviour's true disciples
You a tireless watch may keep.

If you cannot in the harvest
Garner up the richest sheaves
Many a grain, both ripe and golden,
Oft the careless reaper leaves,
Go and glean among the briars
Growing rank against the wall,
For it may be that their shadow
Hides the heaviest wheat of all.

If you cannot in the conflict
Prove yourself a soldier true,
If where fire and smoke are thickest
There's no work for you to do
When the battlefield is silent,
You can bear with careful tread—
You can bear away the wounded,
You can cover up the dead.

Do not, then, stand idly waiting
For some greater work to do:
Fortune is a lazy goddess—
She will never come to you.
Go and toil in any vineyard;
Do not fear to do or dare—
If you want a field of labor
You can find it anywhere.

The Grave in the Forest

A great tree fell in the forest,
With a crashing, thunderous sound;
Slowly and terribly stretching
His ponderous length on the ground,
And lay at the feet of his brothers,
Mangled and dead,
Just as a mighty giant
Would pillow his head.

And his brothers looked down upon him—
Swaying their heads for grief—
And joined their voices in wailing,
But none of them deigned relief;
None of them cared to reach
Their myriad helping arms,
But stood upright in the forest,
And braced anew for the storms.

Paler and colder they grew
Till an autumn funeral day,
Then some of them strewed their leaves
On the great, dead tree as he lay.
But the leaves grew browner and browner,
And shriveled, and thin, and old;
Then a winter wind blew them away
With one blast of its breath bitter cold.

So he lay untombed and forgotten,
With his shattered boughs forming a bier;
With never a flower or a tear,
But a troop of forest children,—
Green mosses and lichens gray,—
The woodland's own little darlings,
Found out where the dead tree lay.

And with never a thought of its greatness,
Through sunshine, through rain, through sleet,
They have woven the loveliest mantle,
And covered him head and feet:
A mantle of costliest texture,
Of varied and rare design,
These loving and tender mosses,
These lichens drawn up in a line.

I have been all through the woodland,
And, just as I saw it today,—
The peacefulest place in the forest
Was where the dead giant lay.

GLAD TO SEE CORNER GROWING

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: I wish to thank a Social Corner Member for such a nice calendar. I appreciate it very much.

I have been shut in by the ice and snow but when it goes away I'll get out again. I have not been to a meeting at Norwich for some time, but may go to the next if it is pleasant.

I am sorry for those who have lost their loved ones and friends and if I could help them would be glad to do so.

What a large family we are now! I am glad to see the increase and glad I am a member. I can't do much but keep around though I would like to go and do for others.

Wish you all health and happiness.

SALLY SYRACUSE, (April 26.)

GREETINGS FROM CRIMSON RAMBLER

Social Corner Friends: Howdy! this nice morning, so nice to see all the ice and snow gone. Hope we do not have any more, having had a plenty.

Faye Verna: Very glad to see an article from your pen after such a prolonged absence.

Polly Peppermint: Was indeed sorry to read of your accident in last Saturdays paped. Didn't know you were residing in Norwich. Do hope you won't be laid up very long. It does seem so those autoists have no regard for life or limb.

Eca: Was glad at last to see your name added to the Social Corner page. You are welcome. Now hope to see you at some of the meetings. Pretty soon we will have enough out this way to start a club of our own. I know quite a few here now.

Anna Z: Your nice card received and will say thank you. Sorry to hear you do not gain very fast. Was it an auto accident you were in? I wish to thank all those who sent me valentines—Maple Leaf, J. A. C., Lorna and Junior.

Lorna: How are you coming on with your fancy bag? Have you got it finished yet?

Joan: Why so silent? Hope you received my letter and that I may have an answer soon.

J. E. T.: What do you think of the proposition I made to you? Have you given it due consideration? Hope to hear from you soon.

Lu V Acorn: My cactus is again in bloom. This morning I counted 15 buds. It had about 50 Christmas time. Isn't it funny it is budding again so soon? I have lots of pink, red and very dark red begonias in bloom, in fact a whole windowful and one full of buds that are white when they open out. I would just love to see all of yours. They must be just lovely. I think they look so pretty in a window when these are different colors. I have a pink oxalis that is full of buds too, but they don't last so long, they die out soon.

Anastasia: I was glad to see a letter from your pen once more. Are you still as busy as ever? Know you must have lots to do with three youngsters.

Rural Delivery: You said you live on a high hill and could see the eclipse in good shape. We, too, live on a high hill and could see it in great shape—a sight never to be forgotten. Am very sorry you could not figure out my blackberry problem. I thought you could figure it down to the cent or a fraction, then I could judge how many quarts it would take and then I could judge what price I might be able to pay for one. Guess I must try some other scheme. Anyway we had a good laugh over it, and they say all is well that ends well.

Here's hoping all those that are sick will soon be on the road to recovery with the coming of good weather.

CRIMSON RAMBLER, (March 5.)

SOME GOOD RECIPES

Dear Social Corner: This is the prize omelet, Mrs. R., which I spoke to you about over the phone when you called up about the fruit cake. It is very nice. I did not quite get your name over the phone but would you mind sending your raised doughnut recipe into the Corner.

English Omelet: 4 egge, 4 tablespoons boiling water, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons chopped onion, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 tablespoon green pepper, 1-2 cup grated cheese, 1 cup cooked tomato, 1 teaspoon baking powder stirred in crumbs.

Fry onion in butter (2 tablespoons of butter) add onion, parsley, green pepper, about 10 minutes then add tomato and cook 10 minutes, add salt. Beat eggs separately then add water to the yolks then fold in the whites with the other tablespoon of butter, grease the omelet pan, pour in the egg, shake the pan and when the egg is nearly set sprinkle over the grated cheese and crackers or brown bread (put these through chopper.) Spread some of the tomato over this, roll half of the omelet over the other half and place on hot platter, pour the rest of the tomato over the omelet, and serve at once. This recipe serves five people.

UNCLE SAM'S DAUGHTER.

GRAHAM NUT BREAD

Dear Social Corner Friends: I had a nice visit at the Buckingham on February fourth and met quite a lot of old friends. Have not attended one of the meetings for more than a year but would like to go often if they were near my home.

Hope some of the hostesses remember I carried in a cake early in the forenoon. I don't want them to think I came at dinner time empty handed. I wouldn't do that. I enjoy reading the Corner letters and know some of the writers. Was interested in Eveline Burr's letter and hope she will write more about the New England village.

Will send a nice recipe for

Graham Nut Bread: 2 cups graham flour, 1 cup white flour, scant teaspoon salt, 1 cup of nuts, 1 1-2 cups sour milk, 1 teaspoon soda, 1-2 cup molasses.

Best Wishes for the Corner

AUNTIE JANE, (June 17.)
Plainfield.

THOUGHTS OF HOUSECLEANING

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Does this weather make you think of spring cleaning? It does me, and I am planning to have a room painted and papered before long.

Mary France and Theoda: I thank you for your nice letters of sympathy in my hours of sorrow. They surely were comforting to me.

[illegible] I, too, like little pigs. When I was a little girl father had some little pigs that had to be taken in the house to be kept warm. The smallest one mother wrapped in a piece of flannel and I took it to bed to keep it warm. How happy I was. Dorinda realizes how much I like them for themselves; we are riding together I always call her attention to little pigs when I see them.

Diamond: I hope to get down to your house some time when hubby is in Norwich.

Best wishes to all

MALVINA.

JOINS MERRY PARTY

Dear Social Corner Editor: Have visited the Social Corner gathering as a guest and enjoyed it very much. Would like to join and be one of the merry party. Will take as my pen name

THANKS TO HELPERS

Dear Corner Sisters: I wish to express my thanks to each and every sister who so kindly assisted me with the dinner Feb. 4. Without your help the dinner could not have been a success. I am a little tardy but none the less sincere.

Hope to see a delegation from Club No. 1 at our anniversary meeting next month. I wish it could be clearly understood that ours is a Social club and not a quick lunch. The men are as eligible to join as the women if they go by the rules. You can't belong to any club or organization by just walking in. You have to go through some form and ours is so simple, why not comply with it?

Effie M: The needle is busy, not always the crochet needle, but quite often I'm darning needle.

Handie: Some sponge cake! Would like to see recipe in Corner page sometime.

Conawah: Will send package first of week.

Lonesome Pine: Suppose you have yards made.

Noank Brownie and Tootsie: Have I got to come to the beach again before I can see you?

Necia and Black Eyed Susie, Scottie and Savilla: You don't know what you missed by not going Monday. I went all by my lonesome and had a delightful time and oh, such a dinner with ice cream to top off with. Does it make your mouth water?

I remain as ever

TRUE BLUE.

HELPS WORTH KNOWING

Dear Sisters: Was glad to hear worthwhile in my letter. I will write her another help. Rub a little paraffine on the thread of a fountain pen before screwing on the head, it will prevent leaking every time.

Drop a piece of white soap in your dye before putting in the garment, stir just a few minutes, take out and rinse in plenty of cold water. This gives aas good a dye as a professional cleaner.

A good way to utilize old chenille curtains is to use them in quilts in place of cotton.

To remove jar lids, boil them in weak vinegar 20 minutes then in soap and water with a brush.

To rid a pan of the onion odor—wash it in the usual way with soap suds and hot water, washout with a dish cloth, then sprinkle freely with salt and place on the stove. Shaking the pan so as to scatter the salt while it is browning. After the salt has become brown throw it away and wipe out the pan. The salt will entirely dispel the flavor of onion.

In these days when you are using electric irons your flat irons do not often get rusty, but to those whose irons should get rusty, take several thicknesses of unpainted wire window-screen netting, folded flat, rub your irons on them and polish with salt.

To polish old oak furniture, first wash the furniture with a cloth dipped in warm soap suds, and when dry polish with a mixture made of beeswax and turpentine. Apply with a piece of green baize.

IN MEMORY OF C. E. S.

Dear Corner Sisters: Again another sorrow has come to one of our dear member's families and to our Corner in the passing to the Great Beyond on Friday last, of our dear sister, Mrs. Elmer Carter, known best to us as C. E. S.

Another home builder has gone just ahead of us, leaving us here to mourn, and think how fair it needs must be since she lingers there.

C. E. S. was one of the first to go to neighbors and friends in trouble. She was a most devoted mother, sacrificing all for the good of husband and children.

No task was too great for her to undertake, and see through, until the call came, "Well done, now good and faithful servant. Enter—take thy long deserved rest."

She was a devout member of the Congregational church of Scotland, a member of Shetucket grange, and a loyal member of our Social Corner.

All will remember her as chairman of our meeting this year, which meeting went down as a Red Letter event.

Her love of home, faithful in every service, loyal to all mankind, devoted to country life, her great love of flowers and plants, show the great inner soul, and so I may say the example of C. E. S. will linger long in our memories.

The final services and last tribute were given at Scotland church, and interment was in Scotland cemetery.

To the stricken family, our deepest sympathy is extended.

I cannot say, and I will not say
That she is dead. She is just away!
With a cheery smile and wave of the hand.
She has wandered into a fairer land.
Leaving us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be since she lingers there.

And you, oh you who the wildest yearn
For the old time step, and the glad return
Think of her still as the same I say,
She is not dead,—She is just away.
In loving memory

NEIGHBOR EVEREADY.

ANSWERS, AND MORE QUESTIONS

Dear Social Corner Pals: The warm sunshine and clear bracing air help us to feel old winter is on the wane, not enough though to discard as yet our (?) new fur coats, etc. In answer to Whirlwind's conundrums No. 1 is—IP. No. 2. When its teeth come out. No. 3. He shrinks from soap and water. No. 4. Without H he couldn't hear. No. 5. His master pays it for him.

Here are some for you. 1. Why do some people get bald? 2. Does the boiling of water remove impurities in it? 3. Do insects have brains like ours? 4. Why can parrots talk? 5. Why is it hard to run up hill and easy to run down? 6. Why does a giraffe have such a long neck? What is an echo, and how is it caused? 8. What is it that makes a person feel hungry? 9. Do animals laugh? 10. What is a kiss?

Of all the rooms in the world the greatest is the room for improvement. We can never hope to know it all so please think hard and I feel sure there will be many intelligent, interesting answers to my questions. I wonder how many of you have been reading, Round the World With the Fliers? It certainly is a most thrilling and instructive narrative and will help you to renew much of history and geography you had in your younger days. Kind thoughts of all and best wishes.

HOPE COBWEB.

LISTENIN' IN

Dear Sisters: We hear considerable these days about "listenin' in." I wonder how many of us are realy good listeners in every sence of the word. One day I saw a woman comin' to my house and sez I, "Samantha you'll get a good bit of knittin' dun this afternoon. That woman jest loves to tell her family genealogy and there was a big family." So I jest sot and knit while she told me of a family reunion and who her second cousins gal married, etc., all the afternoon and all I had to do was jest smile and say once in a while. Wus'nt that nice? Jest to let her knew I was listenin'. And when she left she sed she didn't know when she had enjoyed an afternoon so much. I think every one likes to meet a good listener. But the world is whirlin' so fast these days that few have time to listen.

Even the church workers are jazzy these days. It's O'dear I must call up so many folks to try and git costumes to wear at our next play, then I must hurry and make cake for the food sale. Then there is a committee meetin' this evening and I must help at the rummage sale tomorrow." That woman haint got time to do any listenin. It would jest do that woman's soul good to set down by the window and listen in on the blue jays, rusty black birds and sparrows chatterin' under her window.

Some of the young girls of today would do well to listen to the voice of prudence and the "newly weds" to the voice of economy.

How many think you are realy good listeners? Don't all raise your hands at once.

SAMANTHA.

DOESN'T WANT TO BE FORGOTTEN

Dear Editor, Sisters and Friends of the Social Corner: I know I ought to write occasionally to keep in good standing with the Corner. I read all the letters and they are so helpful and interesting, and how much good we all get from them.

A few weeks ago Dorinda wrote about the autograph albums we used to have years ago. I have two and I prize them highly. I have writings of many dear ones who have passed on, also have writings of two cousins who were over 90 years old the time they wrote. They were Cousin Job Gager of North Franklin and Cousin Othniel Gager of Norwich, who was town clerk of Norwich for many years.

Dorinda also wrote about going to school to Hattie Robinson. I went to school to her in the school house near the Brick church in Lebanon. She was a good teacher. She had singing in school and she taught the pupils a song, Lights Along the Shore. I have always remembered it. I have the names of all the boys and girls who went to school that term. Those were happy days and never can be forgotten. Of the 16 different teachers I have had only four are now living, Sarah Packham, Mary Sweet, Frederick Abell and David Smith.

Whirlwind: Your conundrums were fine there is one P in pint. I could not guess the rest.

I always enjoyed conundrums, riddles and puzzles. Here is one:
My first stands for company
My second shuns company
My third calls company
And my whole entertains company.

Why is a horse the most curious feeder in the world?

Why is the American Eagle like an enterprising business man?

What is the longest word in the English language?

Yellow Daisy: I have looked for a letter from you for quite a while, but I know you are kept busy with your store and house work. I hope to meet you at the next meeting at B. M.

Best wishes to all

SILVER LOCKS, (Nov. 3.)

THE WINTER IN MAINE

Dear Social Corner Friends: I want to tell you what a great change has taken place in the weather for it is surely remarkable.

Since winter set in we have not had what is called a thaw. Candlemas day it snowed all day, nearly 2 foot of snow fell, which with what we had made a good three foot. But when it cleared off it was surely warmer, and started right in for a thaw in good earnest.

There was so much water on the cove near the pavilion, where Mr. Whitney usually takes out ice for use at the lunch room of Arthur Wilson, that it was impossible to cut any ice up this way, so it is being harvested at the lower end of the lake on the Raymond road.

The sweet song of the phoebe bird is quite welcome and four blue jays come every morning for their feed and seem to be quite hungry. Feb. 8 the thermometer stood at 56 above and today it is nearly 60 with windows and doors open to welcome in such a wonderful change.

Some people in Saco have been feeding robins all winter and they predict an early spring. Well I guess everybody will be glad to see it. Sorry to learn of Sister Hoxie's death. Her family have my sympathy. An invalid friend who has not done anything but sit in her chair for the past five months enjoys having the Social Corner letters read to her and looks forward from one week to the other with great pleasure for them.

Yes, she has been quite blind but her eyesight is better than it was. She anxiously watches every day to hear my welcome voice as she calls it.

As she lives a half mile away I get over to see her every day when pleasant. When I cannot walk on account of snow Mr. Balsam Fir takes me over in the sleigh. I am going again this afternoon for although it isn't any too good traveling I feel she is listening for my rap which is three raps and a pause between. For the past week the thermometer has not gone any lower than 25. There is a heavy fog so thick I can not see the lake 25 yards away, a real snow eater, and it will settle the snow. I am glad.

Robins have been fed all winter in nearby towns and I am looking forward to the return of the crows.

They do piles of mischief, I hear people say, but do not bother our corn for Mr. B. F. usually has a couple of dead ones swinging in the breeze, which keeps them away. It has rained ever since Candlemas day more or less.

It is lovely today. I went to call on my friend yesterday and came home in a real downpour.

The ground is bare in many places, the lake is coming up, but no water in the well as yet. Many thanks for my valentine cards.

Those in sickness and sorrow have my sympathy but every dark cloud has a silver lining. I have always found it so.

Calla Lily: I will answer your nice letter soon or sooner.

J. E. T., Joan and many, many others including Brave have my sympathy.

The first auto to go by in two or three weeks tried it yesterday the 15th and made it all right. It was a Ford. Do you wonder?

Sincerely,

BALSAM FIR.

LOOKS FOR CORNER PAGE

Social Corner Editor: Have been a reader of the Norwich Bulletin for a long time and always look for the Corner letters which interest me very much.

SUNBONNETS AND SHAKERS

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I have been interested in reading about the days of "sunbonnets" and "shakers" which some of our older sisters have referred to. Many of our younger sisters do not realise the style of this headgear. None of us have to be very "old," to look back and remember of wearing a home-made gingham sunbonnet, which succeeded the straw shakers. I have often heard by father say that the first time he saw my mother she had on a shaker bonnet, that was in the early summer of 1864. I well remember the first and only shaker that I privileged to wear. I was probably seven or eight years old and about that time shakers were in their last existence. This memorable "bonnet" of mine was of dark brown straw, and my mother sewed on a blue cambric cape or ruffle. The strings of the cambric tied under my chin. N never took any likeing to this kind of a sun-shade. It was too warm for a hot day, and worst of all, I could not see anything only straight ahead. To see on either side, I had to turn my head clear around to look at it. I have not forgotten, that when I was of mother's sight, the strings of my shaker were loosened and the disagreeable thing was pushed back, and hung between my shoulders. I was glad when that summer season was over, and the shaker had fulfilled its mission, and that was the last of it for me. The cloth sunbonnet was very popular for a number of years, and I was in the style with others during my school days. They were worn by little girls, big girls, young ladies, and ladies of all ages. Some of the designs and materials, were very pretty and attractive. To me, their service was an improvement over the despised shaker.

Last week, I had the pleasure of seeing The Life of Abraham Lincoln portrayed on the moving picture screen. It was interesting, and I enjoyed it so much. It gives us a good idea of the style of dress of those days. The ladies with their low necked dresses, and enormous hoops. The style of hair dressing (no bobs in those times) and last but not least, I saw some "shakers." My mind went back to that only one that I had possessed and disliked in my early days. Material things change with time, but impressions do not alter in years.

We have a Social Corner sister, who signs herself Sunbonnet Sue, and I think she has not written for quite a while. Come along now sister, and tell us why you selected that penname.

To Sister Silent Partner, I would say I have one of those old fashioned "sewing birds," that she refers to. It belonged to my grandmother. It is a very handy little device for sewing and I use it often. Best wishes.

JENNIE.

A REMEDY FOR BURNS

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: Not having written for sometime thought I must.

First I want to thank the sister that sent me the calendar. I think she ought to give us some idea of who she is, so we could send her something in the future.

Evelyn Burr: I think you could give us some information. I don't know you except by sight, but I know Mr. Burr.

Silent Partner, Crimson Rambler, Paula, Rural Delivery and Balsam Fir: Am wondering who is who as some of you live where I am well acquainted.

Crimson Rambler: I have found out who you are, but have never met you. I know your brother.

In looking over one of the back numbers of the Norwich Bulletin dated, Sept 13, 1924, containing the Social Corner page, I came across where Balsam Fir visited Mrs. T. H. Connelly. I wonder if I know you, as I am well acquainted with Mrs. Connelly having known her nearly all of my life?

Also at that time you had burned your hand, I am sending a remedy, so if it happens again or to others, they will know what to use.

For a scald use peppermint freely. For a burn use kerosene.

One of two applications will take the fire out.

Maple Leaf: I know who you are. How about when we were young?

Mrs. E. W.: Have you joined the Corner yet? I am afraid you are a slacker. Hope not, as I would not believe it of you.

Several of the sisters mentioned having pins with the initials for members of the Social Corner. I have written about this before but got no reply.

I think it would be fine. Then it would be interesting to meet the different ones.

I found an ad where you can get pins silver plate with three initials for 25 cents each, $2.50 a doz; sterling silver (40) cents each, $4 a doz, with one or two colors enamel.

I don't think that is very much for pins and perhaps I could get them cheaper with two initials. If any of the sisters are interested and the editor has no objection please make it known through the Social Corner page and I will write and find out.

Your for the good of the Corner.

DOWN IN FLORIDA

Dear Social Corner Sisters: To the old and new members I send my best wishes and hope those who are shut in and sick will be better soon. I wish I could have seen the eclipse like some of you. On that day it was cloudy and rainy so we wouldn't have seen the least sign of it any how had it been possible.

By the papers I read, "New England is having one of her real old fashioned winters."

As for us in Florida we are having nice weather except in the southern part of the state. They had heavy rains, from what I've heard.

Here my garden is all nice and green and Feb. the first we ate some of our first cucumbers this year from our garden. My sweet peas are all abloom and the greens are all ready to eat now. Have two beds of radishes all eaten up and 1 bed of little green onions too.

We are planting the big crop now.

It surely seems strange when we read our papers of the snow and blizzards and see our beautiful gardens, roses, flowering vines and all the trees green the year round.

Some have written to me of how hot it gets here in the summer. Well, in July and August it is real warm. About 90 in the shade in the extreme for this part of Florida. But just step out of the sun to a shade, tree or veranda and there's always a breeze. The sand gets hot underfoot but we wear light oxfords or pumps and we are alright. Here in Deland last year some of the tourists never left till July and were back in October. And every night in the summer you need a light spread on your beds. We slept in an open camp. No windows at all, just screens with canvas awnings over them, to keep the rain out, from Feb. 21st last year to Sept. 18th that way. Then we moved into this house. But now the children want all the place open for all the air we can get. The nights are cool enough for blankets till March.

And the heat isn't suffocating like the real heat in New England. In one of the papers from home the governor of Maine is quoted as saying that all states in the United States should boost each and every state, like everyone is boosting Florida.

I think that boosting is a catching disease, that gets you as soon as you've looked around you for a month or so in Florida. As a man from Danielson, Conn., wrote, "Real estate is the biggest proposition in Florida." And it's the ones from the outside who are helping to make a success of it too.

In years past a common saying was, "Oh, it's dirt cheap." But whoever started to quote it never was in Florida nor California when a land boom was on.

But let the same promoters who come here to do these things take hold of the north and things would be stirring.

I must close now so that others may have their place in the page, too.

LIKES TO KEEP THE OLD THINGS

Dear Corner Editor and Sisters: It has been a long time since I sent a line to the page.

First I want to thank a Social Corner Member for the pretty calendar which I received. I am very fond of blue birds and have a pair nest in an old tree right in front of my dining room every year. I had a nice robin call in my sweet apple tree the last day of January and last week the 11th of February there was a whole drove in my yard. How pretty they looked and a pair of blue birds was with them.

What a lively morning this is the 16th after the rain of yesterday which made such a bad day for a funeral. I was up to the home of Sister C. E. S. and stayed. Am so sorry for the family. They have my heartfelt sympathy. Her death was so sudden. That was the only home where I spent the day anywhere except right here in my own neighborhood, and I always had a very pleasant visit with sister C. E. S. But sooner or later we all will go to rest like her. I also feel sorry for those left here, like the other sisters who have passed on.

Barbar: I am very well and hope you are the same, but have been busy as usual. Have not done any patchwork yet but want to finish a quilt I have in the works. You know the old saying, "A woman steps round in a peck measure all day and that is as far as she ever gets." I feel that way some days when I look round to see where I spent my time after being busy all day but can't see what has been done. I used to accomplish some thing but don't nowadays somehow.

Roxanna Wince: I wish I understood rug making as you do for I have a whole trunk full of nice pieces to put in them.

Olga and Auna Sarah: Remember me? It has been a long time since I saw you. Hope you are all well.

Silent Partner: I have an autograph album which my step mother gave me Sept. 10th 1875 and the contents are dear to me. Many who wrote in it have passed beyond and some are far from Connecticut. I used to wear the Shaker sunbonnet, and also have a sewing bird which my dear mother used to have. She has been gone 54 years last month so you see it is a relic. I like to keep such keepsakes. I also have an old spining wheel. The head is perhaps 100 years old and a large tin waiter.

Yes, Persis, I too am in hopes to see that road to Westminster done as I have not visited my daughter for a long time as it is too far to get there by the state road with an old white horse and the road (or cartpath) that we have to go on to Packer where my second daughter lives is in about the some condition. So I don't see either very often as they can't get home very well.

R. L. J.: There is a letter coming sometime. I hope all are well.

Will close for this time hoping the sick are improving and am as ever the same

AUNT JERUSHA.

GETTING READY FOR CHICAGO TRIP

To the Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Oh, how surprised I was to open one of my letters last week and find a yellow slip! At first I did not know what it was but when I saw the word prize, I knew. Thanks so much, Mr. Editor. I shall use it to buy something I need for my trip to Chicago. I am planning, if nothing happens, to go out to Chicago the first of April and spend the month with my brother and family and then bring mother home. She has been there since before Christmas. It will be a wonderful trip for me as I have been only in Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York. I surely hope to have something of interest to write you when I come back.

Effie M.: I know I promised and I have fulfilled that promise.

Brave: Am so sorry to read you are in the hospital. I know what it means for I have been in one three times myself. Do hope you will come home soon all well.

Twice Twenty: How are you and your good man this winter? I am looking forward to coming to see you this summer with Whirlwind. It will not be long now before I will leave the car out and we can come to all the Social Corner meetings.

To all who have birthdays this month I extend my best wishes.

Don't think its fair for me to write much this month as I took up so much space last month so I will stop writing. With best wishes to all the sisters and the editor.

NOT AN EAT AND RUN RESTAURANT

Dear Editor and Sisters: I want to congratulate you for those letters signed Hostesses that have been in the paper for the past two weeks. Nothing is so small as to be what I call a leaning horse, to let the pole horse do all the pulling. That is the way it looks to me in the Buckingham Memorial dinners of the Social Corner Club No. 2. There are people who come, sit, visit, do fancy work, get their place at the table so as not to be left out at the first table and never offer to help serve as a hostess or assist in the work. They bring a little food and lots of friends or neighbors to get a nice dinner for 15 cents. Then as soon as dinner is over instead of staying and making the afternoon a pleasant one for the workers, they get up and go to the movies. Now if I was the hostess, or Calla Lily, I would tell those people, or members, what the hostess did in the Feb. 7, Corner page. It is no restaurant where you eat and run." You wouldn't do it at a Christmas or Thanksgiving dinner. Then why not have respect and give the workers a better feeling by staying and go to the movies another day. I think I have broadcasted enough for this letter so will sign off

FOR A BIRTHDAY, OR A SHUT IN

Dear Mothers: In making gifts to elderly people, they tire of the usual gift over and over, slippers, handkerchiefs perhaps.

Just get all your friends that are interested to send them a dime and they'll be delighted to buy something they really, silently, long for.

We just did this for a dear lady on her ninetieth birthday.

NEIGHBOR EVEREADY.

CHEW YOUR FOOD

Dear Social Corner: This is an age of discoveries and inventions and it is a question sometimes whether they are making us better or worse.

There is one thing sure and that is we are here and most of us want to stay about as long as we can, and some of us will have to stay a while at least. It is our job to find out the best way to live so that we can enjoy the good things that God has given us both for our spiritual and temporal needs.

"Eat and get thin" was the subject of a letter from Aloise Janet last week. Now I say "eat and get fat." These may seem strange subjects to some of our Social Corner friends for I think very likely that some of you have done this in either case and have failed to see the desired results. Now to my mind Aloise is just right on this subject and so am I. Chew your food and by so doing you will give your stomach a chance to do its work with some comfort and ease. Obesity is an effect of disease. So is underweight and either of them can be corrected by the proper diet taken into the system as it should be. The question is not so much what we eat, at it is how we eat it. Nature has a definite purpose for everything. We have ears to hear with, a nose to breath with. We are given teeth and their main purpose is to chew or grind our food and prepare it for our stomachs in the correct or necessary condition to allow the taking up or assimilation of what good there may be in our food.

Your food will keep you alive and healthy or it will create disease and stop your life.

I am not an M. D. I am just one of those fellows that have suffered for years with indigestion stomach trouble and everything else that go with them and I have found that with proper food and giving nature a chance [illegible] minor troubles can [illegible] drugs or medi- [illegible] in this grand [illegible] of ours that God has [illegible] only need it. Have [illegible] pamphlet "Chew your Food." If not drop me a card [illegible] see that you have it. If it helps you as it has me you will never regret the little effort that it will take on your part to get it.

Just as far as possible take time to chew your food. A little time in this line is a good investment and is bound to yield a good dividend.

MORE RIDDLES.

To the Social Corner:
Do not put away dirty dishes.
Eggs can be used extravagantly.
Always have a nice bright fire for broiling.
[illegible] gently.
[illegible]
Cut so completely [illegible] meal.
[illegible] them
[illegible] by wearing them on your Arms. They will keep them warm and Lengthen the life of the stocking.
Care for your silver
On cleaning days.
Remove peeling from potato,
Now put peeling in pan.
Each piece of silver can be laid
Right on the peeling and cover with Either hot or cold water.
Do not put in plated ware.
In about 20 minutes
The silver from the pan remove,
Over this pour hot, soapy water
And dry with soft towel
No trouble to clean silver.
Don't let it get too dirty.
Soap scraps can be utilized
In this way.
Scraps can be broken into little parts
Tin cans can be used for receptacle.
Every few inches drive holes with nail.
Run hot water over the soap scraps,
Soapy water will be the result.

I want to write you a few riddles:
If your uncle's sister is not your aunt, what relation is she to you?
Your mother of course.
Why is an egg overdone like an egg underdone?
Because it is hardly done.
When is a boat like a heap of snow?
When it is adrift.
Why are lovers like apples?
Because they are often paired.
What relation is that child to its father who is not its father's own son?
His daughter.
What is that which is found in the very center of both America and Australia?
Knew only two of yours, Whirlwind; P in the word pint and H is a help to the ear to hear.

CHICKEN TURNOVERS

Mr. and Mrs. Cornerite of the Social Corner: I want to tell you about my chicken turnovers—yes, you have to turn them over to find the meat—but as I made them to furnish bread as well as meat I did the best I could. I used a short biscuit crust, or dough, divided into four parts. Roll two thin these parts and place on the dough small bones, skin, meat and jelled gravy and pinch the edges of the dough together. Grease the pan with the oven the same as for biscuit. Add some boiled potatoes mashed fine with butter and top milk, a large green pepper, crisp shredded onion with sugar, salt and vinegar and the meal is ready.

This is Hooverizing and savors of war times but there are many sad rave pocketbooks yet and both legs caught. By making the best of what we have we may pull out yet.

Crimson Rambler: Rain, snow, cold or blow, send Sarah to end of line and we will be there, if not living up higher. Will turn our cards down, You make the trumps. Not long now.

Paula: Don't I get so hungry reading about your good things!

Jack's Wife: Thank of you often, and laughed over our sister's broken pen but she could find something to write with if only a quill pen made from a rooster's feather. So many pleasant reminiscences to think over and over. Life is a mixed budget pulled to pieces and rolled up again.

Calla Lily: I, too, do some work still. Am never idle.

LOSS TO CORNER IN DEATH OF C. E. S.

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Corner: I want to thank the Social Corner member who sent me the pretty little calendar. I have never seen one before and I prize it highly. I have it on the wall near my desk and refer to the dates of the different clubs. It reminds me of the many hours I have passed with my foot upon a rocker of a cradle very much like that [illegible] I also want to thank [illegible] who [illegible] the Norwich [illegible] I was not able to be present on the [illegible] were there with [illegible] and ever thing was [illegible] I thank those who made the [illegible] interesting with music and readings.

It was well we did not know of the serious illness of C. E. S. If so, our hearts would have been very sad. It came to me like a thunderbolt from a clear sky, as I talked with her, a few

TWO SUPERIOR COURT JUDGES ARE APPOINTED BY THE LEGISLATURE

(Special to the Bulletin)

Hartford, Feb. 20—It is the general opinion that the business before the assembly is being rushed forward as rapidly as possible. The Women Voters Bulletin, published by the Connecticut League of Women Voters, a copy of which was placed on the desk of all the members today contained the following item:

In the Old Senate Chamber

"Hearings before the Judiciary Committee are being admirably conducted. Men and women speaking to the various bills before the Committee are treated with courtesy, respect and attention. It is a pleasure to be able to express one's views without being made to feel like a prisoner at the dock."

Annexation Hearing Wednesday

Wednesday, February 25th, the committee on cities and boroughs will hold a hearing on S. B. 152 introduced by Senator Robbins, annexing a part of the town of Preston to the town of Norwich.

Medical Practice Act

The judiciary committee has announced that it will hold hearings on the medical practice act on Tuesday, March 24 and that hearings on the petitions of sixty or more doctors who had their license revoked will follow immediately after. It is the opinion of the committee that such petition must be heard separately. As it will be largely attended the hearings will probably be held in the hall of the house. The committee on the judiciary held hearings this afternoon, on bills relating to the election laws.

The business in the legislature Friday follows:

Speaker Darbie called the house to order today at 11.33. Following prayer by House Chaplain Rev. Arthur F. Lewis, the governor's secretary presented general reports from state departments. days before and she hoped to be with us. We shall miss her at our gatherings. Her pleasant smile and kindly greetings were always cheerful. Her place can never be filled in her home and we sympathize with the family in their great bereavement.

It is friends like her
Who make this desert world
To blossom like the rose,
Strew flowers over rugged paths,
Pour sunshine o'er our woes.

STARTING HOUSECLEANING EARLY

Dear Social Corner Friends: It is fast getting toward spring and I am glad. I always am when the days begin to grow longer and we surely have had our share of ice and snow. I am still a very busy woman and all the family are, for we have commenced to clean, for "sen" said if we would commence early he would help and good help he is too. Son and wife have whitewashed, painted and papered three rooms already and there are more to follow. I don't see but what he does as well as any painter we ever hired. We have had lots of company, some I didn't like very much. They were a whole lot of big black ants which appeared to us on early as this. Will some sister tell me Lincoln's birthday. Maybe they wanted to celebrate the day. I have them more r less every spring but never so a sure, safe remedy for these unwelcome visitors?. When my housecleaning is done I'm going out a whole lot. I find I can't do the work I used to. I get so dreadfully tired some days I have to lay down several times. I think I'll feel better if I do get out more. Was glad to see a letter from Grandma Gray and will say to her I have not made as many squash pies this winter for I did not have the squashes. But we sewed rags and got three nice long rugs. I'm going to save all my rags and sew them for more rugs. Well we were all tired last night from cleaning but we went to the Rebekah meeting, had a nice time and felt better for going.

Hoping to see you at the March meeting. Wishing all good luck and health.

I am as ever.

MA OF GREENE GABLES.

KEEP THE GATHERINGS CLUBLIKE

Dear Social Cornerites: First I want to say I will endorse every word our February hostesses have written for it's about time attention should be well paid to the letters as they are not written for fun but to get better results and cooperation at the dinners. I do wish that the members would do like the old timers, when Married and Happy was living and used to come to us with her pretty fancy work and chrocheting, when we all would copy something each other had. Now, as our janitor's wife said last week, they eat and hurry for a show. The meeting rooms are so central that they are used for accomodation rather than social day. Why not keep it clublike for members only. Let the men get one dinner a month at home. It won't hurt them to carry a lunch. Don't send them to the Buckingham. The hostesses don't want to wait on them. If they come they must pay 50c. No more 15 cent dinner for them. New men came in the past few dinners. I get these complaints and I'm glad the sisters explained their own thoughts on it and made my part lighter but I do stand back of them in this.

Chauffeur and Inez: It's O. K. to you both. Is that plain?

Whirlwind: Any gift I receive I never give away. I'd rather buy another then hurt the giver's feelings in kind thoughts to me. Our grand chief is a dear friend of mine. I'm most 26 years a P. S. and charter member. I'm a P. C. but now hold E. Jr.

Cypress: Was so sorry when I read baby was taken away. I was prepared for it for hubby told me the condition.

Bon-Ami: I never knew it was your aunt until after all was over. Then it dawned on me. Accept sympathy. Are you still at her home?

Maple Leaf: Try and make the next one. Hope roads will be good.

Silent Partner: I have one of those table sewing bird holders that was my dear mother's. Also an autograph album she gave me Dec. 25, 1855. At that time our neighbor was Rev. Joseph Hollingshead of the old Central M. E. church. Her autograph is in it also his son Bert's.

CALLA LILY.

BECOMES CORNER MEMBER

Dear Social Corner Editor: I have been to two of the club meetings and had such a nice time that I would like to become a member of the Corner. I will take for my pen name.

RISPIE.

REGRETS DEATH OF C. E. S.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I feel I must write a few lines just to express my sympathy to the family of our sister, C. E. S. I was shocked this morning when I read the account of the funeral. Ever since she and I have been writing for the Corner she has been a dear friend of mine. I always enjoyed meeting her. She always had such a friendly way. To know her was to love her. Our loss is her gain. Her work on earth was done and I shall miss her so much.

I can only say God's way is best. Best wishes from BON AMI.

CHANCE FOR POSTCARD SHOWER

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Zoda has been shut in most all winter and I think a post card shower from the Social Corner would make her feel better. Address Mrs. Thomas Connelly, Norwich Town, Conn.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Long Island was entirely closed to navigation fifty years ago, due to the heavy ice. Captains of various steamers, who tried to make their runs by going around outside Long Island, were warned that their licenses did not give them this right.

Skating was the feature sport of the season and many people enjoyed the 14 mile skate down the river to New London. New London boys attending the Free Academy in Norwich skated to and from school on the ice.

Items in part from the Bulletin of 1875 are as follows:

Monday, February 15, 1875—In arranging the old documents, Mr. Brown, came across the following notice, which Mr. Gager may find convenient to use for the next town meeting. Our ancesters were undoubtedly good men, but it would appear that spelling was not their best hold.

"A proclamation for a general town meeting to be held at ye State Hows in Norwich on ye Forth tuesday of December Instant at Nine of the Clock in ye morning then & there to take an Account of the town debts & grante abate to Defraye the fame & also to confider whether the town will do anything relating to Swine & alfo to confider whether the town will hear Mr. Whitnet Peggot Relating to what he is indebted to ye Town or anything else that may be fairly offered.

Tuesday, February 16, 1875 — The Buffalo Courier gives a long account of an experiment in the transfusion of blood at the Buffalo Medical college by Prof. W. H. Mason, M. D., formerly of this city. The operation was performed on two dogs, and proved successful.

Captain Geer of the propellor Bolivar, which took 23 hours to make the trip from New London to New York writes an interesting account of the trip. We left New London, on Saturday, he writes, and there was no ice in the harbor and the first ice encountered was at Bartlett's Reef lightship. The sound was full of ice cakes some of them miles in length. We dodged these as best we could and when we arrived at Cornfield Light the sound was filled with small ice, packed together so light that we could hardly move. Solid ice went shoreward and ice was ahead for miles. The boat would run aground on the ice, back off, then go ahead again for a few feet. Off Frog's point we met the City of Pittsburgh, going east, and if we had not met her we would not have made New York in 23 hours, for she had broken the ice to some extent making our going easier. The New London harbor is the only harbor along the whole shore that is open. We passed six ships all stuck fast in the ice.

Wednesday, February 17, 1875—The Rev. John Davies of Norwich lectured in New London in Lawrence hall last evening. The subject was "An Englishman's first Impression of America." The lecture was well attended and was very interesting.

People in Norwich are worried over the coal situation. The river has been closed for many weeks now and the several dealers are low in supply of coal. Unless milder weather sets in and the ice in the river breaks up Norwich is likely to face a coal famine within a few weeks.

The ice around the Ella was cut yesterday to give her a better berth. It was found that the ice was 22 inches thick at this point in the river.

Thursday, February 18, 1875—The Rev. Dr. Buckingham contributes to the last number of the Chicago Advance some interesting reminiscences of his brother, the late Governor Buckingham of Connecticut, illustrative chiefly of his patriotic activity as a war governor and his temperate life. No man on his staff drank liquor, is mentioned when there was no wine on the table, and he asked a blessing as he would have done at his own family table.

A number of prominent men in Hartford have organized an association for the protection of game. Many local men are in favor of such an organization here and will probably get in touch with the Hartford men.

Long Island sound is now entirely closed to navigation. The only boats making their trips are those of the Stonington line, which go by way of Montauk and Sandy Hook.

The petition to congress for cannon for the soldier's monument at Colchester has been introduced and is in the hands of the committee.

The telegram states that the boys of New London, who attend the Free Academy, now skate up the river rather than take the cars.

Several horsemen were on the river enjoying this "best of all" sport. Many fine races have been seen on the river this year, conditions having been perfect for the sport.

Friday, February 19, 1875—There was a call for fire yesterday morning at 10.30 o'clock a house on the West Side being in danger. The owner of the house had built a fire in the cellar to thaw out frozen pipes, then had gone away leaving the fire to prepare the fruits of its own devices. The fire did so and the house was considerably damaged before the firemen won their fight.

A handsome specimen of the work of the Hood Fire Arms company of this city may be seen by the admirers of a good revolver, at Burnham's store. It is tastefully engraved and plated with gold and silver, making a death dealing weapon an object of beauty. It is a matter of pride to every resident that such articles are manufactured in Norwich.

Ness has a new patent mince which would have made the inventor fortune in the time of the inquisition. When in operation it looks like a fan-tailed streak of lighting running around in a cheese box.

Two or three enterprising Noank men have gone into the business of canning clams. They intend in time to begin the canning of chowder something new for people around this section.

Some of the Bulkeley school boys skated to this city yesterday, making the trip up the Thames from New London in one hour and 10 minutes

Saturday, February 20, 1875—Norwich friends of Capt. George H. Goddard of the ferry boat Uncas, learned with regret that he was severely injured yesterday morning while docking the ferry on the Groton side. The heavy ice in the harbor made progress somewhat difficult and in consequence the landing was somewhat difficult to make. The ferry struck the dock a sharp blow causing splinters to fly. One large piece of wood struck Capt. Goddard on the head rendering him unconscious. He was also badly cut about the face.

John Mitchell, Jr., has been awarded one of the Yale Sophomore composition prises.

A number of captains of sound steamers have been warned against running outside Lond Island by the United States Supervisor of Steamboats at New York. Their certificates preclude their coming or going outside Long Island Sound.

LATE SUPPER OR PARTY DISHES

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Here are a few more recipes which are worth trying:

Tomato-Sauerkraut Club Sandwich: Toast bread one side only, butter the untoasted side and on bottom slice put slices of tomato. Cover with mayonnaise then with another slice of bread toasted side up put a slice of with a layer of raw sauerkraut, then mayonnaise, cover with a slice of bread toasted side up put a slice of tomato. On top of each club sandwich fasten an olive with tooth pick. Serve cold. These are delicious for late suppers or Sunday night tea.

Cream of Sauerkraut Soup: 4 cups hot white stock, chicken or veal, or water, 2 cups sauerkraut, one fourth cup of butter or bacon fat, 1 slice onion, 1 stalk celery cut in inch pieces on pinch of celery salt, one fourth cup four, 2 cups milk one eighth teaspoon paprika. Cook onion and celery in butter five minutes, add flour, add hot stock or water, add milk, allow to boil, add sauerkraut and cook five minutes more. Season with pinch salt and paprika. Strain, return one half of the sauerkraut to the soup. It is a little thick if all the sauerkraut is left in the soup. However, if one likes it so the soup need not be strained at all. Serve with toasted bread sticks. This makes a most delicious and unusual soup.

Mayonnaise to be used on all Sauerkraut Salad: 1 egg, half teaspoon dry mustard, half teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 2 cups salad oil or olive oil. Place the egg in a bowl, put in the dry ingredients and add the lemon juice. Beat these together a few seconds, add a small amount of salad oil and beat until dressing begins to thicken. Then add the oil in larger amount until the dressing is of desired stiffness. This is a quickly and easily made mayonnaise.

Sauerkraut served with meat: Brown the pieces of spareribs on each side in a frying pan with pork fat. Season the meat with little salt and pepper place half of the sauerkraut in a casserole add the meat then balance of sauerkraut and boiling water to cover. Bake in a slow oven about two hours, closely covered, and serve with mashed potatoes.

Sauerkraut Dol-a-Mah: Take 2-3 pound of round steak cut one inch thick, sprinkle salt and pepper over it, cover with thin slices of bacon place as much sauerkraut on this as possible and roll up or fasten with swekers, put in double roasting pan with a pint of water and bake one hour in a moderate oven. Then thicken the liquid with flour. Serve on a hot platter and garnish with parsley and lemon slices.

THE EVIL OF DIVORCES

Dear Cornerites: I did not see my name in the roll call but will pen a few lines though I feel I am using space some writer could so much better all. I read in a recent paper where a judge granted a divorce every three minutes. Did he, I wonder, study those cases enough to know they could not be reunited? If each couple would live up to the marriage vow there would be less divorce. I was born so many years ago that maybe my mind cannot keep up with the times but divorce to me seems like a crime, especially when there are children where the council of both parents is often needed to guide them in the way of righteousness. I know a mother who left her family with their father and went her way. The husband obtained a divorce and brought his family up as best he could. Do those children love their mother when she deserted them simply for some little disagreement?

I wish the judges would be more slow in granting divorces for it is as much a curse to the nation as intoxication.

I can hear some of the sisters say, "That is an old maid talking and she knows nothing of domestic trials."

Will the young people growing up and living such exciting lives make good mothers to the coming generations?

Once a mother loved to be with her family and keep them as they grew older like companions, and join in all their pleasures; today the mothers have so much social work that the children are left to others' care, or themselves and home is only a place to eat and sleep. Wake up mothers before it is too late!

Anna Mell: Is the name of the blind lady you read to Fannie W. L.? If so some day we may meet.

Silent Partner: I have one of the sewing birds and have used it many times, but in these days when ready-made clothes are used we do not have the use for this old fashion article.

I will use initials my pen name is so long. Y. O. T.

ANOTHER OF THE OLD WRITERS RETURNS

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: Will answer present to the roll call as I am still alive and well. Only I felt rather ashamed for not responding before. As I was reading the Social Corner, and baby was asleep, thought I would try and write once more to the Corner.

It is so long ago since I have written, some nine years, I am most sure that my penname is surely forgotten. Sickness and trouble and being mother of ten, has kept me rather busy. But as some of the children are older, they are a great help to me, and I find more time now to sit, and read the Social Corner's letters.

How many of you have tried making over coats for little girls going to school? That is how I manage to keep my little girls in warm winter coats bu cutting over some good coats that were given to me, too good to throw away. I find they answer the real purpose where there are so many little ones and new coats cannot be bought for every member of the family.

I have never attended the Social Corner gatherings, as they seem to be so far away from home, but I love to read of them and often wish I could join them all some time. I have never forgotten the post card that Jennie wrote to me once years ago. It was certainly a cheery card, and I have been real happy and cheerful since. I learn there is always a silver lining to every dark cloud.

I saw the eclipse of the sun through my bedroom window. I smoked a whole pane of glass. It was certainly wonderful and the three stars could be plainly seen without the help of smoked glass. I will say, that it is time for me to stop writing as baby is awake just now and as she is somewhat fretful she takes up most of my time. Would love to hear from some of the sisters. With best wishes to the editor and Social Corner sisters, I remain a sister.

STARLIGHT.

SHOWER SUGGESTED FOR POLLY PEPPERMINT

Dear Social Corner Ones: As I have a few minutes to spare will take my pen in hand and write just a few lines. What beautiful weather we are having! But the cloud digger has something ready for us I see and it is coming on time. Don't that sound encouraging? To the family of Sister Eloise I send my sympathy. It was a great shock to me as I didn't know but what she was as well as ever. Suppose you sisters saw in Saturdays paper where Miss Adelaide Hallen had met with a misfortune. You know she is Sister Polly Peppermest and I think a shower of cards or letters sent to her at 325 Main street, Norwich, Conn., would be greatly appreciated by her at this time.

Polly Peppermint: Am glad to hear you are resting comfortably.

Diamond: Am in hopes of seeing you soon, or my visit will have to be postponed for a while.

Merry Farmer's Boy: Your letter received and you heard right. Keep watch for the mail very close. Will answer some day.

Chelsea: The play was very good but such a tired family when I got home. When are you coming over?

Charity: Don't let your pen get rusty. I would love to receive a letter anytime.

Elizabeth: Hope you and uncle are feeling better.

Chub: See your hubby go by with cattle some times, but I hear from you over the phone real often. Maybe I will see you sometime.

Cypress: You have my sympathy in the loss of your little one.

I can hear the editor calling for me to halt so will do so.

Don't forget the shower for Polly Peppermint.

PAPA'S BOY.

BIRTHDAY CARDS SURPRISED AND PLEASED

Dear Social Corner and Editor: Just a line to thank the editor and social Corner Sisters, also E. M. L., Grandma Gray, Rosy Posy, also the one who signed as Now Guess from Moosup for the birthday cards. They were a big surprise to me and I appreciated them very much. Now, if those dear friends will only give me their correct address, or make themselves known to me, I will gladly return favors.

Grandma Gray: I was surprised to see your birthday so close to mine. I know you could not help having a nice time with so many of your relatives and friends so near to you.

Rosy Posy: I will write you in the near future.

Rural Auntie: Why don't we hear from you? Don't think spring has come because we saw lightning flash and thunder roared on Sunday afternoon.

Best wishes to all

KOCHIE.

AN OLD LACE SHAWL

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Don't it seem nice to see the ice gone and have the ground bare again? Was sorry I could not go to the February meeting. It was so icy I could not get off the street. I have not gotten over the fall I had in July yet, my shoulder still bothers me. I have been reading the sisters' letters today and they were all good. Silent Partner spoke of a sewing bird. I have one that is very old. Also have a three cornered lace shawl that is over 100 years old and it is as nice as when it was new.

Bonie: I am sorry you have had so much sickness in your family. Hope when I hear again they will all be well. I hope to see you all at the March meeting for a pleasant time.

There are so many of the sisters that have passed away. Let us be good and kind with the ones that are with us now. We do not know which one will be called next. Best wishes from

WINDHAM BLUE BELL.

GRATEFUL

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: We wish to thank you for the kindness at the time of the loss of our dear one, also to thank Club No. 1 for the flowers.

LYMAN B. PENDLETON STRICKEN FRIDAY MORNING, AT NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Feb. 20.—Lyman B. Pendleton, 58, was found at the hotel Inn this morning at 4 o'clock, stricken with apoplexy, having suffered a shock during the night and in the performance of his duties as night clerk. As soon as could be he was removed to Home Memorial hospital where he lingered till noon and passed to his reward as a good citizen, a kind friend and a man of exemplary traits of character.

Mr. Pendleton was born in this city, the son of the late Christopher Pendleton, a seafaring man who earned an enviable reputation as a mariner and master of vessels. Here Mr. Pendleton was educated in the common schools and later he had a private tutor. He qualified for and was admitted to the Massachusetts School of Technology and from there he was graduated. Later Mr. Pendleton traveled in the countries of the old world—in China, Japan, France, Italy and England. He had an insatiate desire to visit the countries he had studied so much about and see the people of whom he had read. He was a student of men and affairs and naturally desired to travel in the worlds of which he knew only what he had read. He was abroad several years and there acquired a knowledge of the languages of the countries he visited so that he spoke several of them fluently. Mr. Pendleton lost his property, real estate he had acquired from his parents. It was taken away from him by a false "friend" to whom he entrusted it while he was abroad. To this friend he gave the power of attorney and returning found that his property had been disposed of. Mr. Pendleton was never able to recover the property or the money for which it was sold. Later Mr. Pendleton became a letter carrier from the New London office, serving many years. But he could not forget the experience he went through with his property and finally his mind became affected and he was at the Norwich State Hospital for a considerable time. He recovered his faculties and came back here to reside. He has written a great deal for the local newspapers, his productions always being of an interesting and informing nature. He was intensely interested in securing for New London a branch of the department of commerce, that New London and New England also might obtain the commerce that naturally belongs to this section. He prepared and had ready for submission to the general assembly a bill that will establish a branch of the commerce department at the state pier here. The work will be taken up by others and no doubt will be successfully carried on. The Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut is interested in that plan and will lend its cooperation to secure it. Mr. Pendleton married but his circumstances did not enable him to support his wife here and she has been engaged as an instructor for children in the family of Wrigley, of chewing gum fame. No man in New London was regarded with greater respect than was Lyman B. Pendleton. He deserved that consideration from his friends and associates. His poverty in recent years was a burden to him, but no one ever heard him complain that the world was not kind to him.

Blanche C. Leeds Parker, of New Haven has sold a dwelling and small parcel of land on the easterly side of Montauk avenue to John L. Sanders. The price paid was $9,500.

John Kopack, drunk and making a nuisance of himself, was arrested on North Bank street this forenoon by Patrolman Edward Daniels. Kopack will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning.

The funeral of Mrs. Catherine Benville, widow of Joseph Benville, formerly of Meriden, whose death occurred Wednesday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Charles U. Sauter, 372 Ocean avenue, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church and was attended by many mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons. The bearers were Joseph Benville, Meriden, son of Mrs. Benville and Charles U. Sauter, of this city; Joseph Gaffney, of Bridgeport, and Richard Halliwell, of Waterbury, sons-in-law of Mrs. Benville. The body was forwarded to Meriden for burial this afternoon.

Elizabeth Brooks, 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brooks, 28 Starr street, died this morning at the Mitchell ward of Lawrance-Memorial Associated hospital, having been under treatment at the institution but a day for diphtheria. The child was taken ill last Saturday, but not until Thursday was her condition serious and she was hurried to the hospital. A sister of the child is being treated for the same malady by a local physician, who disagreed with the report of the state's chemists at Hartford who declared that a culture analyzed did not reveal the contagious germ.

The west side of Montauk avenue, the most travelled highway in this city, was never in such a worn out condition as it is today from Bank street to Orchard street. There is little semblance to the macadam road it was even last fall. The concrete has worn off and the street is rutty and uneven and small stones are everywhere in the highway.

The police authorities are no nearer a solution of the mystery attending the shooting of Mrs. Verdi at her home in Brewer street by a man known as Mike Madonna than they were a week ago, when the shooting occurred. Madonna has been able to keep out of the clutches of the law, probably with the assistance of friends. The belief that he was in hiding here or in Groton is being dispelled with the passing of days and no tidings of the fugitive having been obtained. It is not believed he is far away from New London, nevertheless.

Mrs. Mary Germane, 519 Bank street, complained to the police late this afternoon that her home had been robbed some time last night and that the value of the plunder other than $45 in cash, amounted to approximately $17. Mrs. Germane stated that two lodgers undoubtedly committed the theft as they disappeared simultaneously with the plunder.

Besides the cash obtained, the thieves took a silk shirt, valued at $5.00; scarfpin, $5, and cuff links, $5.

Mrs. Germane and her husband left their residence early last evening and went to one of the motion picture houses. Two lodgers, who rented a room last Tuesday, and who represented that they resided in Lynn, Mass., were there at the time. When Mrs. Germane and her husband returned about 11 o'clock the two lodgers were not in the place and today when the lodgers failed to put in an appearance Mrs. Germane instituted a search to determine whether any of her valuables were missing also. The search revealed that the money which had been secreted in a piece of furniture and which was to have been used to pay insurance and taxes, was missing as were the other articles, and the property of her husband.

Mrs. Georgianna Scoba Gilbert, 66, wife of John H. Gilbert, died this morning at her residence in Waterford. Mrs. Gilbert has always resided in Waterford and besides her husband is survived by two sisters.

Morris Zislow, of Galt street; Samuel Lovedavi, Montville, and Mrs. Anna Goldstein, of Jefferson avenue, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Pay Clerk D. D. Clark, stationed at the submarine base, has entered the naval hospital, New York, for treatment.

Miss Grace Beauchamp, of Pequot avenue; Miss Claire Keyes, Uncasville, and Henry Brock, Fishers Island, were patients dismissed today at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital.

The board of relief today concluded sessions to hear complaints of property owners that they have been unjustly assessed. Some time during the coming week the board will make a personal visit to the properties of the aggrieved parties and after an inspection of the property will render a recommendation as to whether the assessment levied shall remain or whether it shall be reduced.

Attorney Frank L. McGuire returned this forenoon after having been in Pittsburgh several days on business.

Councilor Edward L. Streeter Jr., has left for Minneapolis, Minn., where he will remain several days in the interests of the J. N. LaPointe company, of which he is manager. As he is chairman of the committee of the city council investigating the efficiency of the police department, no further meetings of the committee will take place until the return of the councilor.

Deputy United States Marshal Joseph N. Park, of New Haven, was in New London today and libeled the tug Underwriter, seized for the fourth time as a rum-runner; schooner Jennie T., schooner Jappaite and schooner J. Duffy, the latter having a $600,000 cargo when captured by coast guard patrol craft.

Attorney John J. McGarry is a patient at a local private hospital where he was operated Wednesday for acute appendicitis, having suffered the attack while at his office.

Miss Helen M. Downing, 28 Rogers street, is spending a few days with Mrs. Thomas McElree, Providence, and Mrs. C. J. Tetreault, New Bedford, Mass.

Miss Marion H. Lawson, instructor of French and science at Brimfield, Mass., is being entertained by Miss Edna Smith, School street. Miss Lawson is of the graduating class of 1926, Connecticut College for Women.

The charity whist given at the Diocesan Bureau of Social Service, 42 Joy street, last evening, by the Children of Mary of St. Mary's Star of the Sea parish, proved very successful and was largely attended by men and women of both St. Mary's and St. Joseph's parishes. A prize was awarded at each table.

THOMAS CHECKA SHOT DEAD BY BETRAYED GIRL'S FATHER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Feb. 20.—The New London police this afternoon ascertained that Thomas Checka, of Suffern, N. Y., taken into custody here last month on a charge of abandonment at the request of the Suffern police, was murdered in Suffern, on Wednesday, by Joseph Parimessa, for the alleged betrayal of Parimessa's daughter, Helen, about 22.

Checka was met on the street of Suffern yesterday and upon Parimessa's getting sight of Checka, the former opened fire and the latter received five bullets in the body, Checka dropping dead in his tracks.

Checka came to New London last December and accompanied by Helen Parimessa, went to the residence of Frank Piscatella, Truman street, where he represented himself as wedded to the girl and was given a room. The couple stayed at the Piscatella house several days, long enough to permit the authorities of Suffern to become aware that Checka was in New London and the arrest of Checka followed. Chief of Police C. L. Lunney, of Suffern, came to New London the 18th of December and took Checka back to that place for trial.

LATTER DAY SAINTS AGENT BUYS SITE FOR A CHURCH

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Feb. 20.—David G. and Rosina Tourtellotte have sold a parcel of land on Lee avenue to Myron G. Fisher, of Scorville, Mass., the property, according to Mr. Fisher to be used as a site for a place of worship of parishioners of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

JEWETT CITY

Court Griswold lodge, No. 101, F. of A., held an entertainment and dance Thursday evening under the direction of Francis Campbell, John LeClair and J. Frank McCarthy. The entertainment was held in Finn opera house and was one of the best ever given here. Miss Mildred McCarron and her dancing class of seven girls, none over 15 years of age, all of Providence, gave the larger part of the program. Their dresses were beautiful, with different frocks for each act. And their dances were executed with as much grace and skill as is seen in any vaudeville act. Three young men assisted with solos and dances and George McCarron was accompanist. William L. Carrigan sang so acceptably that he was encored each time. Milton Lindsay gave buck and wing exhibitions that were excellent. The first dance was given with a chorus, sung by all the girls. Mildred Mitchell sang Honestly and Truly. Her voice was wonderfully developed and of amazing power for so young a girl. A scarf dance was charming as danced by Mildred McCarron, Hazel Walmsley, Bernice Irons and Leath McKenna. My Tennessee was sung and danced by Gertrude Kennedy. Mildred McCarron and Hazel Walmsley danced in character costume to Way Down Upon the Swanee River. Mr. Carrigan sang Kashmir by Finden, and his encore was If Love Were All. Six of the girls danced the Valse Bluette. I Wonder What Has Become of Sally? was sung by Alice Lewis and a chorus of girls, all in character costume. Dorothy Knight came next in a very difficult toe dance. The next number was very catchy. As Mr. Lindsay sang from Jack o' Lantern four girls appeared in the costume typical of the country they represented and danced the dance of the country as he sang. Hazel Walmsley was the American girl, Bernice Irons the Spanish girl, Gertrude Kennedy the Irish girl and Mildred McCarron the Hawaiian girl. Mildred Mitchell sang Kiss Me Again, Hazel Walmsley gave a jazz dance and Miss McCarron sang Rock-a-Bye Days, with a solo dance, and dance by the chorus. Another toe dance was executed by Leath McKenna, and Miss McCarron and William Lindsay in Spanish costume were most effective in the national dance. Mr. Carrigan sang A Dream by Bartlett; his encore was Goin' Home, by Devorak. The closing number was a singing chorus dance, Tea for Two. Refreshments were served in Foresters' hall, and dancing with Morey's Plain and chicken chop suey at Jewett City restaurant.—adv.

Friday was as rare as a day in June. Borough thermometers showed readings as high as 55 above. Marbles and tops were out, yet some thought it a weather breeder day for a humdinger of a storm that has been predicted.

Gone are the days, locally, when home butchers used to buy whole dressed native pigs, and offer the choicest pieces on their retail counters. It is contrary to law nowadays to raise pigs within the borough limits. Last week a man living over the borough line had two fat hogs of which he wished to dispose. Incidentally, all unsolicited, he told a friend about the results of a two-line adv. in The Bulletin offering the pigs for sale.

Next morning he let the pigs go to the first man that showed up, but, he added, before night I could have closed out a Chicago stockyard. He says.

Miss Helen Hull entertained the Harmony club Friday at her home on South Main street.

William McCluggage, senior warden of Mt. Vernon lodge, No. 75, F. & A. M., in view of past successes, is again to be chairman of the committee of arrangements for the annual ladies' night celebration.

Finn's today, mat. and eve. Elinor Glynn's "His Hour," with Aileen Pringle.—adv.

Mrs. Theodora Dominick was knocked down by an automobile driven by "Chris" Marion, Thursday night. She was about to step off the curb at the corner of Main street and Railroad avenue. The gates were down at the crossing and Marion was driving down Main street, and turned into Railroad avenue. Her clothing was torn but at first she did not seem to be hurt. She was carried home, and is now in bed, cannot move one leg, and feels the effects of bad bruises.

Old Cluey Watson says he is taking up his skunk dead-falls earlier this spring than ever before since he has trapped in the Mt. Misery and Wiley brook districts. The old man says it is a pretty tame job trapping skunks and musk rats anyhow, especially as he compares it with the experiences he used to have down near his old home in Maine. About this time he used to always get a shot at a Penobscot ice breaker, which could generally be found feeding with a pack of young procks. There was also the Maine plunkus or ding-nail, which has a small body, but a tail about six or eight feet long, with a lump of bony gristle at the end as large as a football. This is its sole but sufficient means of defense. The old man tells of his one experience with a mountain kickle-snifter, that strange animal, which devotes its time to capturing inexperienced woodsmen who lose their sense of direction and go astray in the woods. Other Maine animals common in the Seboomook meadow districts in his time were the swamp sahoon, an animal that makes snow shoe tracks, and the tree squeak, which makes a noise like trees rubbing together in a high wind. Other animals of Cluey's native state, which he says he never could get fur quotations on are the philamaloo bird, the screebowill, the swamp sniver, the wampus cat and the whiffenpuff. The animals to be met with in the great mountain districts of Katahdin, he says differ from those in the valleys of the West Branch, only a few miles away. Here one may get a distant glimpse of the sid ehill badges, that creature provided by nature with two short legs on one side, and two long legs on the other, thus enabling him to browse comfortably on the sides of steep mountains. The wunk also lives there, that strange animal that digs a hole and then pulls the hole in after it. Farther to the northeast in Aroostook county, an occasional skilful trapper may capture, in the full moon, a huboo, a winno-welver, a twittering teeper or a pileated wood chucker. The old man said, however, that she should worry, with prime skunk pelts quoted in Friday's Bulletin at $4.40.

CLARK'S FALLS

John Kilkenney of White Rock was the guest of R. D. Maine recently.

Mrs. H. F. Babcock called on Mrs. Frances Maine and found her so much improved that she was able to sit up in her room.

Mrs. Ruby Hast has been in Westerly several days with her sister, Mrs. Jesse Fish. Mr. Fish, who has been ill, is much improved.

Mrs. A. T. Maine has been the guest of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Maine, at the Westerly town farm.

The Ladies' Aid society met in their rooms in the chapel Wednesday afternoon. This was a special meeting, as officers were appointed for this year. The ones who served last year gave such good satisfaction that they were reappointed: Mrs. John B. Perry, president; Mrs. Charles Palmer, secretary, and Mrs. Elbert W. Clark, treasurer. Entertainment and supper committees were also appointed. After the business meeting the members turned their attention to a quilt they are piecing. A pleasant social time followed.

Ralph Rathbone and family were in Westerly Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. John Perry has been with her son Maurice and daughter-in-law for several days. The latter's own mother is with her now.

Stock Prices Recover

New York, Feb. 20—Having regained the loss suffered during the drastic decline earlier in the week, stock prices today resumed their upward march with renewed vigor. Aggressive bullish operations, based on favorable trade news and reports of new merger and dividend developments, were conducted in a variety of popular rail and industrial shares. Gains of one to five points were general throughout the list, lifting a score issues to the highest levels since 1923.

Baldwin Locomotive was the star performer of the day, scoring more than six points to 145, the highest price in five years, and closing at 144 3-4. Renewed buying of this stock, which earlier in the week sold at the years low of 126 1-4, encouraged a resumption of pool operations in other industrials.

Short covering operations expanded, giving momentum to the general advance for which cheaper money rates supplied an additional incentive. Steel shares, which had been lagging behind the rest of the list, were galvanized into activity by a sharp rise of four points in crucible. United States Steel moved back to 124 1-2, a net gain of more than a point while Bethlehem advanced 1 3-4 points.

Buoyancy of the high priced specialties was reflected in gains of five points or more by United States Cast Iron Pipe, General Electric, Savage Arms and California Packing. Among other industrials which sold one to five points above last night's closing levels were American Can, American Steel Foundry, Allied Chemical, American Locomotive, Mack Truck, United Cigar Stores, Industrial Alcohol, American Brake Shoe, United Cigar Stores, American Safety Razor, Tobacco Products, General Cigar and American Smelting.

Pan-American Petroleum issues jumped up more than three points in anticipation of the increase in the annual dividend rate from $4 to $6 a share, which was announced late in the day, with gross earnings for January exceeding $8,000,000 it was estimated that about $10 a share on its stocks this year [illegible] leadership of these issues, many of the other representative oils resumed their advance.

Revival of reports that strong banking interests were laying plans for the creation of another great railroad system in the southwest contributed to the buoyancy of the southwestern carrier issues. Rock Island, on an enormous turnover, jumped 4 5-8 points to 51 7-8, the high price since the roads reorganization. A late outburst of buying carried Frisco into new high ground at 72, a net gain of more than three points. Expectation of favorable dividend action brought an advance of 2 1-4 in Texas and Pacific, while among the higher priced issues Atchison and Southern Railway common and preferred showed conspicuous strength.

Call money was in plentiful supply, renewing at 3 per cent. and holding at that rate throughout the day. The market for time funds was firm, with few offerings at less than 4 per cent. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Moderate improvement took place in the principal European exchanges. Sterling moved up fractionally to around $4.76 3-8 and French francs advanced 2 1-2 points to above 5 1-4 cents as confidence in the French financial situation appeared to have been restored by official promises of governmental reforms.

Webster Hoagland of Hartford has been a caller on friends in town this week.

NORWICH TOWN

The Young People's Christian Endeavor society of the First Congregational church, is to hold its meeting at 6 o'clock on Sunday evening, instead of the usual hour, to afford members an opportunity to attend the first union Lenten meeting at one of the Norwich churches, when Dr. C. E. Jefferson of the Broadway Tabernacle, New York, will be the speaker. This will be the opening meeting in a series of five or six.

The three act farce comedy, Tommy's Wife, presented last Tuesday evening in the First Congregational chapel, under the auspices of the Girls' Friendly society of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, with the Congregational Young People's Christian Endeavor society cooperating, netted more than $100.

The acting pastor of the Third Baptist church, Greeneville, Rev. Archie Taylor, and the choir of that church, will have charge of the Sunday afternoon service at the Sheltering Arms.

Norwich acquaintances are in receipt this week of dainty little circulars bearing the wording "Old World Fabrics, for New World Homes," sent from Belfast, Ireland, by Charles H. Kimball, during his recent visit there with his wife.

NORWICH GIRL WRITES WELLESLEY PLAY

Connecticut girls have helped to write and will help to produce the Wellesley college operetta this spring.

According to the announcement just made by the college Barnswallows' Association, some of the lyrics were written by Eloise Smith of Norwich, and some of the music was composed by Helen Wilcox of Meriden. Elizabeth Martin of Wallingford and Pauline Gage of Suffield have been given parts in the performance.

The operetta is entitled "The Knight in Poverty" and will be produced on March 20 and 21. It is entirely a student performance. Words, music, scenery, costumes and acting are all the work of the undergraduates.

Great secrecy surrounds the details of the plot. Not until the curtain rises on the first-night performance will Wellesley and the general public know what lies behind the intriguing title.

WILLIAM STORMS IN BROWN HONORARY SOCIETY

William F. Storms of Norwich, a member of the junior class at Brown University, has been elected an associate member of the Brown chapter of the Sigma Xi, the honorary scientific society. It was announced Friday by Secretary Wayne M. Faunce.

In order for an undergraduate to be eligible to associate membership in the society, which is a national one and similar to Phi Beta Kappa in its aims and standards, he must have completed two and a half years of work and to have shown unusual excellence in two or more departments of pure and applied science.

Storms is one of six members of the class of 1926 to be elected to the Sigma Xi. He is a candidate for the degree of Ph. B.

FELL IN STREET WITH HEART ATTACK

Charles Goodrich of New Haven, a woodchopper, employed in the woods about Norwich, was seized with a heart attack Friday afternoon about 2.30 o'clock while walking across the West Side bridge, and fell to the ground. Dr. J. C. Corrigan, who was passing, rendered first aid and had the man carried into Hertz Market until the ambulance from the Backus Hospital was summoned to take him there. He will probably remain at the hospital for several days, until fully recovered from the attack.

SETTLEMENT MADE IN SUIT AGAINST CITY

The suit of Mrs. Annie Kay of Plainfield against the City of Norwich has been withdrawn from the superior court docket, settlement having been made for $300. It was reported. Mrs. Kay sued for $5000 damages on the claim that she sustained a fractured wrist in a fall on the sidewalk in front of 99 Main street on Feb. 7, 1923. It is alleged that her fall was caused by the icy condition of the sidewalk which had existed for some time through the alleged negligence of city authorities.

A very little tombstone may tell a very big story.

GASOLINE STATION FOR EVERY 3 1-2 MILES OF ROAD

Approximately 43,000 motor vehicles changed hands in Connecticut during the past year, it is indicated by the records of the state motor vehicle department. At the same time there was a decrease of 415 in the number of motor vehicle dealers registered in the state, the whole number listed in the department for the calendar year 1924 being 598. The number of motor vehicles which changed hands in the year was an increase of about 8,000 over the previous year. The department makes a charge of $1 for each transfer of registration.

Gasoline stations continued to increase, the number registered at the end of the year, according to statistics given out Friday, being 3,939, as against 2,577 at the end of the previous year. There is now a gasoline station for every three and one-half miles of road throughout the state, on an average basis, including towns, roads and all other types, and one for about every half mile of state roads, and applications continue to be received for the licensing of more. It was recently brought out that the stations already established sold enough gasoline in 1924 to fill Reservoir No. 1 of the Hartford municipal water supply to capacity, and the supply of this reservoir is sufficient to fill the water needs of Hartford and its environs for two weeks. The average gross income of each retail gasoline station from the sale of gasoline was nearly $5,500 for the past year. Since there is no state tax on oil, the department has no way to ascertain the average gross earnings on all the business of such stations. It is true, however, that many garages maintain gasoline pumps, which are subject to the state licensing law, merely as accommodation to patrons of other departments of the garages and are therefore not profitable.

Sautter 41825, W. O'Brien 40635, F. Hunter 40470, H. A. Congdon 40360, A. Woodmansee 39215, R. A. Krohn 37980, C. O. Wright 35045.

Final arrangements were made for the tournament between the Polishers' Union and the Eagles for a five night's tournament. The first game is to be played Friday evening, Feb. 27 in the Eagles Club.

Announcement was made at the request of W. O'Brien of the Polishers that Albert Woodmansee, better known as "Deck," had been elected as captain of the polishers pinochle team and all communications for future challenges should be sent to Albert Woodmansee, Bushnell Place.

The members of the Eagles will start another weekly tournament amongst themselves for a series of eight nights. The first session is to be held next Thursday.

POETRY

FLOWERED HAT.

I was so sorry that she looked like that
The poor old creature in the flowered hat
Too young for her tired, wrinkled face too wide,
With too-bright roses massed on either side.

But she trod on, smiling contentedly
As if at something that we could not see Till in a great store-window's gleam and flare
A mirror faced her, and she stopped to stare.

I tried to turn my own wet eyes away
Before she learned the thing the glass must say,
And still I watched, braced for her
stabbed surprise,
But there was only, shining in her eyes
A swift and rapturous child-vanity
Triumphant over our reality.

She had not seen that old face, dragged and lined—
For once, it seemed, God had been very kind;
After dull years of disillusionment
And days that could not go as young dreams went.

The hat had called her back her own girl-face,
And, shadowed there beneath its flowers
and lace,
She saw, still undespoiled by time and pain,
By grace of those gay flowers—her youth again.

—Margaret Widdemer, in Everybody's Magazine.

"WHY ART THOU SILENT?"

Why art thou silent? Is thy love a plant
Of such weak fiber that the treacherous air
Of absence withers what was once so fair?
Is there no debt to pay, no boon to grant?
Yet have my thoughts for thee been vigilant,
Bound to thy service with unceasing
care,
The mind's least generous wish a mendicant
For naught but what thy happiness could spare.
Speak!—though this soft, warm heart,
once free to hold
A thousand tender pleasures, thine and mine,
Be left more desolate, more dreary cold
Than a forsaken bird's-nest filled with snow
'Mid its own bush of leafless eglantine—
Speak, that my torturing doubts their end may know!

—William Wordsworth.

CHINAMAN KILLED IN TONG WARFARE IN PROVIDENCE

Chinese Cook in a Weybosset Street Restaurant Was Stabbed to Death—Veteran Policemen Declare They Know of No Murder That Would Compare With the Brutality in the Killing of Chin Moon—A Cleaver Was Used by the Murderers—Assistant Was Wounded.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 22.—Warfare between rival Chinese tongs which has resulted in a series of murders in various eastern cities during the past several months broke out anew in this city today when a Chinese cook in the King Young restaurant, 285 Weybosset street, was brutally stabbed to death and his assistant wounded by two unidentified Chinese who are believed to have come from Connecticut by motor car on a death mission. The murderers had plenty of time in which to escape, for it was at least two hours after the crime had been committed that it was discovered and reported to the police.

Chin Moon, aged 54, the murdered man, is, according to information given on the police by the wounded man, Chin Ting, and other Chinese, a member of the On Leong tong, the most influential in this country of Chinese societies. Ting, who received only two slashes, one on the side of his face and the other on his arm, is not a member of any tong, so he told the police. He is at the Rhode Island hospital, where it was reported that he will recover.

Veteran Providence police with records of from 23 to 26 years of service, after viewing the mutilated body of Chin Moon, which was found in the dining room of the restaurant in a pool of blood with a 12-inch meat knife thrust in the throat, said that within their memories they know of no murder in this city to compare with the brutality perpetrated in the killing of Chin Moon. Trouble in Providence among Chinese is a rare thing, they said, and no member of that race had until today been murdered in the city during the past 15 or 20 years.

The cleaver, the traditional weapon of tong murders, was evidently used by the murderers, for the head, neck and shoulders of the victim had been hacked beyond recognition and thirty gaping wounds by a blunt instrument bore witness of the fury of the assailants, as revealed by the autopsy made by Dr. A. H. Longfellow, a medical examiner for Providence county, after Chin Moon's body had been removed to an undertaking establishment. Cryptic slashes about the mouth, the mystic signs that tong assassins usually mark their victims with to strike terror in the hearts of their opponents, were missing, but the eyes were badly slashed, according to Dr. Longfellow. Everything gave evidence of haste and merciless savagedness, he said.

Three deep stabs with a sharp flat weapon, probably the carving knife which was found thrust in Chin Moon's throat, indicated the work of a second assailant. In the opinion of the medical examiner the immediate cause of death was a gaping throat wound that severed the jugular artery.

The wounded man described the assailants as being about 35 years old, five feet seven or eight inches tall and wearing blue shirts and dark caps. A traffic policeman reported having seen an automobile with Connecticut license plates parked near the restaurant with a Chinese sitting in it, and police broadcast these facts by telephone and telegraph throughout New England.

LA FOLLETTE FORMING A NEW POLITICAL PARTY

Chicago, Feb. 22 (By the A. P.)—The La Follette plan for the organization of a new national political party was adhered to, at a meeting here today of men and women who yesterday decided on the formation of the new party after the gine die adjournment of the conference for progressive political action convention. A name for the party will be decided on later.

Representatives of the 16 labor organizations affiliated with the C. F. L. A. did not participate in today's meeting.

A committee of seven, appointed last night, to whom the matter of deciding upon the basis of representation in the new party was referred, today submitted a dividend report.

A majority report recommended that the party consist of state organizations constituted on geographical lines in conformity with election laws of the different states, that such state organizations shall be autonomous and formed on such lines as the states determine, that the cooperation be sought of all organizations which in the last campaign supported the independent presidential candidate and that in a national convention hereafter to be called the delegates from the several states shall be proportioned to the aggregate number of votes cast under all party designations for the independent progressive candidate for the presidency in the last election. In addition, an executive committee of five, to be appointed later by Chairman William Johnson, Washington, shall have power to admit other delegates on the basis of such representation as they deem proper.

The minority report recommended that the party consist of state organizations constituted on geographical lines in conformity with the election laws of different states, but the national committee and all state and local committees should also admit direct affiliation of organizations of workers and farmers and of progressive political and educational groups who fully accept its program and principles.

The minority report was tabled, 93 to 64, and the majority report adopted after a long discussion in which Morris Hillquit, of New York, national socialist party leader, spoke in favor of the adoption of the minority report.

Resolutions were adopted that conventions representative of those who were active in the last campaign be held in the several states to elect delegates to a national convention; that the executive committee of five to be appointed to cooperate with the progressive organizations in the states and provide for holding state conventions and for a national convention to be held at such time and place as the executive committee shall determine and that the state conventions elect delegates to the national convention on the temporary basis of two delegates (one man and one woman) from each state.

The meeting adjourned without fixing another meeting date.

HOUSE INVESTIGATION OF AVIATION ENDS

Washington, Feb. 22.—Abrupt termination of the house investigation of aviation possibilities and the controverted possibilities raised by Brigadier General Mitchell, assistant chief of the army air service, caused interest to switch today from the capitol to the war department and focused it largely on Secretary Weeks.

The war secretary is faced with a decision involving either the reappointment of General Mitchell to his present office or his release from it by March 26 when his present appointment expires. Those closest to Mr. Weeks predict the selection of another officer to be assistant chief of the air service, but no suggestion as to what he will do has come from the secretary himself. It had been the announced intention of the secretary to wait until the investigating committee concluded its programme of hearings before he determined upon a selection for the post.

It was pointed out, however, that Mr. Weeks' decision would not be influenced by an recommendations the committee members might submit as a result of their inquiry. In this connection, it was said the war secretary would formulate his plans in a way that would lead to selection of an assistant chief to Major General Patrick in precisely the same manner he would have chosen one had ther never been any investigation.

With the abrupt ending of the hearing yesterday, however, all that remains for the committee to do now is to go over its lengthy record and prepare a report on its findings.

TWO MEN KILLED DURING GUN RIOT IN MARTIN, KY.

Martin, Ky., Feb. 23.—Two men were killed, including a deputy sheriff, and six others were wounded during a gun fight here today. The cause of the shooting had not been learned.

The dead: Talt Hall, deputy sheriff of Floyd county; and Lewis White.

The wounded: John Hall, town marshall of Wheelwright, Ky., Steven and John Flannery; Dick Thompson and Norman Collins.

Causes which led to the shooting are still mysterious. Authorities declared White and John Hall met as the latter was boarding a train here shortly before noon. The men are reported to have exchanged a few words and then to have drawn pistols. White was wounded but he continued to pump bullets at Hall. A few minutes later White fell dead.

The shooting is then reported to have become general. During an exchange of shots among an undetermined number of men, more than 200 shots were fired, according to police reports.

One version of the shooting was that a feud efisted between White and the Halls, and another was that the Halls were attempting top lace White under arrest.

OBSERVED ANNIVERSARY OF WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

New York, Feb. 23.—Patriotic and religious organizations joined today with the people of New York generally in observing the anniversary of Washington's birthday.

In St. Paul's chapel, Broadway and Fulton street, where Washington once worshipped, Bishop William T. Manning, speaking at services held by the Sulgrave institution, urged greater respect for the law as one of the essentials of patriotism.

The Rev. Dr. William Pierson Merrill, pastor of the Brick church, preached on "Washington, the Liberal."

At the Sulgrave institution service, Bishop Manning said that personal honest, personal responsibility and religion are the three essentials of partiotism. In discussion the second point he spoke of the need of respect for the law, referring especially to prohibition.

"We hear a great deal about enforcement of the law," he said. "I think we need to hear more about willing observance of the law."

Among the other observances was a service held by the Manhattan chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution at the Church of the Incarnation.

Authorities, while inclining today to the belief that Lonergan met his death by accident when he stumbled and pitched down an embankment into the creek, were continuing investigation into the circumstances surrounding the case. The medical examiner pronounced death due to drowning. Lonergan had not seen seen since Saturday night, when he attended a democratic caucus.

Manem purchased the bullion in Germany. It was mostly of melted currency smuggled into France during the course of several trips he made across the Rhine. Manem hid the bullion inside his mattress in the sleeping car and virtually slept on a bed of gold. He was arrested by customs officials at Thionville.

Two Cars Derailed on New York Central

Ripped Up the Rails for a Distance of More Than 800 Feet—No One Was Injured.

Canastota, N. Y., Feb. 22.—Derailment here early today of New York Central train 44, popularly known as The Beaver, caused by the buckling of a freight train which threw a freight car across the path of the flyer, 200 feet away, did not cause injury to any one of the 150 passengers aboard the New York-bound flyer, according to railroad officials.

The Beaver, with eight sleeping cars and two day coaches, ripped over the rails for a distance of more than 800 feet, every one of the ten cars leaving the tracks. Checkup disclosed that the only person that sustained any injuries was a Pullman porter, who had a slight scalp wound.

An investigation by D. W. Dinnan, assistant general manager of the New York Central, discussed that a broken arch bar of a box car caused the derailment of two freight cars, on an adjoining track, one of which was hurled in front of the onrushing passenger train. The engineer and firemen applied the emergency air brakes at once and then jumped down behind the firebox, to save themselves. Work on the breaks lessened the force of the crash of the train against the obstruction.

A train of coaches made up at Syracuse arrived soon after the derailment and carried the passengers to Utica, where a train of Pullmans was waiting. The train left that city at 6.59. All the tracks had been cleared and repaired by two o'clock this afternoon.

In the sleepers most of the passengers were in berths when the accident occurred. They were all jarred more or less but there were no reported instances of any being thrown from berths. Some of the passengers did not leave the cars after the derailment though all the sleepers were scattered more or less in zig-zag fashion across the rails. All remained upright.

It was regarded as little short of a miracle that no passengers were in-

REV. H. E. FOSDICK SEES NEW RELIGIOUS REFORMATION

New York, Feb. 22.—The Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick, whose services as special preacher at the First Presbyterian church end on March 1 by order of the New York Presbytery, declared today in his farewell sermon that a new religious reformation was on its way which might possibly serve to "split away from the Evangelical churches, as the Lutheran reformation had to split from the old church."

Dr. Fosdick, who as a Baptist minister holding a Presbyterian pulpit was the subject of much controversy in the dispute between the fundamentalists and modernists, said in his sermon today that multitudes of Christians "have not the religious of Jesus," but only the "religion about Jesus," and that "the religion about Jesus tends to crowd out, smother and destroy the religion of Jesus."

"A religious reformation is afoot," Dr. Fosdick said, "and at heart it is the endeavor to recover from our modern life the religions of Jesus as against the vast, intricate, largely inadequate and often positively false, religion about Jesus. Christianity today has largely left the religions which He preached, taught and lived, and has substituted another kind of religion altogether.

"If Jesus should come back now, hear the mythologies built up around Him, see the creedalism, denominationalism, sacrimentalism carried on in His name, He would certainly say, 'If this is Christianity, I am not a Christian.'

"That same thing is happening in the church which is happening all over the country on Washington's birthday. How many orators will indulge in high-sounding praise of Washington. They have a patriotism about Washington. But the patriotism of Washington—that is another matter and it is not easy to find."

TO CONFER ON QUESTION OF EVACUATION OF COLOGNE

Paris, Feb. 22.—The French official viewpoint in that the inter-allied conference to settle the question of the Cologne evacuation, German armaments and other matters should be held only after a complete agreement has been reached on all subjects between London and Paris. Although the French government has not been officially informed that Austen Chamberlain, British secretary for foreign affairs, will stop off at Paris on his way to Genevaf or a conference with Premier Herriot, it is felt here that he will certainly do so ,as it is impossible for M. Herriot to proceed to London while the budget is still under discussion by the chamber of deputies.

RAIDS CONDUCTED BY EXILED BULGARIANS

Sofia, Bulgaria, Feb. 22.—Two armed raiding parties, composed of exiled Bulgarians, crossed the Jugoslavian border into Bulgaria early today and attacked villages near Slivnitza were captured and the remainder killed. SPEED BOAT SEIZED WITH 200 CASES ASSORTED LIQUORS

New York, Feb. 22.—Loaded with 200 cases of assorted liquors, the speed boat War Bug was captured in the Hudson river off upper Manhattan Island early today by the police boat Gypsy, after a chase which began with a circling game of hide-and-seek around the Statue of Liberty.

Dodging ffequent shots from the pursuing police vessel in its run through the harbor and up the Hudson, the speed boat finally was halted by an explosion in its engine room. Three alleged rum runners were arrested on charges of violating the prohibition law.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

This was the man God gave us when the hour
Proclaimed the dawn of Liberty begun;
Who dared a deed and died when it was done,
Patient in triumph, temperate in power—
Not striving like the Corsican to tower
To heaven, nor like great Philip's greater son
To win the world and weep for worlds unwon,
Or lose the store to revel in the flower,
The lives that serve the eternal verities
Alone do mold mankind. Pleasure and pride
Sparkle awhile and perish, as the spray
Smoking across the crests of cavernous seas
Is impotent to hasten or delay
The everlasting surgest of the tide.

LAST BODY BROUGHT TO SURFACE IN INDIANA MINE

Sullivan, Ind., Feb. 22 (By the A. P.).—Search by mine teams for the bodies of 51 men entombed after an explosion in the City Coal company's shaft here last Friday ended early today, when the last corpse was brought to the surface.

Burial of the dead has been started, but there will be no community funeral. Each family will care for its own dead.

Under the direction of Red Cross representatives, plans were completed for extending relief to the bereaved families.

Albert Dally, state mine inspector, who directed the removal of the bodies, left for Indianapolis soon after this work had been completed, but announced he would return Tuesday to make further inquiry into the cause of the explosion. His investigation apparently will be the only official inquiry.

Sullivan county officials are disposed to accept the theory that the explosion was caused by the sudden precipitation into the mine of a quantity of gas from an earth pocket, the gas being ignited by the spark from a miner's tool or the flare from a worker's lamp.

Norval K. Harris, Sullivan county prosecutor, said he discovered no evidence of negligence in the observance of safety rules. The use of open lamps is not prohibited by the Indiana state law, he pointed out.

FAVORS REFERENDUM ON INCREASE IN POSTAL PAY

Chamber of Commerce of the United States Supports "an Adequate Increase in Postal Salaries, But Opposes "a Flat General Increase of Pay"—Contends That Reports of Civil Service Commission Shows That Needs for Increases are for Clerks and Carriers in the Large Cities.

Washington, Feb. 22.—Business interests embraced in the membership of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States have voted in a nation-wide referendum overwhelmingly in support of "an adequate increase in postal salaries," but against "a flat general increase of pay, applicable throughout the country for all classes of postal employes."

An analysis of the vote made public today by the chamber is said to reflect the opposition of business interests to the pending postal pay and rate increase bill.

"The chamber holds," the statement said, "that such increases as those of which its members have approved can be made without alteration in the postal budget and without necessitating any increases in postal rates.

"A review of the reports of the civil service commission," the statement said, "shows clearly that the only urgent needs for increases in salaries in the postal service are for clerks and carriers in cities having the largest postal revenues, that is, annual revenues of $8,000,000 or upwards. There are approximately 40,000 postal clerks and carriers in these cities—that is about 12 per cent. of the employes in the entire postal service.

"If these 40,000 employes were given the increase of $300 per annum contemplated in the pending bill, the cost would be approximately $12,000,000. Three million dollars more would cover the approportionate increases to clerks and carriers in cities of smaller size where conditions, although not serious, may be held to justify some increase.

"As the budget of the post office department for the year beginning with July 1 next shows an expected surplus of a little more than $10,000,000 congress could, without any changes in the present postage rates and without materially altering the postal budget, meet the requirements of the present situation."

NEW LAWSUIT AGAINST PIGGLY WIGGLY CORP.

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 22.—The Piggly Wiggly corporation has fallen heir to another lawsuit, W. A. Titus, of New York, a preferred stockholder, yesterday asked the Shelby county chancery court to declare illegal the dividend of $14 per share on the preferred stock, declared several days ago.

Titus contends the corporation has no funds with which to pay the dividend, which covers deferred payments of 2 per cent quarterly for the past two years, and that authorization of the payment is a method being employed by officers and directors to return the corporation to control of the common stockholders in the hope of continuing their own domination of the business. At the recent meeting, the board of directors voted to pay the proposed 5 per cent quarterly dividend on April 15 to stockholders of record on April 1, actual payment of this dividend, the company officials said, will restore control of the corporation to common stockholders.

Taylor was well known in rowing circles, having been coxswain of the freshman crew and stroke of the varsity eight during his second year in college. He gave up his studies after completing his second year, to go into business. He was 22 years old.

NEW YORK POLICEMAN SHOT WHILE ON DUTY

New York, Feb. 22.—Patrolman Maurice Harlow, 27, was shot and fatally wounded while on duty early this morning. John Crowley, 25, who was found near Harlow with a bullet wound in his abdomen, was arrested by the police on a charge of murder, following the death of the patrolman.

Mrs. Crowley, who was with her husband at the time of the shooting, said that they had just left an apartment house where they had been attending a party. The police said that she and her husband were "a little intoxicated" and said that she did not witness the shooting. Crowley is not expected to live.

Both men recently were married and their brides are in a hysterical condition. The wife of Patrolman Harlow is ill in her home as the result of her husband's death. Mrs. Crowley was taken to Bellevue hospital.

Police said that the shooting resulted from Crowley's desire to avenge what he considered previous wrongs from Harlow. On Jan. 15, after being arrested by Harlow, Crowley, according to the police, threatened to "get" the officer.

Police records show Crowley was arrested several times for disorderly conduct and had a criminal record which began when he was 10 years old.

New York, Feb. 22.—The dream of every singer was realized tonight by Mary Frances O'Connell, 20, of Mobile, Ala., when she made her grand opera debut in the leading role of Lazare Saminsky's new opera, "Gagliardi of a Merry Plague."

This, however, was not enough and she continued to study for a year more, supporting herself by taking parts in the choruses of musical comedies.

When the cast of Saminsky's opera was being chosen it was decided to award the leading role to the winner of a vocal test. Miss O'Connell entered it and was chosen for the part over 200 competitors.

Cloth, unfinished and finished caps of the High Grade Cap Manufacturing company conducted by S. Melamed and B. Chaiken went under attachment Saturday forenoon as a result of civil action brought against the firm by Alfred Oden and Herbert A. Gillett, owners of the Strand block, for non-payment of rent. Rent to the amount of $80 is due and the landlords demand damages of $100. The cap concern has been located in the Strand block on Broad street for several months and apparently has not been favored with good business. City Sheriff Gilbert P. Flynn placed the attachment and left the goods in charge of a keeper. The case will be heard before a justice of the peace Monday, March 3. The cap company started in business in the old Raynor building on Bank street about three years ago and on various dates since that time about $500 has been borrowed. The notes were drawn on a local bank and endorsed by Isadore J. Heller and Max Mandell, Heller having the largest interest in the notes. The total amount unpaid on the notes is now $631.38, and ten days ago Mr. Heller decided that it was time for a settlement. Messrs. Melamed and Chaiken were unable to meet the payments and made out a bill of sale to Heller for the machinery in their establishment, the bill being on record at the office of the town clerk. A few days before the legal action brought by Oden and Gillette the machinery had been removed to satisfy Heller's claim.

The boy found the fake coins on a rock and took them to police headquarters to see if they were any good. The imprints of a buffalo and the head of George Washington were perfect, or nearly so, but the lack of jingle in the pieces immediately placed them in the lead class.

COLUMBIA

Miss Myrtle Collins and her sister, Mrs. Raymond Lyman, returned Saturday, the 14th, from a visit during the previous week in East Hartford with their brother, Cleveland Collins, their sister, Miss Lura Collins, also their brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Collins.

A most enjoyable meeting of Columbia grange was held at their hall Wednesday evening, the new master, J. Henry Lafleur, presiding. The large number of young people who have joined the grange recently, has given it new life, there being 45 members present at the meeting.

The lecturer, Mrs. Howard A. Rice, a ceaseless worker for the grange, presented an excellent programme, the first number being a song well rendered by Miss Helen Field. Mrs. Ida Lyman, a member o the grange at Chesterfield, Mass., read a very meritorious paper entitled Columbia Grange Record, chiefly devoted to grange items of interest.

Miss Lila Seely followed with the song, When I Kissed My Mother Good Bye. A rollicking farce, The Victrola and the $2 Record, was enacted by the young men of the grange, and made a great hit when the victrola and the record went to smash with a crash, accompanied by the roar of the performers. The event of the evening was a debate on the subject, "Resolved, That the Consolidated School is Better Than the District School, For Columbia. Miss Marion Clough, the Chestnut Hill teacher and Raymond Lyman spoke for the affirmative side and Mrs. Ethel Blakeley also William Wolff upheld the negative side. It was stated that the state school board and the supervisor favored consolidation, but it was claimed that the expense would be too great for the town.

Mrs. Edward A. Smith and Mrs. E. T. Smith of Hebron, also Lucius Robinson of Columbia, were judges of the contest. The arguments on both sides particularly by Mrs. Blakeley, on the negative, who covered the whole field, were very convincing. The judges gave a unanimous decision in favor of the negative. Lucius Robinson and H. P. Collins also spoke on the subject. Refreshments of cake and cocoa followed, after which there was dancing for an hour, closing an evening full of pleasure and profit.

J. H. Lefleur, master of the grange, Mrs. Howard A. Rice, lecturer, also Mr. and Mrs. Lester J. Hutchins, attended the meeting of Pomona grange in Ellington, Wednesday.

JEWETT CITY

A bad grass fire occurred Sunday in the middle of the afternoon on Mrs. A. G. Brewster's farm, just south of the borough. Mrs. Brewster was alone, and her farm buildings and home were threatened for more than an hour. Her telephone calls to the borough for aid were unavailing as the operator was unable to reach Chief Wakely or get response from the engine house. Anyhow, whatever misunderstanding occurred in reference to a messenger sent to the engine house by Fred Manard, no one came to Mrs. Brewster's assistance. It is well known that an unwritten law forbids the taking of the chemical outside the borough limits, yet, it is an equally forceful unwritten law that neither Chief Wakely or his men, are of the sort to refuse aid anywhere at any time. Unfortunately something missed connection. Nearby boys, however, ran to help and Mrs. Brewster worked with shovels and water. Hard and persistent efforts finally stopped the flames. The lot where the fire started borders the Voluntown highway. Some careless smokers threw a butt or a match into the tinder-dry grass.

No such summer day as was Sunday is on record for Washington's birthday in this section. The mercury for four hours in the afternoon stood at points from 65 to 70 above. Hundreds of people enjoyed refreshing walks along the country roads leading out of the borough. Pussy-willow parties were the order of the day, each returning group having their handsome quota to show. It was agreed that although rough weather may be in store, yet spring was here for three days, with Sunday Feb. 22 set down as a record breaker.

Postmaster William T. Crumb has given notice that the delivery and business windows will be closed today from 8 a. m. to 6.30 p. m. The lobby will be open for the 11.15 a. m. and the 3.13 p. m. mail.

The banks, schools and library will be closed. Otherwise business will be carried on as usual.

"His Hour," filled Finn Opel's house Saturday at the matinee and evening shows. Some went expecting an awful shock to their nervous systems. Such however was not forthcoming. Miss Pringle was charming in her faultless interpretation of the leading role. Mr. Barnett's spring bookings include many top line productions. The Parasite and If I Marry Again, brand new, may be expected soon.

At the meeting of Pachaug Grange, P. of H., No. 96, Thursday evening, the following interesting program was carried out as arranged by the Worthy Lecturer, Mabel Kinnie, singing of America, reading, George Washington, Miss Marion Frink. Quotations from Washington and tributes to Washington, read by several members, recitation, The New George Washington, by Leon Young, singing of The Star Spangled Banner, Paper, Housekeeping in 1776 read by Mrs. C. T. Armstrong, questions and answers, Five Questions and the answers distributed to as many members were read, one guess being allowed after the question was read, after which the answer was read. This was followed by a word contest. The members were given three minutes in which to get as many words as possible out of the words "George Washington." The prizes went to Mrs. F. L. Kanahan and Walter A. Hyde, singing of Battle Hymn of the Republic. The worthy lecturer announced that the next meeting would be Ladies night with Miss Clara Hyde as chairman. Guests of the evening were C. Palmer Chapman, worthy master of Rhode Island State Grange, Mrs. C. P. Chapman, Pomona of the National Grange, and Miss Flora York, Ceres of Connecticut State Grange, who being invited by Worthy Master Byron Kinnie to address the meeting responded in a cordial way, complimenting Pachaug Grange on its new home and the fine record it has made. Several flags were displayed Sunday in memory of Washington.

A Jewett City man was much interested in reading in Saturday's Bulletin about the ice on the Thames and in Long Island Sound, during the winter of 1875. He tells about going down to the landing to see the great horse race which took place right on the river. The Ella and the City of Lawrence were frozen in at the as fast ever was Peary in the Arctic. The race, he says, started right oppsite the steamboat wharf and there was one of the owners, in a wonderful big fur coat, and his name was Osgood. The other, who stood patting his horses neck before the start, he tells of as Mr. Blackstone. He wore a coat that reached away down to the ice but it wasn't fur. One man had a long flat file, and just before the start, to make sure that the shoe calkin were sharp as could be, he lifted up each hoof and drew the file across the sharp edges. It was a great day and many people were there to see, and walked about the harbor as though it was a pond.

At the crack of the pistol they were off. The fine ice crystals, flew from the horses' sharp shoes, the people cheered and waved their caps, and in no time, it seemed, the fleet racers were out of sight around the bend. It seems a safe prediction that no such sight will be seen again on Norwich harbor. But, he adds, "Why couldn't it? Are such winters done?"

Passers-by on East Main street were interested Saturday, in the first breaking of ground for new spring building. S. E. Rosenberg, is going to build two modern bungalows on the splendid site he owns at the south end of the East Main street highlands. Hardly has this elevated spot especially in point of extended view off to the south and west, a surpassing competitor. This Joseph Brown property has been considered for purchase many times of late, more than once by men of capital who had thought of a fine residence with this southern overlook. Grading to the street level, in terrace formation, is included in the improvement plans.

Old Cluny Watson, who declared two weeks ago that the winter was about played out sends the following clipping to the writers of this column:

Look Out For the Big Storm

The Cloud Digger warns the readers of the papers that the storm he predicted September 21st for the middle of February is about due and will be on hand as predicted.

Even the semi-successful ground hog cannot prevent it. Whether it is to be rain or snow, no man, not even the weather bureau can tell until it gets here; but conditions at present say snow and lots of it.

If it turns out to be rain, get your goods up out of the cellars if you live on low lands, for it will be a hummer, but whether snow or rain it's coming about on time.

Be warned in time and dig in, says The Cloud Digger.

The old man says, this is another, in his opinion of the almost certain failures, of the fifty-to-one shots, on long-distance, although de luxe, cloud-digging. No man can hit a February weather target from the distance of the preceding September 21, except he be an exhumer of more evident skill than has yet been dug up.

The Commercial Bowlers Association rolled off an interesting match Saturday, adding a set of commendable figures to the alley records.

Lefavre got away with the honors, with a not too dangerous crowding from Gagnon.

NEW LONDON CHINESE IN TERROR, BECAUSE OF PROVIDENCE MURDERS

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Feb. 22.—As a result of two Chinamen being murdered this noon in a restaurant in Providence, the police tonight took extra precaution against any attempt at assassination of local Chinese being made. The Chinese who entered the Chinese restaurant in Providence, who seized a cleaver and large butcher knife and terribly mutilated the bodies of the Providence restaurant employes, are described as being about five feet, seven or eight inches in height, medium build and wearing dark clothes, including overcoat and cap.

Late this afternoon all of the Chinese laundries closed their places of business and the only Chinese business places open for patronage was the Far East restaurant.

At the Chinese Tea & Coffee house, Golden street, where many Chinese assemble on Sunday nights, a particular watch was maintained, Patrolman Frank Philopena being on duty there throughout the late afternoon and the night. The officer was stationed in the main entrance, where he kept his vigil until after midnight.

The murderous Providence Chinese were supposed to have escaped from the city in a Hudson sedan for such a car was observed outside the location of the double murder and a watch here was kept for the car.

The fire department was kept busy this afternoon subduing grass fires for three blazes of this nature occurred but resulted in no damage being done. The fires were located on tracts on Coleman street, Fay street and Blydenburg avenue. In each instance an apparatus was sent out and the blaze extinguished by chemicals. The fires, it is understood, were started by mischievous boys.

The cottage of James Guardascota, 41 Dyke avenue, Ocean Beach, was discovered to have been entered by sneak thieves this afternoon, when one of the windows was found forced. So far as is known, no plunder of value was removed from the place.

Jordan was maid of honor. Following a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Matteson left for a wedding trip. Upon their return will reside at 43 Perry street. The New London police Saturday afternoon received a request from the authorities of Torrington that a watch be maintained for an automobile that might contain the burglars who robbed a clothing store in Torrington, Friday night, securing 14 overcoats, 38 suits of clothes and a quantity of neckwear and scarf pins. The automobile, which bore registration, 200744, was last seen headed in an easterly direction.

Tony Cadrella, public service operator, is scheduled to be in the police court Monday morning charged with violation of the automobile ordinances of the city. Cadrella was arrested Saturday afternoon by Traffic Officer W. Corcoran charged with the offense and upon complaint of residents of Pearl street. Cadrella, it is alleged, has been accustomed to park his automobile on Pearl street, a thoroughfare that is exceptionally narrow and a considerable distance from the curb. When the police received a complaint Saturday morning from a resident of Pearl street, who alleged that the car had been parked from the curb the greater part of the night, Officer Corcoran found the car and took Cadrella into custody. The accused declared that he had not driven the car to the location where it was found, but that a friend to whom Cadrella had loaned the car was responsible for the machine being parked from the curb. However, as Cadrella is the owner of the machine, he will have to stand the prosecution.

The Acadien, French steam trawler seized Nov. 29 by the United States coast guard cutter Red Wing as a rum-runner, was released Saturday afternoon by the federal authorities and is now at the wharf of the F. H. & A. H. Chappell company, being gotten ready for sailing. When Capt. Luis Andren, master of the Acadien, was in the federal court at Brooklyn, he was branded as one of the worst rum-runners yet taken into custody.

An automobile owned and driven by Robert Cruickshank, 861 Orange street, New Haven, knocked down Charles Wheeler, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Wheeler, 132 Jefferson avenue, on that thoroughfare this afternoon. The boy escaped injury of a serious nature. Cruickshank was operating his car through Jefferson avenue in a northerly direction when the youngster attempted to follow his brother to the opposite side of the street and in doing so was run down by the automobile. The car was stopped and the child, accompanied by his father, was taken to Lawrence hospital, where an examination showed that the child had received only superficial bruises. After the wounds were dressed the child was taken home.

Viggo E. Bird, 86 Gardner avenue, complained to the police this forenoon because of annoyance experienced by him from youths residing in the neighborhood.

Red Wing; Miss Frances Roberts, Main street, Westerly; and John Drew, U. S. S. Cassin, patients at the Lawrence hospital, were dismissed Saturday.

John Kobeck should have answered to his name when it was called in the police court this morning to answer to a charge of intoxication. But he didn't appear though he had given a bond of $25 to make certain that he would plead to the complaint. His bond was declared forfeited. But John had method in his failure to answer. He has twice been arrested for intoxication in a month and has been treated with leniency, so he probably considered that he would rather pay $25 than spend a term in jail.

John Stoddard, an agent of the Prudential Insurance company, who as The Bulletin first announced, disappeared from his home in Groton, returned yesterday in the care of Roy David, a former Grotonian, now employed at Quincy, Mass. Stoddard was picked up by the Boston police a week ago, suffering from amnesia. His wanderings after he left home is a blank to him for he cannot remember what occurred. He is a past noble grand of Fairview lodge of Odd Fellows and through the good offices of David he was brought back to Groton. Stoddard is not a native of Groton but came there to work for the Ship and Engine company. He is married and has two children.

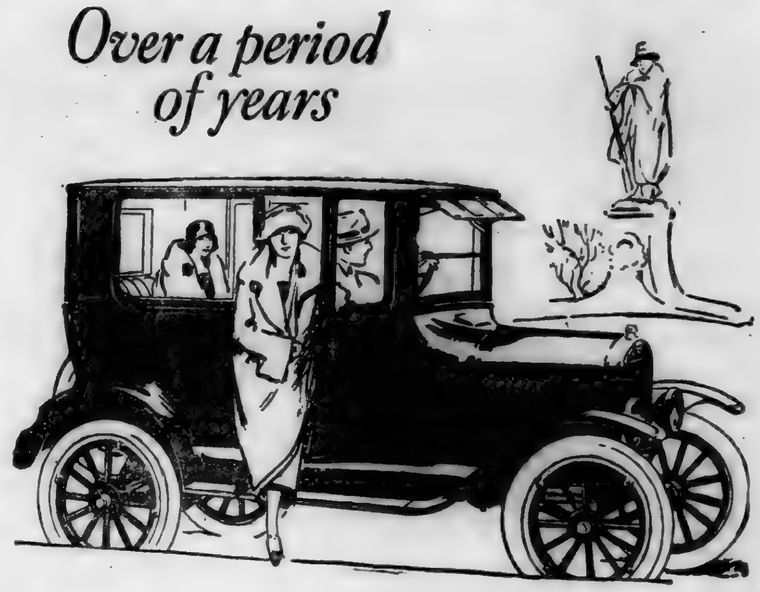
Over a period of years



THE Ford car has remained the undisputed leader for value in the motoring world.

There are certain fundamental reasons why this is true. It is a car, properly designed and staunchly constructed, having a motor which has proved itself reliable, long-lived and economical.

It is adequately serviced by an organization reaching to every community and neighborhood.

These combine to give the Ford car the highest resale value in proportion to list price.

And as production volume of the Ford has grown the purchase price has been steadily reduced.

In morning worship Feb. 15 the text was "There was a man sent from God whose name was—Lincoln;" whose history and character was briefly sketched, and several estimates of the man quoted from others; this being one in a short series given on Biblical and other characters.

For the Wednesday evening worship at home altars the subject is "What is the value to me of Lent?" Each has been requested to look up appropriate Bible references.

Tuesday, Feb. 17, at about 8 p. m., it was discovered that the Peck school house was ablaze and the flames under such progress that nothing could be saved. The flames could be seen plainly from Hanover and adjacent points. The building had been put in repair last summer, and was equipped with charts, books, a globe and other school supplies. The teacher, Miss Seltzman, has been doing good work and pluckily completed her week's teaching by continuing school in the house of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nelson, where she has been boarding. It has been arranged to have the pupils of Peck school carried to Baldwin and Gayhead schools for the present. So far it is not known what insurance, if any, was carried on the building. Its loss affects the whole town.

A special town meeting was called for the laying of taxes and other matters for the afternoon of Saturday, Feb. 21st.

For the first time in years, on account of roading and weather, the annual meeting of Westminster church was held in the church, the temporary parsonage not then being in condition for guests, attended by what was supposed to be exactly a quorum. The pastors had no manuel and the clerk was absent. Consultation of the rules later showed the business done that day lacked two of the required quorum and so was illegal, and must be done over. It is expected that a special meeting will be called for Saturday, Feb. 28th, a notice of it being given in church at the morning worship.

No one has been heard to regret the failure to materialize of the severe storm foretold for this week.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

From Orlando, Fla., under a recent date, George F. Bartholomew, of the West Side, writes that he is delighted with that community, one of the finest places he has seen in that state. It was so cool in Orlando on Feb. 18 that top coats were the comfortable thing to wear—along with other clothing, of course. "Not many straw hats are to be seen here," Mr. Bartholomew comments. Nor here, either, by the way, although the young ladies displayed a few in the near-spring weather of Sunday. On second thought, that is almost a free advertisement for the milliners.

Spring fever appeared to be epidemic among automobile drivers over the week end. In the splendid weather cars that have not been out of a garage since the groundhog went to bed last fall rattled out onto the state highways along with the machines that have been in service all winter and the operators seemed to vie with each other in pulling off fool driving stunts under the influence. It may be assumed, of the coming spring. They pulled off all the old man-killing tricks—speeding, cutting in, driving with one hand and "lovin' her up with the other," etc., etc., all tending to make one's hair stand on end, if one were intent on going along peacefully and safely. It's the same old story. The state patrols will have to put a few of them into court to get the rest of them back to normal. It is unfortunate, but it is true. Many drivers seem to have forgotten the rules.

Sunday morning, at his home in Hampton, where he has lived for approximately 60 years, John McMahon, 85, one of the oldest residents of this section of eastern Connecticut, passed to his reward. He had been ill about two weeks. Mr. McMahon was one of the pioneer emigrants from Ireland to establish himself in this section of Windham county back in the days when agriculture was the principal occupation and manufacture in its early stages.

His long life was dedicated to tilling of the soil. As a youth he worked on farms in the Church street section of Brooklyn. Industrious and saving, he eventually accumulated sufficient funds to purchase a farm of his own, and acquired a fine and productive area in Hampton, where he continued to make his home. Mr. McMahon was well known in Brooklyn and Killingly, as well known as any man who has lived and labored in this countryside in half a century.

He was a model of industry and clean living happy in his calling and at ease with the world. His friends were legion and he never forgot a friend. It is recalled that he made a practice of traveling far and wide, so long as his health would permit, to visit the sick and to be in attendance at the last rites for the dead. He considered it a duty and he rigorously followed the code, even when the effort, in his failing years, was a tremendous strain on his waning strength. For the sacrifices he made in this respect, alone, his memory will long be cherished.

A few years since Mr. McMahon sold his farm in Hampton and has since lived in a little home place he purchased in which to spend his declining years.

Mr. McMahon leaves a daughter, Mary, with whom he made his home, and three sons, William of Hoxie, R. I., Edward of Boston and John Francis McMahon, of Hartford.

Mr. McMahon was one of the most aged members of St. James' parish, of which the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes at Hampton is a mission.

Mrs. Josephine Elizabeth Pray, 81, and practically all her life a resident of Hopkins Mills and vicinity, is dead at her home in that place. Mrs. Pray was a native of the town of Foster, from which Killingly has drawn so many sterling citizens. She was a daughter of Gardner and Mary A. Davis Phillips and came of a family long connected with the history of southern New England. Mrs. Pray leaves no relatives nearer than a nephew and nieces, two of the nieces being Mrs. Lena Tripp and Mrs. W. H. Barrow, of Dayville.

What of state highway construction if it is to roll up within the period three years like the surface of rather rough water and make motoring over it something of an experience like bumping the bumps rather than a smooth and enjoyable pastime? That may not be a question for the ordinary person to decide, but it at least will command the attention of the state highway department in making an inspection of the "new" state highway between Brooklyn and Hampton. This route has not wintered well. It did not a year ago. It is rough and roll and filled with deep depressions and spring-breaking ridges. It cost enough to be a good road. It is hardly living up to that characterization. Maybe the foundations for it were not deep enough. In any event, it is a weak sister among the state highways hereabouts just now.

Regulations as to fasting and abstinence during Lent, as promulgated by Bishop Nolan, were read at all the masses at St. James' church Sunday. The restrictions should not be arduous for anyone who sincerely desires to impose restrictions on one's self, as to meals, during the penitential season. The restrictions apply only to those who should be able to make some sacrifice if they so desire. There is nothing rigorous about the schedule, just a sufficient amount of self-denial to impress one who believes in observing the period that there are periods of the year when thoughts should best turn to things spiritual and not be wholly concerned with the material things of life.

Get your mail early this morning! Today (Monday) will be observed as a holiday—as Washington's birthday—by the postoffice. The office will close at 10 a. m., and thereafter no business will be transacted for the day. There will be no delivery by carriers. The lobby of the postoffice will be open until 6.30 p. m., allowing all who have rented boxes to get their mail at any time they desire. The mails will be despatched as usual.

Fabiola, a sacred drama in three acts, was presented in St. James' school hall Sunday evening by a cast of young women of the parish and attracted a capacity attendance. The cast was made up of Misses Beatrice Lagace, Blanche Lamoureaux, Louisa Viens, Anna Lagace, Simone Quintal and Elisa Poudrette, with a number of minor supporting characters. An orchestra played for the production.

At this time when there is thought of items that enter into Killingly's annual budget as a town, a matter that will be officially presented to the electors next month, it may not be out of place to suggest that the town might be a bit more liberal in its allotment of funds for Memorial day without straining its capacity to pay in any degree whatever. Killingly has been appropriating $220 for Memorial day expenses in various communities of the town. Of this amount $100 has been allotted to Danielson. Plainfield speaking, it is not enough. The ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic have dwindled pitifully. The larger part of the labor of arrangements for the observance now falls on the shoulders, here in Danielson of McGregor Woman's Relief corps. It costs much more to do things than it did a few years ago—to buy flags and markers for the graves of the soldier dead, sadly more numerous years by year; it costs for transportation, for flowers, for the collation—for everything that enters into the cost of the celebration. Yet the appropriation remains at the same pitifully small figure. What is said here applies equally to the cost of Memorial day observance in Dayville, East Killingly and South Killingly.

This town cannot afford to be niggardly in its patriotism. It cannot afford to pass any part of the burden of Memorial day expense to patriotic organizations, particularly to the G. A. R. and W. R. C. It should not expect W. R. C. members to labor for organization funds that later are given up to pay for an expense that rightly belongs to the town, as representative of all the people. But Killingly is doing that just now. Few and infirm, the G. A. R. cannot do what it was glad to do in other years. The Relief corps should not be expected to carry a large part of the Memorial day expense, nor should any other organization. Killingly can afford an appropriation adequate to the needs of a very solemn and significant observance. Likely it will provide it this year. It surely will if the facts are made clear to all. No suggestion for an increased appropriation has come from an patriotic organization, though members of them admit that it would be gladly welcomed. These organizations say nothing about the sacrifices they make to raise funds to meet expenses that rightly should be paid by the town—funds that they really need in their own treasuries. It appears the time has come to increase the appropriation for Memorial day observance. At about the date of Washington's anniversary it appears to be a propitious time to call the attention of the public to the matter.

Miss Kathleen Burns of Hartford was a visitor with relatives here on Sunday.

Miss Nellie Sullivan of Hartford spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kennedy.

For some, but not for many, today (Monday) will be a holiday.

There were many flags flying about the borough Sunday in observance of Washington's birthday.

(Special to the Bulletin)

Danielson, Feb. 22—Two kegs of beer were seized in a raid, Sunday noon, at a four-family dwelling on Lower Dyer street. Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Ayer, with County Officer William E. Jackson and Federal Officer William Congdon, both of Willimantic, were the raiding officers. They took into custody Theodore Perreault, who later said that his given name is not Theodore, thought that name appears in the writ and ordered several men who were about the place as frequenters to appear in court Monday morning. In default of $2,000 bail which he had not obtained up to late Sunday evening, Perreault remained in the cell at the police station. This is the first raid conducted in Danielson in many weeks.

Dr. William Beach Olmsted, headmaster at Pomfret School was the speaker at the last regular meeting of the Putnam Rotary Club. Dr. Olmsted used the value of one's association with his fellows as the subject for a very interesting talk. He congratulated the Rotarians upon their club, telling them that in organization lies the secret of accomplishment. He said that he valued the fraternal spirit of an organization such as the Rotary club where men call each other by their Christian names, and likes its close comradship and its unity of purpose.

He believed the high school of America are doing more for the country than other single institution, and urged that efforts be made to instill truth, honor and ambition into high school boys to make them better citizens of tomorrow. His message to the club was that fraternal spirit and a unity of purpose are the greatest things in life.

The attendance contest in the club between two teams captained by Walter J. Barlett and Howard C. Bradford stands at the both sides having perfect scores. WESTERLY

At Maple Breeze, the rapidly growing community on the Norwich-Westerly road, near the junction of the road to Voluntown, it is planned to have the Westerly waterworks install city water services by extending its water main from White Rock to that section. A petition has been drawn by Representative Charles F. Champlin of Stonington, a member of the Connecticut legislature, to be presented to the Westerly water commissioners praying the extension of the water service, and there are already 30 signers. The main, it is hoped, will cross the Pawcatuck river near the bridge and, passing near the old trolley sub-station, extend out on to the Norwich-Westerly highway. Fire hydrants can be installed and protection, as well as srevice, can be provided.

An alarm on the Pawcatuck fire whistle was blown Sunday afternoon, shortly before 2 o'clock, for box No. 65, Stillman avenue, near Brick mill. The alarm was for a brush and grass fire near St. Michael's new cemetery, off Stillman avenue. The truck of the P. S. Barber Hose company responded and the firemen were able to put out the blaze without the use of chemicals or laying of hose lines. The recall sounded in less than a half hour.

Filed in the office of Westerly town clerk are the following deeds:

BRIDGEPORT PRISONER DENIES LAW VIOLATION

(Special to the Bulletin)

Putnam, Feb. 22—Loren Salwitz was arrested by the state police at Bridgeport Saturday and brought to Putnam and presented in the city court before Judge M. H. Geissler charged with breaking the liquor laws by the illegal transportation of liquor. He pleaded not guilty and gave a cash bond of $1,500 for his appearance in the same court, March 2nd. He gave his residence as 1818 North avenue, Bridgeport, and insisted that the police had made a mistake, that he was not the man they wanted, that he had never been engaged in the transportation or sale of liquor. The officers were just as positive that Salwaltz is the man they want.

MONSON CO. BANKRUPTCY RECALLS T. J. CORCORAN CASE

(Special to the Bulletin)

Putnam, Feb. 22—The Monson Worsted Company of Monson, Mass., has filed an involuntary petition in bankruptcy in the U. S. district court at Boston. The liabilities are listed at $148,585 with assets of $57,453. The Monson Company was formed by Thomas J. Corcoran, Jr., once of Putnam. Among hte unsecured creditors is the First National Bank of Putnam with overdrafts amounting to $25,428 and three notes amounting to $25,000.

When the First National Bank failed, it was soon known htat the Monson Worsted Co., had been loaned large sums by the cashier of the Putnam bank and it also soon became known that the Monson Worsted Co., was in financial straits. A suit was begun by a number of stcokholders of the company and later a creditors' committee was appointed, among them being the receiver of the Putnam bank.

When Mr. Corcoran started the operation of the mill a number of Putnam people, former employes of Mr. Corcoran went to Monson to work in the mill and after a while took shares of stock until considerable of their money was invested in the enterprise. It is understood that one Putnam family has as much as $15,000 invested in the stock. Following the closing of the First National Bank and the calling of loans, it is said that every attempt was made to keep the company from going into the hands of a receiver, but without success. State Bank Commissinoer John B. Byrne is quoted as saying that the only way for the Putnam bank to receive a return of the loaned money is as a general creditor.

Other unsecured creditors of the bankrupt company are the Mechanics Bank of New Haven, holder of a note for $25,000; the Centerdale Worsted Mills at Centerdale, R. I., $9,531; Clifton Yarn Mills, Inc., Clifton Heights, Pa., $7,380; and the Crown Worsted Company, Providence, R. I., $8,280.

The secured claims against the company amount to $5,991 and unsecured $140,717, according to the involuntary petition. The assets consist of cash on hand, $1.85; real estate $10,000; machinery and tools $26,720; accounts receivable $20,731.

Mr. Corcoran came to Putnam as agent of the French River Textile company at Mechanicsville. After ten years or more in this position he went to a similar post in a mill to Manchaug, Mass. Here labor trouble developed and the mill was finally closed. It was following this that Mr. Corcoran organized the Monson Worsted Company.

During all this time Mr. Corcoran maintained a beautiful home in this city. Two years ago Mrs. Corcoran began divorce proceedings and was granted a decree with a large amount of alimony. The home was sold and Mrs. Corcoran now makes her home with her mother, near Hartford. Since that time Mr. Corcoran has seldom visited Putnam.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

Washington's birthday is being celebrated throughout these United States and the Broadway theater is celebrating this event by a special show of Keith vaudeville and pictures. It is an entirely new program and one that we recommend.

Kimbal, Gorman and Co., represent the greatest speciality dancing act on the vaudeville stage today, featuring eccentric, acrobatic, classical and jazzy dance numbers.

Jack Fulton and Dorothy Quinette in A Girl of Today is a riot of song and comedy. We have seen this act and heartily endorse it.

Len Carl and Dolly Inez in their own idea A Doorstep Rouleo is another knockout offering of song, dance and comedy.

Helen Brennan and Mae Winne in Modern and Old Time Songs are great songsters.

Kittle and Robin offering a sensational novelty are extra good.

A woman's intuition versus a man's logic!

When those two rivals meet on the open field of matrimony, it's a great game. Probably there isn't a married man alive who doesn't know the rules. As a matter of fact, a lot of them keep score cards in their file of experience. Wise philosophers, modern and ancient, have recorded that woman's intuition has a funny habit of winning out.

When Wadsworth Camp wrote his prize story, The Signal Tower, the Universal-super-Jewel to be shown at the Broadway theater today he had a railroad man's wife in mind more than a railroad man. Virginia Valli, is starred as the wife. Clarence L. Brown directed with Rockliffe Fellowes and Wallace Beery supporting.

Lenten Concerts Announced

In a number of Norwich churches Sunday announcement was made of the lenten concerts to be given on two Sunday afternoons, March 8 and March 15, in the Palace theatre for the benefit of Connecticut college and the high standard of the music chosen was commended and its appropriateness for the season emphasized.

No singer has a more universal appeal than Marie Tiffany, the popular soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Co., who is to be heard at the first concert March 8th of this course at the Palace Theatre.

In Miss Tiffany, local music lovers will hear an artist who is thoroughly American, and who has seen a living proof of the fact that great singers are born and developed in this country. Her national fame has come not from sensational advertising and personal exploitation, but from real achievement in opera and in concert.

Dr. J. Lawrence Erb, director of music at Connecticut College is a fellow of the Guild of American Organists and for nine years devoted himself to concert work.

Lionel Storr, the capable soloist of the concert of March 15th, has a remarkable bass-baritone voice. Mr. Storr is known throughout musical New England. His engagements in the past have invariably resulted in re-engagements under the same auspices.

The Boston Herald said: "Mr. Storr made an instantaneous hit and would have been heard in many more numbers than he chose to sing. He is a finished performer and sang with a charm that was delightful."

Musical America says: "His splendid programme and fine interpretation of the various numbers were laurels for him."

Frank Farrell, as a popular piano soloist and Frederick Lester, most distinguished organist, need no introduction to music lovers of Norwich and vicinity.

Tickets are $2 for the course, 50c extra for reserved seat, exchanged at the theatre after 9 a. m. Feb. 25, 26, 27.

Cupid need not expect to bag certain old bachelors unless he exchanges his bow and arrows for an automatic machine gun.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Strand Theatre.

The regular double feature picture program at the Strand theatre today and Tuesday will be Kenneth Harlan, Jane Novak and Faire Binney in A Man Without a Heart, a story of high life with brilliant lights and deep shadows, also Wanda Hawley in Sir Conan Doyle's The Desert Sheik. This picture abounds with thrills and action from the first reel to the last flicker on the screen. Tonight as a special holiday attraction the Strand will offer as an added attraction seven acts of semi-professional vaudeville also several local amateur acts headed by the well known dramatic artist, Conrad MacDowell, in a travesty on William Shakespeare's As You Like It and by popular demand will render his famous poem, The Blood Stains on the Snow. Mr. MacDowell will positively appear in person as the Strand management has a signed contract for the appearance of the far-famed Norwich Thespian. The admission for tonight will be all seats 25 cents and judging from the way this form of entertainment has taken hold at the Strand it would be a sensible thing for those who plan to attend to go early and avoid the inconvenience of standing. Because of the length of the program only one show will be given tonight. Doors open at 6.30; performance at 7. Today at 2 the regular matinee will be held and for the matinee all seats are ten cents.

Breed Theater

George O'Brien, the featured William Fox star, ably abetted by dainty Dorothy Mackaill, scored a big hit in The Painted Lady at the Breed theater last night.

It was one of the season's most notable first nights.

The story deals with the problem of the young girl alone in the world, forced by hunger to become a "painted lady" and in a rich, romantic South Sea setting gives a convincing, satisfying answer to the question: "Can a girl come back."

Miss Mackaill, as the girl, turns loose her whole talented temperament, attaining lyric heights of pristine passion under the flaming Southern Cross.

O'Brien and the now famed O'Brien smile annexed new laurels as the virile sailor chap whose clean, manly love was as a bridge from the misspainted past to the new life of his hand, home and heaven.

The all-star cast includes Lucille Hutton, Lucille Rickson and Margaret McWade, Harry T. Morey, Jean Major, Frank Elliot and Lucien L. Littlefield. Photoplay from Larry Evans' Saturday Evening Post story. An Inspiration Chester Bennett production.

The Painted Lady will be the feature attraction again today and tomorrow, at which time Al St. John in Jubilo But Brave and the Pathe news.

Arthur Middleton the great American baritone, a former member of the Metropolitan Opera company, is one of the operatic stars appearing in the American Grand Opera Trio in Slater Hall on Feb. 27th, under the auspices of the Norwich Free Academy.

ARTHUR MIDDLETON
Baritone

The other operatic stars appearing in the American Grand Opera Trio are Mme. Helen Stanley, soprano, and Paul Althouse, tenor.

Tickets for this concert are on sale at The Cranston Co., Broadway. Mail or phone orders will be given prompt attention.

EARLY REPORTS, EARLY ACTION

It may seem a bit early for Senator Cronin, republican floor leader in the upper house of the general assembly, to be calling the attention of the committee chairmen to the fact that the small amount of business coming from the committees is causing the legislature to be wasting valuable time, but when it is realized that February is nearly gone, the length of the session is restricted and it is highly desirable to avoid a jam during the closing days it becomes evident that it is none too early to prod the committees to action.

It is to be realized that the amount of work the two branches of the legislature can do is dependent upon the reports received from the committees. It is not improbable that the committees have their troubles and suffer from handicaps for which they are not entirely responsible, but the knowledge that the proper progress of the legislature rests with them cannot get too much emphasis. Floor Leader Cronin is aware of this. He knows that if they are allowed to drag out the hearings, delay their decisions or postpone many matters it will all be reflected in the days to come.

Short sessions make it evident that the legislature is suffering from a lack of business, and every day that there is a failure to utilize the time of the general assembly there is just so much time wasted that cannot be regained. It means an encroachment on the remaining period of the legislative session which is growing shorter daily. It means that a larger amount of legislative action must be crowded into a certain amount of time.

It is just such delays that bring about the needless prolongation of sessions of the legislature and also prevent a proper consideration of reports because of the volume of business that must be disposed of in a limited time. Early reports and prompt disposal of them by both branches of the legislature are desirable, and Leader Cronin knows the importance of pointing it out now rather than waiting until the closing fortnight of the session.

SILVER VS PAPER

When such a demand is made for paper dollars that it is impossible to allow the necessary six months for them to season before putting them into circulation, the seasoning being in the interest of their longevity, there comes the announcement that silver dollars are being placed in the pay envelopes of federal employes as one of the means of accomplishing that much desired increased circulation for such coins. How this plan will work out will soon be disclosed. If the silver dollars are soon returned to the treasury it will be evidence sufficient that the public not only doesn't care for them but is unwilling to participate in the money-saving proposition through use of coin instead of paper. If they go out, continue in circulation and the weekly or monthly circulation increases there will be evidence that the public recognizes the part it can play in this direction and is willing to do it.

The east differs from the west in that it prefers bills to a pocketful of coin of equivalent value. The paper money, varying in denomination, has been so long accepted that no one seeks anything else when the amount is a dollar or more. In fact there is a disposition to shun the half dollars if they are offered in quantities of half a dozen or so, if the equivalent in paper is obtainable. Convenience favors the paper money.

Silver dollars have been few and far between, but the government has now minted them in such numbers as to provide for a generous circulation, and the use of them instead of bills means less expense to the government, since the paper is of limited existence and the work of renewal is constantly going on.

That much silver in the form of dollars can be kept in circulation seems probable. It would be no great burden if each person should have one, and there is of course no thought that they would entirely replace the bills. What the public reaction will be can best be told on trial.

FRANCE AND A CONFERENCE.

Worn reports which may not bear the seal of officialdom, it is learned that the idea of another arms parley, relative to a further reduction of naval armament, is favorable to most of the nations that would be invited, and even being urged by the British, Japan and Italy would accept an invitation, it is understood, but the impression is given that France does not regard such a conference with approval.

Will France prove to be the stumbling block to an arms conference that has in mind the restriction of auxiliary naval vessels? Perhaps France would be unwilling to refuse to participate, but if it does join in a conference it can be anticipated that it will do so as an opponent of certain restrictions unless its attitude has undergone a decided change since the Washington conference.

The present naval agreement would have been cast on much broader lines had it not been for France. France balked. It had not forgotten the war and it was unwilling that anything should be done that would handicap it in case more trouble developed from Germany. It was unwilling to leave the stable door unlocked, and it was in no mood to appreciate the fact that reduced armaments on the part of all would leave their sea strength relatively the same.

From the indications that France does not look upon another conference at Washington with favor; it is inferred that it has not been converted to disarmament, or limitation of armament. Nevertheless it must appreciate the economic benefit which arises from the fact that it is not trying to keep up with a brisk competition in the construction of capital ships, and that the agreement has ended such a competition.

It is only fair for it to realize that if there have been advantages from the existing naval agreement, all of which it has not endorsed, the same could be expected from further action along similar lines. France may not lead in such a move but it can hardly refuse to participate in the proposed conference, or do so without giving weighty consideration to the views of the other nations.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY.

Today this country marks another anniversary of the birth of George Washington. Among all its leading national figures there is a prominence and a distinctiveness of character about Washington that furnish a never decreasing inspiration. Why this should be needs little explanation when he is regarded as "The Father of His Country."

Washington wasn't perfect. He was human and he was a leader. He was just the man the country needed when it faced its earliest and at that time its greatest difficulty. He stepped into the position of great responsibility, faced most disheartening difficulties, underwent and saw those under him go through severe hardships, but there was a determination in his leadership, even as there was in the man. As Captain Samuel White has said, "In the days that tried men's souls, when danger and death were at the door and difficulties pressed on every side, Washington, born to command, to ride on the whirlwind and direct the storm, discovered to the astonished world that in the wilds of America had been raised a hero to the mighty task of working out the salvation of his country."

Washington paved the way for the success of this nation and it is the manner in which he did it, the ideals that he established, the principles he set forth during the days when precedents were being established and the guidance of what others had done was not to be had that made Washington so conspicuous and so revered then and so greatly appreciated in all the intervening years.

WARM FEBRUARIES.

Dreadful things have been promised during that part of the winter that has gone, and perhaps because of it February weather has been all the more appreciated. Much has resulted to establish confidence in the old saying about the groundhog, upsetting as it were for the moment the occasions in the past when just the opposite came true.

Quite natural is the oft heard statement that even though we have been experiencing mild weather in February we can expect to pay for it in March and April. The view is that we can expect just about so much cold and if we do not get it in February when we should expect it it will be distributed through the succeeding months and mean a cold, backward spring.

Apparently there are others who have been intimating such a possibility for a writer signing himself Elias Groundhog sends this to the Springfield Republican:

"Taking 'hot Februaries for the last 146 years, that is, those at least five degrees above normal, twelve have been followed by springs warmer and three by springs colder than normal. When the warm February has been dry (below normal) it has been in every case followed by warm springs. When it has been wet (above normal) it has in only one case been followed by a wet spring. Of course there is no law about all this, but it may interest some who think there is. As the rainfall records are for but 111 years, it may simply be said that all warm and dry Februaries have preceded warm springs."

There's nothing discouraging by such an outlook even if it does come true.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Having more than one measuring cup handy is a great timesaver in cooking.

A custard sauce, flavored with vanilla, is nice served with a fruit gelatine.

A cup of moderately strong tea, in which two or three slices of lemon have been infused, will frequently cure a nervous headache.

To clean egg stains from spoons first rub them with a little salt, then wash them in soap and water and dry with a soft cloth.

A new pipe cleaner is splendid to clean out the holes of the gas range.

Serve a loaf of hamburg steak in a border of fried onions and green peppers.

A wide rubber band is handy to keep the cook book open at the correct recipe while you are mixing.

Salt mixed with bicarbonate of soda will remove all stains on china cups caused by tea and coffee.

Serve junket topped with fresh fruit in season.

When the teakettle is not in use it should be emptied and allowed to dry.

If the doors in your house squeak, rub the hinges with a petroleum ointment or drop a little oil on them.

If the white of an egg is used in mixing a mustard plaster it will not blister.

Don't knead the leftovers of pie-crust too hard if you wish to make crisp tarts out of them.

Tiny baking powder biscuits served with stewed chicken take the place of dumplings.

A cupful of rice added to Lyonnaise potatoes just before taking them from the fire makes them most delicious.

Pare apples with a silver knife to avoid discoloration.

A fourth of a cup of salt in a gallon of water placed in a sprinkling can and sprinkled on the coal before placing it in the furnace will save fuel.

A JOB FOR HUBBY

If you will write down neatly on a sheet of paper each thing that is needed in the staple grocery line and keep it handy you can turn it over to friend husband when he starts out to buy his tobacco and save time and strength by not having to carry heavy boxed articles.

WHIPPING CREAM

When whipping cream for a dessert a couple of hours in advance try this method of keeping it firm until used. Whip until good and firm and then place in a sieve. Suspend sieve over the bowl just as close to the ice as possible. Then, if the cream should drip a bit, the liquid will go right through the sieve into the bowl and your cream will remain dry and firm.

AN IMPROVEMENT FOR COMPANY

If unexpected company turns up for dinner on the night you are having brown stew made from the leftover roast, build a crust around it and turn it into a meat pie, just as if that had always been your intention.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Few people realize how greatly general health affects the condition of the hair. Right diet and daily exercise are as important to the beauty of the hair as any tonic or massage treatment.

In cold weather it is more than ever important to protect the skin so that it will not chap or become too dry, flaky or itchy. This caution applies not only to the skin of the face, but to that of the hands, wrists and legs above the shoes.

Rub vaseline on the brittle finger nails nightly and give them the extra oil that your system lacks. If more butter, olive oil and fats are eaten the necessary oil will be supplied to the system and brittle nails will be avoided.

For enlarged pores at bedtime cleanse your face with a little cold cream, wipe it off and press out the blackheads. Lather well with warm water and tincture of green soap. Rinse well. Dry and pat on a little chloroform liniment over the enlarged pores. This will sting a little, but it contracts the pores wonderfully. Wash it off next morning. If you find that the daily use of the liniment dries your skin too much, use it every night for a week, then discontinue for a week. After this you may be able to keep your pores small without the aid of the liniment, using an astringent vanishing cream as a powder base instead.

PERSPIRING FEET

The person annoyed with perspiring feet will be greatly benefited by shaking boracic acid in their stockings each morning. This acts as a deodorant and an astringent and yet is harmless. If one's feet perspire, the shoes should be changed once or twice a day, so they obtain proper airing, as perspiration is very hard on the leather. The same thing applies to stockings. The same pair should never be worn twice without washing.

THE HOT WATER BOTTLE

A hot water bottle should be filled about three-quarters full, never to capacity, when used for warming a bed. When used to relieve pain, one-half full is plenty, as it will then give a soothing effect without proving too heavy for comfort.

HOME PRIVILEGES

If the child is interested in the home and old enough to appreciate responsibility, it is well to permit her to arrange the flowers for the house. It develops interest in nature and love of the artistic.

REMOVES STAINS FROM PORCELAIN

Equal parts of baking soda and chloride of lime smeared on the dark spots on a porcelain sink and left for a few minutes and then washed off with soapy water will wash away those nasty dark stains at the same time.

DICTATES OF FASHION

The English tailor-made two-piece suit now attracting attention is of the popular short coat, narrow skirt style.

On the simple one-piece frocks of crepe or faille which are so extremely smart there is often a long one-sided jabot made of bright-colored, printed crepe or chiffon.

Topcoats now are more tailored than ever, and more mannish. Many of the newest examples have velvet collars with notched lapels closely patterned from the male overcoat.

Hand embroidery in white on pastel shades of radium are a feature of the newest lingerie today. This embroidery usually is placed at the center of the top of the vests and only on one side of the step-ins.

Just now the flat tailored backs of the new spring suits are of great importance. The coats are usually double-breasted. Skirts are short and slim and often of the wrap-around type. Fur, if used, is restricted to the bottoms of the coats.

Banks of embroidery posed at the low waistline are an outstanding feature of the flannel daytime costumes being worn at southern resorts. The skirt below the band is usually heavily pleated, but in narrow folds, rather than in box pleats.

Embroidery over lace and lace over embroidery. Those are the two most popular combinations today for evening frocks for the younger women. One such frock, straight of line except for a slight flare at the hem, is of light blue and silver lace over dark and light blue embroidery.

Plaits have a score of uses today. Made of tulle, voile or mousseline de soie, they are used for collar and cuff sets. The collars are turned up about the ears or turned down about the shoulders as one favors the Elizabethan or the Charles I type. Plaits also form the edging of sleeves for jabots running from neck to waistline.

Cotton gloves once were regarded as the distinguishing mark of the New England spinster. Today they are being worn under the name of "fabric" gloves or "suedette" gloves by the best dressed women of the country. The favorite designs are of the soft gauntlet strapped wrist type.

LONG TIGHT SLEEVES

When it comes to sleeves some Parisian designers simply cannot restrain themselves. One has recently designed an afternoon dress of black and royal blue taffeta, with long tight sleeves, from the cuffs of which fall long narrow scarfs of contrasting taffeta ribbon, which join in a tassel about two feet from the wrist.

MARKING WAISTLINE

Although broad leather belts are occasionally seen on some costumes, the only indication of a waistline on the newest crepe satin afternoon frocks is a band of embroidery from six to eight inches wide which encircles the skirt between knee and hip. Rust, almond green and beige are popular colors for such costumes.

COLORED HANDKERCHIEFS

So many of the brightly colored linen handkerchiefs wash absolutely white in a few launderings. When next you are tinting underwear drop in a few of these plain white hankies and produce a few in pastelle shades. They will be more interesting.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Equal parts of ammonia and turpentine will remove indelible ink marks.

A little vinegar in the rinsing water will brighten green and pink colors.

Handkerchiefs should be soaked in a pail of salt water before they are put into the ordinary wash water.

Avoid hanging starched clothes in a strong wind, as the wind will blow out the starch.

After using the washing boiler and while it is still warm, rub the inside with soap. Soap will prevent rusting and add to the suds when the boiler is filled with hot water next washday.

TO WASH WHITE SILK

Make lukewarm suds with a pure, white soap. Let silk soak in this for about a half hour. Souse goods up and down in the suds but do not rub. Rinse thoroughly in lukewarm clear water, wring gently and then roll tightly in a clean Turkish towel for about two hours. Then iron the wrong side with not too hot an iron.

AIR AND YOUR PLANTS

Willing of plants in winter is avoided by increasing the amount of moisture in the air. It is not necessary to keep the plant roots in water or to soak the soil continuously. To keep the air damp, nothing has been found which equals a pan of water set on or near the stove, register, or radiator. The water in the pan is evaporated and distributed through the air, reducing the transpiration from the plants. Spraying the leaves with water every clear day also increases the moisture content and acts as a general tonic to the plant. Watering the plants two or three times a day is not a good practice.

PAPIER MACHE

An occasional washing is necessary with papier-mache ornaments, but great care must be taken with them. Wash with a soft cloth moistened in warm water (just dampened, not wet) Let dry and then rub the article well with a little sweet oil. Papier-mache articles should be dusted regularly, so that they do not gather dust and make them difficult to clean.

JUMPING TO JUMPERS

Sport costumes for spring and for the south are jumping to jumpers. Of fine knitted wool materials they are usually of the turtle-neck type which button on the shoulder. They are worn with matching skirts of similar material distinguished by heavy plaits to give freedom of movement.

COMFORT FOR ALL

When buying a home consider the needs of the members of the family who must go out each day, either to school or to work. It is very irritating and quite expensive for the person who must make several changes of cars to arrive at their daily occupation.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Nearly 900 women in England and Wales are listed as magistrates.

Gertrude Atherton, the author, is a great-grandniece of Benjamin Franklin.

Nearly one half the women in Washington, D. C., are engaged in gainful occupations.

The Queen of Spain possesses a typewriter of white enamel and gold, with ivory keys.

Sixty-eight percent of the million and a quarter voters that went to the polls in California at the recent election were women.

As financial head of the California State Board of Control Mrs. Nellie B. Pierce has cut the State budget to the extent of $12,000,000.

As United States commissioner 22-year-old Celia Cook of Clarksdale, Miss., is boss over her father, who is United States marshal.

USE SOUR MILK

Use sour milk with soda for gingerbread, biscuits, griddle cakes and such foods, and you will have lighter products than when you have only sweet milk.

FOR PIANO KEYS

To keep piano keys white and clean, rub them with a soft cloth moistened with alcohol, then rub dry with another cloth.

RECIPES

Sausage and Apple Toast: Required: 3 or 4 sausages, 2 cooking apples, 1-2 teaspoon of made mustard, salt, pepper, 6 or 8 pieces of toast. Peel, core and slice the apples, prick the sausages and fry, adding a little margarine to the pan. Fry the apple slices gently until tender in the sausage pan, turning often. Spread the mustard on the squares of toast. Cut the sausages into rings, and arrange alternate rings of sausages and apple slices on each piece of toast. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and serve hot.

Fritter Batter: Two egg yolks, one-half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons salad oil, one cup flour, one-half cup cold water or milk, two egg whites beaten to a stiff froth.

Add the salt to the eggs and slowly add the oil, stirring constantly. When thoroughly mixed add the flour and then the water a little at a time. If the batter is not quite stiff enough add a little more flour at this point. Let the batter stand two or three hours. Then fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. The batter is now ready to be mixed with the solid material.

Jellicoe Could Not Mix

Son of a distinguished seaman and efficient through long and diligent training, John R. Jellicoe could not acquire the faculty of mingling with other men and therefore was often greatly misunderstood.

As a boy he was very shy, but through the influence of his father he entered the king's navy at 13, won a special prize for gunnery as a lieutenant, and was graduated from the naval college first in three of five subjects.

Next he was present at the bombardment of Alexandria and later took part in the battle of Tel-el-Keber as a member of the Naval Brigade, winning decorations for gallant service.

Still quiet, diffident and imperturbable, he showed such proficiency in technical details of naval administration that he was awarded a prize at the Naval College at 24, and later became master of the mechanical side of his calling.

Commander of the Victoria, he was in the ship's hospital with Malta fever, his temperature 103, when the vessel was rammed by the Camperdown at a cost of 600 lives. When he was rescued it was found that his temperature had returned to normal.

Commandant of the Naval Brigade of the relief expedition during the Boxer rebellion, at 41, he was shot in the lung at Peking and was decorated, but returned to London an invalid. Two years later he married.

Next a director of naval ordnance, then a rear admiral at 48 and a lord commissioner of the admiralty a year later he became commander of the second squadron of the home fleet at 52, and was knighted soon afterward.

Prone to explosions of accumulated emotion, he had to remain silent while in charge of the British fleet at the beginning of the world war, and before he could build up his forces he was criticized for not attacking the enemy. As first sea lord of the admiralty he had command of 3,000 ships employed in protecting vessels from German submarines.

Made chief of the naval staff at 55, he soon afterward retired, was made a peer and was honored by the allied countries. Today, at 63, he is governor general of the Dominion of New Zealand.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Louis J. Tabor, one of the members of President Coolidge's agricultural commission, is best known to the public through his connection with the National Grange, of which large and influential organization he is the executive head. Mr. Taber comes from Cleveland, O., where he has had some hand in republican affairs. He followed Theodore Roosevelt into the Bull Moose ranks long enough to be defeated as candidate for lieutenant-governor of Ohio. For a quarter of a century he has worked for the Grange in nearly every state of the union, getting nothing worth mentioning in the way of dollars and cents for his efforts, but accomplishing much for his organization. Mr. Taber is a Quaker and has fought all his life for agricultural reforms, temperance and law enforcement. For two years he served as director of agriculture. Though a successful raiser of Jersey cattle, as vice-president of the Ohio-Pennsylvania Joint Stock Land Bank, he is particularly versed in rural credits.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

NEPAL'S SLAVES FREED

The Maharajah of Nepal has released some 50,000 slaves—an amazing event in an amazing little country, which the National Geographic Society describes in the following bulletin based on a communication from John Claude White to its Washington, D. C., headquarters:

"The Kingdom of Nepal lies among the Himalayan mountains, of which it owns a fair share. It is one of the least known Asian states.

"The road into Nepal is purposely kept in a bad state of repair and runs over unnecessarily difficult country. The Nepalese are a prolific people of very great energy and activity, eager to make the most of any opportunity which offers itself. The population is increasing so fast that outlets have to be found, and the trend of emigration now is to follow the foothills along Bhutan and into Assam.

"They also are a fighting people, have an excellent army and organization, and are fond of show, both in military display and in their religious festivals. The latter are very numerous and in fact seem to be interminable. The women take a prominent part in most of them.

"Some of the semi-military pageants end in the massacre of hundreds of buffaloes and indescribable scenes of blood and dead animals. In one such ceremony, known as the 'blessing of the colors, the commander-in-chief dips his hands in a bowl of blood and clasps each banner in turn, thus imprinting on each the mark of bloody hands. The scene is somewhat revolting, but probably has its use in keeping up a martial spirit in the army.

"The Nepalese women wear yards upon yards—sometimes as many as a hundred—of fine muslin plaited to form a huge fan-shaped bunch in front, the back being quite tight. When a lady of rank drives in her barouche she completely fills the carriage with her voluminous skirt of brilliant hue. Above the skirt a vivid little tight-fitting jacket, usually of velvet, is worn; the hair is dressed in a peculiar knot in front, above the forehead, and fastened to one side by enormous gold plaque with jeweled center. A heavy gold necklace and gold bangles complete her jewelry.

"Every imaginable shade is used—purple, pale blue, green, carmine, orange, white, yellow turquoise, and deep red—and the effect is wonderful.

"Though slavery is abolished the castes remain. The inhabitants of Nepal are collectively known as 'Parbaniias' or 'Dwellers in the Hills.' The principal castes among the Gurkhas, now the dominant race, follow in order of social precedence:

"The following are known as high caste:

"1. Brahmans, who eat rice cooked only by members of their own caste, only and drink water from hands of all members of castes Nos. 2 to 19.

"2. Surmgasi, who eat rice cooked by Brahmans, Thakuris, and Khas only. They drink water from the hands of all castes up to No. 19.

"3. Thakuri, who eat rice cooked by Brahmans only. They drink water from hands of all members of all castes up to 19.

"4. Khas or Chitsi, who eat rice cooked by Brahmans and Thakuris only and drink water from hands all members of castes Nos. 2 to 19.

"The intermediate castes run from 5 to 19, inclusive, and the lower castes from 20 to 24, inclusive.

"The five castes from 20 to 24 do not have Brahmans as priests. Their priests are members of their own castes. They have no dealings of any kind with castes 1 to 20. They must leave the road on the approach of a member of castes Nos. 1 to 19 and call out to give warning of their approach. They may not enter the courtyards of temples.

"The Bantor, Danuar, and Dhai tribes belong to the plains, and no one knows how to classify them in respect to social precedence.

"Recruiting for the British and Nepalese armies is carried on only from certain of these castes. In addition to these, there are among the Newars or conquered people, 41 castes and subcastes.

"Then all trades are subdivided into castes such as masons, carpenters and potters."

Stories That Recall Others

Nothing To Do.

The pupils of the fourth grade were preparing an essay on the subject of what their three wishes would be if they were to have their wishes granted. The teacher of the class was somewhat chagrined when the following wish was read by one of the class while four visitors were present:

"I wish I had lots of money so that I could go to college and be a teacher and wouldn't have to work."

Had a Sharp Appetite.

A man was on trial in the criminal court on the charge of stealing two diamonds. An officer testified that the defendant swallowed the diamonds when arrested, thereby destroying the evidence. The judge was a little slow to believe the man actually had swallowed the diamonds.

"But how do you know he swallowed the diamonds?" the officer was asked.

"I saw him, your honor," was the reply.

"But is it not possible that he could have swallowed something else?" asked the judge. Before the officer could answer he said: "Did you smell of his breath?"

TAFTVILLE GARAGE BURNED, TWO HOUSES DAMAGED, ESTIMATED LOSS $25,000

The Taftville Public Garage at the junction of Norwich avenue and the Jewett City road was totally destroyed and two three-apartment buildings were badly damaged by fire of unknown origin about 1 o'clock Sunday morning. Two machines, a large Reo truck and a seven-passenger Buick touring car were also destroyed. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

The spectacular blaze was discovered by an auto driver who was passing in the vicinity of the garage. Occupants of the apartment houses on either side of the garage discovered the blaze at about the same time. George Gregoire, owner of one of the apartment houses, was awakened by a peculiar glare in his room and looking out of the window saw the lower part of the frame garage in flames. Word was telephoned in to the Taftville fire department, and as the fire was rapidly assuming serious proportions the Yantic fire department, Jewett City department and Norwich fire department were called by telephone for help.

Chief Howard L. Stanton despatched Deputy Chief Henry R. Taft Engine Co., No. 2, from the Greeneville station and Squad A from the central fire station and also went to the scene of the blaze himself. The Jewett City fire apparatus also responded to the call for help.

From the first it was seen that the garage was doomed as it was a mass of seething flames and attention was directed to saving the two houses within a few feet of the garage. The heat was intense and drove the families from houses into the road. It was impossible to stand near the garage. Oil-soaked floors and several tanks of oil were ready food for the flames which spread with lightning-like rapidity. Several small explosions in the building also served to spread the flames in all directions.

The Taftville pumper was put to work and put two streams on the blaze, after bursting a hose when the water was first turned on. Within a short time after the fire was discovered the roof, walls and floor of the garage collapsed in a heap of ruins in the basement. A large Reo truck owned by the J. B. Martin Co. and a seven-passenger Buick touring car owned by Francois Gaudreau left in the garage were carried down into the basement with the ruins. Both machines were totally destroyed.

The north side of the apartment house owned by George Gregoire suffered considerable damage and some of the rooms in the house were damaged by smoke and water. The south side of the apartment house owned by Charles Bolduc caught fire in a number of places, but being of cement construction the fire gained but little headway before the flames around the windows were extinguished. The men of the local fire department prevented both houses from being destroyed. Furniture and personal belongings of the tenants in the houses were carried from the buildings to places of safety and most of the tenants sought shelter for the night in nearby houses.

Over a score of wires on the pole in front of the garage came down and the heat was so intense that the glass knobs on the crossarms were melted. The pole was badly scorched and will probably have to be replaced. A crew from the local telephone exchange was soon on the job and had temporary repairs made shortly after 9 o'clock Sunday morning.

The garage was owned by Francois Gaudreau of Norwich avenue and George Martel of Pawtucket, R. I. Mr. Gaudreau was called to Quebec Saturday owing to the death of his mother and left during the early afternoon for Canada. It was learned that the garage was closed Saturday and that no one had been in it during the afternoon and evening. There was an oil heating system in the garage but it is said there had been no fire in the heater for two or three days. The cause of the fire is a mystery.

The fire was discovered by N. D. Theroux who immediately started for a telephone. In the meantime a nearby resident heard the call of "fire" and asked the nuight operator at the local telephone exchange to notify the Taftville fire department, which she did. The operator also notified the Yantic company and the Jewett City department. It is understood that the loss is covered by insurance.

EXPLAINS AMENDMENT ON LIQUOR LAW ENFORCEMENT

A statement giving the reasons for and explaining the bill to amend the liquor enforcement law of the state has been issued by the committee of state's attorneys, William H. Comley, Jr., Arthur M. Brown, and Hugh M. Alcorn, who collaborated with the chief justice in drawing up the proposed amendment.

Their statement follows:

The eighteenth amendment is a part of the Constitution of the United States. It is the supreme law of the land and obedience to it must be enforced. The question now is not one of prohibition or even the modification of this amendment. "It is rather the question whether law shall reign, or the disorderly forces who engage in or support the liquor traffic shall be permitted to undermine law, corrupt the agencies of justice and ultimately sap the moral foundations of our social life."

The federal government never can enforce this amendment alone and the people who enacted it never expected the national government to do this, but to do it with the concurrent aid of the states and all their town and municipal agencies. All publicists agree that this is a duty which national and state governments must each assume. The national government cannot do the police work of every community in the country. Those who advocate this know that this is true. What they want is a wide-open Connecticut just as we have a disgustingly wide-open New York.

President Harding said the repeal of New York's enforcement law in aid of this amendment was nullification and so it was.

All agree that the eighteenth amendment is here to stay and to stay without modification.

President Coolidge is doing his utmost to enforce the Volstead act and he expects Connecticut to maintain, improve and enforce her own concurrent legislation. Our question is, shall we enforce this amendment because it is the supreme law of the land or shall we let it go unenforced and admit that the criminally inclined are our rulers? Disrespect for law is the most dangerous foe this country can have.

Movement to Counteract Growing Disrespect For Law.

To counteract the growing disrespect for law, a movement was begun in May, 1923, through the state's attorneys of the state. In September and October, 1923, Chief Justice Wheeler called together all the law enforcing officials of each county in order to secure uniform action throughout the state in enforcing our law. This movement from the beginning improved conditions and as a whole they are decidedly better now than they were a year and a half ago.

In order to find out the weak places in our law, the chief justice in December requested each judge and prosecutor in the state to write him such suggestions concerning our law as their experience had suggested to them. A great number of replies were analyzed and the best and most practical of these ideas were incorporated in a proposed amendment to our enforcement code, drawn up by the chief justice in collaboration with State's Attorneys Hugh M. Alcorn, Arthur M. Brown and William H. Comley. This amendment was then submitted to the other state's attorneys and thereafter presented to the present general assembly.

What the Amendment Does.

It helps the judges, state's attorneys and prosecutors to perform their duties better and more uniformly.

It is intended to stop the scources of supply by increasing the penalty threefold if the violator be armed. Our officers' lives are continually in danger from armed bootleggers and the increased penalties will help protect their lives. Of course the bootlegger objects to this, but no law-abiding citizen should.

It strikes at the lawbreaker

By increasing the penalties for transportation,

By making the act of transportation without permit a crime,

By making the person riding in the conveyance or accompanying it guilty as an accessory.

The amendment excepts from its penalty the purchase, use or transportation of liquors for medicinal purposes on prescription of a physician, or the use of such liquors in the treatment of persons suffering from alcoholism in a hospital or sanatorium under the direction of a qualified physician, or wine for sacramental purposes; and expressly permits a physician to prescribe and a pharmacist to fill a prescription for liquor so long as he acts in accordance with the national act. These exceptions are in the national act, but are not in our state act. They belong there.

This amendment makes it a crime to distill intoxicating liquors without a permit. It also makes it a crime to own, keep, sell or transport a still for the manufacture or distillation of liquor in violation of this act. Since it is a crime to manufacture or distill liquor, why should it not be a crime to have a still for this purpose?

It also makes it a serious crime to manufacture, possess or sell for beverage purposes any denatured alcohol which is adulterated with a poisonous substance. The purpose of this is to stop the use of poisoned denatured alcohol which is responsible for so many deaths, ruined bodies, organs and eyes. Can anybody object to these provisions or argue that they are not important provided we are to have any enforcement law?

It makes it a crime for the buyer to order, contract for, purchase or receive any intoxicating liquors. Why not? Is there any moral difference between the buyer and seller? The buyer makes the seller and when he quits buying the seller will quit his business. Is it not fair play to treat buyer and seller alike? As the law operates the well-to-do buy of the bootlegger and escape all penalty, and the less well-to-do know of this and feel that the law in its operation is unequal. Let us have one law and one kind of enforcement for rich and poor alike.

Provisions For Better Remedies.

The issuance of search warrants is simplified and strengthened. Under this amendment the judge as well as the court can issue these, but only upon sworn complaint of the prosecutor that he has reason to believe that liquor has been sold within one month in the place to be searched. The rights of the individual have been amply protected in this section of the act.

A provision is added for the confiscation of truck or vessel engaged in the transportation of liquor. The confiscation of the truck will be an efficient agency in stopping the traffic. If the same vehicle or vessel is a second time confiscated, the court will order it destroyed. This is necessary since, for example, one boat has been six times sold back to the bootlegger and its use continued in the same traffic.

Careful provision is made for the registration of stills. Prosecutors must have some way of following these. The making of liquor in stills by those unfamiliar with this art and the use of the products of these stills soon after making is the cause of many deaths reported daily in the newspapers.

The building, room or conveyance where liquor is manufactured, sold or kept may be adjudged a nuisance and an injunction issued closing the building or room for a year. This remedy is an effective one since it reaches the law-breaking owner or landlord. It is in quite general use throughout the country. Do you object to this equitable remedy against an owner or landlord who knowing permits his property to be used for such an illegal purpose?

The penalties provided under Section 10 of our enforcement act are increased as to first offenders, but the amendment leaves it discretionary with the court as to whether to impose a fine or a jail sentence, or both.

In the case of the second offender, the penalty is increased and a jail penalty required. These penalities are the result of experience and are necessary to properly enforce this act. Fines in appealed cases are returned to the town in which the case originated. This will avoid a tendency to dispose of the case in the lower court by giving a fine in order to prevent an appeal in which case under the present law, the state and not the town would get the fine.

How many of these proposed amendments can any fair minded man object to? They are not drastic but reasonable and necessary if we are to give our courts and prosecutors a fair chance to provide for us a reasonable enforcement of the law.

The Double Jeopardy Scare

Double jeopardy is throwing black dust in your eyes. There never has been a case of punishing a person in Connecticut for the same offense in two courts. There never will be such a case. Chief Justice Wheeler is on record as favoring modification of the Volstead act in this particular, and also in incorporating in our Connecticut enforcement act a provision that no person shall be subject to the penalties of our enforcement act who has before been convicted and penalized for the same offense in either federal or state court.

This proposed amendment will help every judge and prosecutor to enforce the law. It has been prepared with great care by as competetent authority as we have.

Every good citizen should support this bill and back the committee of the state's attorneys in securing its passage by the general assembly.

ARMY-NAVY FIVE IS OUTCLASSED BY EAST CONNECTICUT ALL-STAR TEAM

The Connecticut All Star combination that invaded Taftville on Sunday afternoon was all that the name implies and then some, for they performed in all-star manner, defeating the Army-Navy quintet, 35 to 17. The hall was filled and the fans were treated to some real basketball.

The All Stars, recruited from the five leading basketball teams of the state, showed their superiority at the outset of the game, scoring soon after the first whistle and never relinquishing the lead. The local quintet was apparently in a state of lethargy with the exception of Joe Belair, whose floor work was the one redeeming feature of the Army-Navy play. Although Belair failed to score a basket it was his exceptionally fast floorwork that kept the visitors to reasonable bounds. Mills scored the majority of points for the locals but his work was not up to the usual standard.

Carrington in the forward position and Benson, playing the pivot for the visiting team, were the outstanding stars of the game. Both boys played a hard and brilliant game both on the offensive and on the defensive. A large number of the scores made by the All Stars came as results of long shots from midfloor. It was not necessary for the visitors to shoot from a distance but the consistency of the score gave them opportunity for more of the open and spectacular play. One notable feature of the visitors' play was their teamwork, which completely baffled the local team which found it almost impossible to break up. The visitors showed that they know basketball and all its fine points and that they are the equal of any team in the state.

Dutch Leonard, an old favorite with local fans, played his usual close game, giving little chance for the Army-Navy forwards to get in any consistent basket shooting. Besides playing a stellar guard game, Leonard dropped in two baskets on his own account.

In the preliminary game the Army-Navy Seconds ran roach-shod over their Battery B opponents, emerging at the long end of a 40 to 22 score.

AGGIE TEAM WILL CLASH WITH TRINITY TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Storrs, Conn., Feb. 22.—Fresh from their victory over Holy Cross, the Connecticut Aggies will invade Hartford tomorrow, when they will attempt to take the measure of the rejuvinated Trinity team. The game is called for tomorrow night in the high school gymnasium, and the Aggies will be supported by practically the entire student body of the state college and large delegation of the alumni.

Coach Dole is placing the same team on the floor that defeated the Hilltoppers 50-23 last month, and Connecticut followers are looking for the team to come through with another win tomorrow night. It is felt at Storrs, however, that Trinity will present a more formidable team tomorrow than the one that was encountered earlier in the season. The addition of Thomson and Orrick, the two freshmen stars, has undoubtedly strengthened the Hartford outfit, but it is a question as to how much damage they can do against Dole's veteran performers. The Aggies are not taking anything for granted in regard to the game tomorrow, for Trinity can always be counted upon to be in top form for an Aggie contest.

With the exception of Schofild, the Aggie team is made up entirely of veterans, and it is one that combines speed with ability in all departments of the game. In Captain Balock, New Britain boy leading the Storrs outfit for his second year, the Aggies have a clever forward, and one that is certain to give the Hilltoppers' defense plenty of work. Maxson Eddy, Simsbury boy jumping center, has counted heavily in three Aggies attack to date and he should give Thomson plenty of opposition. [illegible] Makofski and Allard, the Aggies have a couple of [illegible] performers who [illegible] possible for [illegible] scores. In addition Makofski has been one of the big guns in the Connecticut offense, scoring heavily in most every game. Schofeld, sophomore forward, who teams up well with Captain Balock in the fore court, is considered one of the best court prospects seen at Storrs in several seasons. He combines accurate shooting with fleet floor work and clever passing, and he should count considerably in the Connecticut attack tomorrow.

The Aggies have played ten games to date, winning 7 and losing 3. Teams defeated include Springfield twice, Clark University, St. Michaels, New Hampshire and Holy Cross. Games lost to Army, Wesleyan and Massachusetts Aggies.

AGGIE CO-EDS LOSE HARD GAME TO N. Y U. DAMSELS

After battling on even terms for the first half, the Connecticut Aggies Co-ed basketball team fell behind in the last session and were defeated 27-12 by the women's team from New York University at Storrs Saturday afternoon. It was a game that was fast from the first whistle, and also one of the hardest played girls' games seen at Storrs in some time.

The New Yorkers scored first on Brinn's basket, but Grant kept Connecticut in the running with another shortly afterward. Brinn added a couple more for her team and for a while it looked as though the university team would run up a lead. Nase was sent in for Healey of Connecticut and she and Grant promptly made baskets from the floor that knotted the count at 6 all. A basket from the foul line by Brinn gave the New Yorkers the advantage of a 7-6 score at half time.

In the second half, Metz was shifted from guard to forward for the New Yorkers, and from then on it was all New York. Metz made 5 baskets from the floor and 5 from the foul line, and her height kept the shorter Connecticut guards from breaking up her shots. She was easily the outstanding star of the game, both on defense and offense. For Connecticut, the play of Grant was a feature. She made 2 baskets from the floor and 3 from the foul line for a total of 7 points.

Sub Base Beats Newport

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Feb. 21—Making a strong comeback in the second half, the Submarine Base basketeers evened the series with the Newport Training Station five and went into a tie for the Eastern Service basketball championship as the result of the victory. The score was 28 to 15 with the excitement high in the first half as the teams battled nip and tuck for a foothold.

CHAPMAN TECH IS AGAIN BEATEN BY KILLINGLY

(Special to the Bulletin)

Danielson, Feb. 22—Striking with all the decisiveness that Killingly had at her command, Chapman Tech was forced to bow before a better team for the fifth consecutive time, losing to locals by a 22 to 14 score after a scrappy game had been fought throughout. A late rally for Killingly High when matters were close and doubtful, proved to be the finishing touches to the Killingly victory.

For three quarters, both teams went at it hammer and tongs with neither team gaining a decided advantage. Going down the home stretch neck and neck, Killingly took a decided spurt with Conklin letting loose three long shots from the center of the floor, and the damage was done beyond repair. Killingly had won a tight contest and at the same time atoned for a defeat, the Red and Black handed the local school at New London earlier in the year.

The absence of Captain Andrews for the Tech outfit had some bearing upon the final outcome. Andrews has played a slashing offensive and defensive game in every contest he has partaken. But his playing was missed more Friday than ever before, for the Tech team weakened as it is was further handicapped by the absence of seasoned material.

Conklin was the outstanding player for either team, scoring when Killingly needed her points most. His baskets in the final quarter brought Killingly out of a deep rut. Jaworski also played a good game at running guard, playing well at all times. L. Hewitt and Martin excelled for the visitors. The score:

SILVER CITY GIRLS WIN FROM W. M. I. AT NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

Meriden, Feb. 22—Although making a strong comeback in the second half, the late rally of the Williams Memorial Institute girls basketball team fell short four points of the desired total and the New London lassies were forced to accept their second straight defeat Saturday at the hands of the George Washington High school sextette. The final score read 21 to 17 for the locals.

W. M. I. had difficulty in assuming an effective offense in the first half, and consequently was outplayed by the Silver City Girls. However in the second half there was a different story entirely with the visitors completely outplaying and outscoring the local girls. However the handicap of 9 points which the Meriden sextette had over the Whaler's was too much to overcome. In the first half, the Washington High girls started with a rush in an effort to cinch matters right then and there. They were successful to a certain extent, and piled up a lead which could not be approached by the visiting girls. At half time the score was 17 to 8 for the locals.

Changing somewhat her style of play, W. M. I. approached a more formidable attitude than ever before in the contest. Opening the second half with all the suspiciousness that marks the efforts of a fast team, W. M. I., with Miss C. Pendleton in the leading role, made a game stand and valiant attempt to overcome the early advantage the Meriden girls had piled up but to no avail. The highest proficiency in basket making was being attained just as the final whistle blew ending the contest.

BULKELEY ARRANGING A STIFF BASEBALL SCHEDULE

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Feb. 22—Manager Martin Harris of the Bulkeley baseball team is in New York during the short recess which the local public schools are enjoying. The purpose of the visit to the metropolis is to arrange the dates of the trip of the Bulkeley baseball team this spring. Manager Harris has three games pending one each with New York University freshmen, Fordham freshmen and Morris High school all of New York city for games during the week of May 2.

Besides the teams named above, Manager Harris is expected to visit Mount Vernon, N. Y., high school, St. John's College, City College of New York and several other colleges and high schools in the immediate vicinity of New York City and there schedule teams for the Bulkeley visit which will be extended for almost a week in the big city. An attempt will also be made to book Passaic High for a game to be played either at New London or New Jersey.

The elaborate schedule, which is planned to keep the Bulkeley team busy during the present year, is not finished by any means as yet. A few details will hold up the releasing of the schedule until the latter part of this month or possibly it will be extended until April. While the home schedule which includes a series of games with all of the leading teams in the state is nearing completion, the out of town schedule is far from completed.

A confliction in dates with Chapman Tech has caused the Bulkeley management to book several big games to be played on week days. With this arrangement it will be possible for the shop employees to attend the games for they will not be started until 5 o'clock or possibly a little later.

There is a general belief that Bulkeley will sweep all before her in the quest for the title this year of the state, for which she was tied for first place honors last year with Crosby High and New Haven Hillhouse in a recent verdict handed down from the athletic commission at Hartford. The mid-year examinations have taken their toll, and several of the players are on the brink. Make up examinations will enable the players to make up the deficiency in their scholastic standing. A better understanding of the status of the players will be made with the grading of the students during the first week in March.

The success of the basketball team of late may also be affected by the mid-years. A student is not allowed to flunk even one exam in the mid-years, and it seems as though the players on the five at present will either have to make up the difference in their standing or take the consequences and drop out of basketball.

AGGIES DEFEAT HOLY CROSS FIVE IN FAST GAME AT STORRS, 29 TO 21

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Storrs, Conn., Feb. 21.—In one of the fastest basketball games seen here this season, the Connecticut Aggies defeated Holy Cross tonight by a 29-21 score. Both teams put up a great battle for the entire distance, with Holy Cross staging a desperate but unsuccessful rally in the last half in an attempt to overcome the Connecticut lead. The State College team had forged into the lead early in the first session, and at half time had piled up what looked like a comfortable margin with an 18-5 score. The Purple outfit was not to be denied, however, and in the last half staged a sensational rally that for a time cut down the Aggies' lead. The real damage had been done in the first half, and the Worcester team was unable to catch up with the lead that the Storrs team had piled up in that session.

Connecticut scored first, when Schofield cut through the Purple defense and made a pretty basket from the floor for the initial counter of the game. He followed this with another shortly after, and throughout the game the Aggies stayed out in front of their Bay State rivals. During the first half, the Purple team made the mistake of leaving its back court unguarded, and as the Aggies intercepted passes they carried the ball down the floor for easy baskets, and in this way had soon piled up a good lead. Holy Cross defense was slow in forming when the Storrs team had possession of the ball, and time and again the speed of the Nutmeggers enabled them to cut through the Purple for easy points. Schofield and Makofski were turning in some great work for the Aggies at this point, the former making three double deckers from the floor, while Makofski came up from the back court to tally twice.

Connecticut's five man defense was working to perfection in the first half, and the highly rated Purple team was able to make but one basket from the floor in this session. Finding that they could not penetrate the Storrs defense, the Purple forwards resorted to long shots in an attempt to score, none of which were successful.

The Holy Cross five came back with whirlwind speed in the second half and they seemed like another team. An aggressive and clever attack was flashed from the first whistle and in short order the Purple began to cut down the Aggies lead. Martin, the clever Purple forward, gave a pretty exhibition of marksmanship, ringing them in from all angles and positions, and it was largely through his clever work that the Worcester team was kept in the running. In this half the Purple outscored the Aggies 16-11, but their offense was not equal to the task of overcoming the lead amassed by the State College team in the first session.

Couch Dole used a number of his second string men during the last part of the game, and but for this reason the Purple would have undoubtedly been held to a lower score.

Connecticut's team looked good tonight, and except for a few poor passes, the Nutmeg Aggies were playing in championship form. Makofski was almost a team in himself, scoring 10 points and at the same time putting up a pretty floor and passing game. He and "Jerry" Allard, former Putnam High athlete, make a strong defensive back court combination, and their work this season has brought forth much favorable comment from the Connecticut followers. Captain Balock, Schofield and Eddy all contributed to the Aggies victory with field goals and clever passing. Schofield in particularly, with three pretty baskets, counted heavily in the Aggies' offense during the first half.

For Holy Cross, the work of Martin was easily the feature. Playing at left forward, he showed an uncanny ability to ring them in from any position or angle, and he is easily one of the best forwards seen here at Storrs this season. Captain Shannon and Reilly also turned in some good work for the Purple.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Pretty Is That Pretty Does

The spider wears a plain, brown dress,
And she is a steady spinner;
To see her, quiet as a mouse,
Going about her silver house,
You would never, never, never guess
The way she gets her dinner.

She looks as if no thought of ill
In all her life stirred her;
But while she moves with careful tread,
And while she spins her silken thread,
The way to do some murder.

My child, who reads this simple lay,
With eyes down-dropt and tender,
Remember the old proverb says
That pretty is which pretty does,
And that worth does not go nor stay
For poverty nor splendor.

'Tis not the house, and not the dress,
That makes the saint or sinner.
To see the spider sit and spin,
Shut with her walls of silver in,
You would never, never, never guess
The way she gets her dinner.

—Alice Cary.

The Flight of the Birds

Whither away, Robin,
Whither away?
Is it through envy of the maple-leaf,
Whose blushes mock the crimson of thy breast,
Thou wilt not stay?
The summer days were long, yet all too brief
The happy season thou hast been our guest:
Whither away?

Whither away, Bluebird,
Whither away?
The blast is chill, yet in the upper sky
Thou still canst find the color of thy wing,
The hue of May
Warbler, why speed thy southern flight? ah, why,
Thou, too, whose song first told us of the spring?
Whither away?

Whither away, Swallow,
Whither away?
Canst thou no longer tarry in the North,
Here, where our roof so well hath screened thy nest?
Not one short day?
Wilt thou—as if thou human wert—go forth
And wanton far from them who love thee best?
Whither away?

—Edmund Clarence Stedman.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

A great many people blame colds on cold weather and stormy days. While this is true to a certain extent it is not the real cause of colds, for as we all know people can catch cold in fair summer weather. The real cause of a cold is the poor physical condition of the person, his body not being able to ward off the germs that find their way into his system. Prosays; One of the surest ways to develsports, proper food and plenty of rest will help materially warding off colds.

A well known physician writing about colds and how to avoid them says; One of the surest way to develop an immunity to colds is to engage in outdoor sports. There is little possibility of catching cold in outdoor sports or in outdoor life of any kind, unless one carries the germs of a cold in his system. Germs are very rare in outdoor air and especially so in winter. Outdoor exercise develops resistance to germ infection. It furnishes the needed oxygen to the system. It brings the oxygen purified blood to the surface to combat infection. If you do not believe it, look at the ruddy cheeks of the players. The same condition maintains in the respiratory organs where the blood cells combat disease.

If people were as careful to keep their rooms properly ventilated, to avoid crowded assemblies, to exercise freely, to choose proper food and drink freely of water and to get their due amount of sleep during the winter months as during the summer months, there is no reason why respiratory diseases should be more prevalent in winter than in summer.

About Balboa

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write you about Balboa. A long time ago there lived a Spaniard named Balboa. He lived in the West Indies and was a farmer.

Balboa took a trip to South America because he wanted to get away from the West Indies and he was badly in debt there, and if they caught him they would kill him.

When they got to South America they found nearly all the colony killed by the Indians. The sailors wanted to go back to the West Indies but Balboa did not want to go back because they would kill him.

The Indians of Darien told Balboa about rivers and temples full of gold. Balboa got some men and went across the mountains, he found no gold but he discovered an ocean.

Balboa discovered the ocean in 1513 and called it the South Sea. It is now the Pacific Ocean.

Making Cake

Dear Uncle Jed: One day I said to my mother, mother, I'll try to make a cake. She said yes, so I went to get the things. I took two eggs, a little drop of vanilla, a little flour and a drop of water. Then I stirred it and it became dough. I put it in a pan and set it in the oven to bake. When it was done I took it out and put a little frosting. I cut a slice off to see how it tastes. It tasted queer, but I didn't knew what the matter was. I cut a slice off and told my mother to taste it. After making a terrible face she told me to bring over the bottle of vanilla and I went to get it. The sign was vanilla but the contents was Sloan's Liniment. Mother asked me, "Why didn't you show it to me before you spilled it in."

I said I was just trying to make a cake and next time I'll not make any mistakes.

My Surprise

Dear Uncle Jed: My friend and I were walking in some bushes. We found two holes. We thought they were woodchuck holes. We set a trap. The next morning we went to see if we had caught anything. To our surprise we had a skunk instead of a woodchuck as we had expected.

The next night after school my friends took him down street and received a check for fifty cents for it. We divided the sum and as we had set traps before and never caught anything we thought our first catch was a pretty good one.

A Story About Washington

Dear Uncle Jed: When George Washington was general of the army he sent the captain out in search for a pair of horses.

The captain seeing a southern man (colored) in the field plowing with a pair of fine looking horses went up to him and said, "I want those horses.'

"Better ask the Missis," said the fellow who was driving the horses.

"All right," said the captain I will go ... and see her?" At last he reached the house and took up the knocker and rapped with it.

A fine looking woman came to the door and asked what he wanted. He said the general sent him after the horses. And who is your general? George Washington. You tell George Washington his mother says he can't have those horses. The captain told the general and he took off his hat bowed and smiled.

A Good Lesson

Dear Uncle Jed: My grandma told me a story last night. This is the story. Once there was a little boy asleep in bed. During the night he woke up and felt thirsty. He said loud, "Oh, I am thirty! I wish I had a drink." He repeated it a number of times. At last his father heard him.

He called his name and said, "Jim, will you go downstairs and get me a glass of water?" Jim couldn't very well say, "no." So he went and got a glass of water. When he brought it to his fathers bed, his father said, "Now drink for I heard you saying you were thirsty." I thought this was a good story because this little boy was lazy and could get the water if he wanted to.

The Wonderful Cradle

Dear Uncle Jed: Last summer there lived a little caterpillar in my grapevine. He fed upon the green leaves, and ate so many that I wondered if there would be any left. One day after a very large dinner, the caterpillar began to spin. I saw a strong silk thread that seemed to come from his mouth and it was fastened to the grape vine. After a long time he seen fell asleep. He slept a long time. At last the cold winds died away and the warm days came. The little sleeper awoke with the May sunshine, and rustled inside his brown cradle. I watched to see the capterpillar come forth from his winter nest but what do you think I saw? A beautiful butterfly that clung to the grape vine stem and slowly unfolded his velvety wings.

The Life of Lincoln

Dear Uncle Jed: Abraham Lincoln was born in Kentucky in 1809. Abe's parents were very poor so he found it hard to get any kind of an education. He was very kind and honest. He grew up to be a man of a very ungainly appearance. He was very much against trapping which was a favorite industry in those days. He even went as far as to open traps and let animals go free. He did this because his kind heart could not see any living creature be hurt.

He married Mary Todd who wished that he should be president. After Lincoln was elected president then came the trouble. The south was rebelling against the north and the Civil war followed. Lincoln chose U. S. Grant to be commander in chief of the army, much against the wishes of his cabinet. Grant led the army to victory. Lincoln was assassinated by Booth, a southerner, who was against him. He died in 1865.

Her First Letter

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you and I hope you'll like it. I have a little cat at home and her name is pussy. And when I come home from school pussy follows me. And when I step on her paw she mews and goes under the stove.

The Eel We Caught

Dear Uncle Jed: Near our house there is a large pond. In summer many people come to fish there. One night there was a bright moon and the weather was calm. My mother suggested that we go fishing.

So my uncle, mother, and I went fishing. We were fishing two hours and we did not catch any fish. As we were about to go home there was something heavy pulling at the end of the line. When my uncle pulled it in we saw that it was a long fish. We though that it was a snake and started up in fright. We afterwards found that it was an eel which proved to be a good breakfast for us the next morning.

My Dog Dot

Dear Uncle Jed: I have read the letters of the Wide Awakes and was very much interested. So I thought I would write one myself. It is about my dog. She is brown and white. I have taught her some tricks. She sits up and will shake hands. She is a very mischievous little dog. Once she took my father's new overshoes and chewed them all up but now she is larger and behaves much better.

A Cat That Came to Us

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about a cat that came to us.

One night last winter Papa went out to the barn. In the barn he saw a black cat. Papa brought the cat to the house.

Mamma had always wanted a cat. When he brought it in he said, "Mamma here is your cat." Then mamma said, "Are you sure it is a cat," and papa said, "Well I guess I know a cat."

Then papa brought the cat to the light and saw that one foot was hanging off. Afterwards her foot dropped off. But we have the cat yet.

We named her Nigger. She is a good cat. She can catch mice.

She had four kittens last June They are nice little kittens. They play with us.

Has New Pet

Dear Uncle Jed: It has been quite a while since I have written to you. I am going to tell you about a new pet I have. My dad bought me a nice little puppy. It is a bird dog, brown and white. He is a cute little fellow and is very playful. He has a great time barking at my kitty. She slaps his face with her paw. I have named him Cip.

The Mountain

Dear Uncle Jed: Just a few lines to the Wide Awakes to tell them about how a mountain is made.

A mountain is a very high mass of land. The tower part is called the base, the upper part is called the peak or summit. The part between the base and the summit is the slope. The peaks of high mountains are covered with snow all the year around. Their slopes are covered with forests. The mountains contain mineral deposits as: iron, coal, gold, silver, copper, etc. Many rivers rise among the mountains. From the top of a mountain we can get a fine view of the surrounding country. The air there is very healthful. For these reasons, some people like to climb.

Charity

Dear Uncle Jed: Charity is a golden chain that reaches heaven to the Christian's character, without it our religion is like a body without a soul; our friendship a shadow of a shadow. The rich should have charity for the poor and the poor should have charity for the rich, for tomor-

Reddy Fox Takes the Dare

Watch out and take the greatest care,
You never make a foolish dare.
--Peter Rabbit

Peter Rabbit had dared Reddy Fox. He had told Reddy that he dared go where Reddy didn't dare go. Then with Reddy almost at his heels he had dodged into Buster Bear's bedroom. You would have laughed to have seen how suddenly Reddy Fox stopped. He stopped so suddenly that he almost fell over on his head. You see he knew that that was Buster Bear's bedroom. What is more, his nose told him that

"So that's it," said Reddy to himself "So that's Peter Rabbit's secret"

Buster Bear was in there. So Reddy stopped just as Old Man Coyote had stopped the time he chased Jumper the Hare in there.

Reddy backed off a few feet and sat down on the snow. He curled his big, plumy tail around over his feet to keep his toes warm. Then he cocked his head on one side and stared at the entrance through which Peter had disappeared.

"So that's it," said Reddy to himself. "So that's Peter Rabbit's secret and the thing he is so puffed up about. He thinks he is very brave and bold. If anyone had told me that Peter would go in there I wouldn't believed it But with my own eyes I've seen him go. What is more, I know by the way he acted that he has been in there before. He thinks I don't dare follow him in there.

"Well, to be honest, I wouldn't have dared to go in there if I hadn't seen him go in there. But that makes a difference. Yes, sir, that makes a difference. If Peter Rabbit can go in there safely I can go in there just as [illegible] Of course, [illegible] I know [illegible] I couldn't wake [illegible] I'll just give Peter a little surprise when I take his dare. Yes, sir, that's what I'll do. I'll take his dare."

Reddy smoothed his big, soft tail [illegible] and his nose. Then, for all the world as if he were afraid of making a noise, he stole up to the entrance of Buster Bear's bedroom. For a moment he hesitated. He could smell Buster Bear and in spite of himself it [illegible] uneasy. But it wouldn't do to have it known that Peter Rabbit had dared go where he didn't dare go. Boldly he stuck his head inside the entrance.

Now Peter Rabbit had been waiting just inside that entrance. It hadn't entered his mind that Reddy would ever have the courage of following him in there. So when Reddy's sharp nose was thrust inside, Peter had one of the most sorry surprises of his whole life. My, you should have seen him jump and run! He ran straight on in to where Buster Bear was lying asleep. He jumped right over Buster, and then he turned to see if Reddy was following. Reddy was. But he wasn't running. He was coming slowly. He hesitated after every step. But he was coming just the same. Peter had hard work believing his own eyes. How he did wish he hadn't made that foolish dare! There was no way of getting out except by the way he had come in, and Buster Bear would be right in the way of Reddy Fox.

[illegible] Thornton W. Burgess.

[illegible] he ran and the [illegible] all [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW.

New York, Feb. 22.—Re-tracing the ground lost on the most drastic reaction suffered since the current bull movement started, stock prices scored a brisk recovery late this week and pushed rapidly forward into higher territory.

Heavy buying of the southwestern rail shares, based on the assumption that progress was being made in plans for a new rail system to rival the Missouri Pacific, was one of the outstanding features of trading. Frisco, "Katy," Kansas City Southern, St. Louis Southwestern, and Rock Island issues responded to reports linking these roads with consolidation developments.

A spectacular rise in Baldwin Locomotive to the highest level in five years, followed by sharp advances in other equipment shares testified to Wall street's belief that last year's poor earnings would be counteracted by the steady placing of large railroad orders. Oil shares resumed their upward movement under the leadership of the Pan-American Petroleum issues, which responded to an increase in the annual dividend rate from $4 to $6.

Foreign exchanges were sluggish during the week. Demand sterling fell below $4.76 and French francs continued to waver as vague talk of a capital levy and additional foreign loans drifted out of the discussions of France's financial problems. The continued ease of money was emphasized as the rate for call funds held at 3 per cent for over the holiday.

TAFTVILLE

About 25 girls from the Taftville Congregational church school attended the interchurch social at the United Congregational church Friday evening. Nine churches were represented. Each delegation put on a stunt of a patriotic nature for entertainment. The prize cup which was awarded to Taftville this year is given to the organizatino that puts on the best stunt of the evening. The stunts are judged as to their novelty or originality and as to their patriotic spirit and manner of production. It is needless to say that the Taftville girls were delighted to be able to bring home the cup, which remains with them until the next competitive meet. The Taftville girls presented patriotic valentines and much credit for their success was due to the efforts of the director, Mrs. Edwin Gordon Crowdis. Those taking part were as follows: Pocahontas, Miss Mary Greenhalgh; John Alden, Miss Selena Adams; Priscilla Alden, Miss Dorothy Hunt; Catalina, Miss Irene Mayor; Martha Washington, Miss Dorothy M. Aberg; Ann Hutchinson, Miss Hilda Troeger; Prudence Peabody, Miss Eleanor Heinrich; Betsy Ross, Agnes Troeger. Miss Ethel Holland accompanied at the piano and Miss Sadie Newton described the tableaux.

Dennis Murphy, Jr., who has been spending several weeks with his parents, Postmaster and Mrs. Dennis C. Murphy, and family of South A street, has returned to Los Angeles, Cal.

One of the most enjoyable pre-Lenten social affairs was the social and dance at Parish hall Friday evening. The Ideal Novelty orchestra furnished the music and dancing was enjoyed from 8.30 to midnight.

Troop 3, Boy Scouts, met Friday evening in the recreation rooms of the Taftville Congregational church with Scoutmaster Harold E. Linderson in charge.

At the Taftville Congregational church Sunday morning Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis, the pastor, preached on A Patriotic Citizenship. Many of the members of Troop 3, Boy Scouts, attended the service in a body. At the meeting of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor in the church vestry in the evening Miss Edna Krodel was the leader and the topic was Friendliness in Industrial Missions.

JUDGE GARDINER GREENE'S CAREER INSPIRES SINCEREST EULOGIES

Daily, since the death, Feb. 13th of Judge Gardiner Greene, at his home, 328 Washington Street, Norwich, messages of sympathy and tribute and condolence have come to Mrs. Greene from many hundreds of prominent and distinguished persons in Connecticut and other states. While, naturally, the great proportion of these has been from personal friends of Judge and Mrs. Greene, who have come to realize their ideal home life and companionship during the thirty-one years of their married life, other letters and telegrams have been from leading jurists, churchmen, college mates, clients, business acquaintances and others in public life, who have learned with the passing of the years to weigh and value the importance of such a career as was Judge Greene's as an inspiration, an example, a model of sweetness and humility, unspoiled by worldly advancement or successes.

Strangely enough, in nearly every letter of any length in these over six hundred messages Judge Greene's character is summed up in the appreciative expression, "Christian gentleman."

Chief Justice George W. Wheeler, in his beautiful tribute writes: "Judge Greene was an especially fine man and he brought to the bench a quality of character and highmindedness which was so marked as to make it distinctive even in that high place. He was a sound judge and achieved an enviable reputation on the bench—and deservedly that—and more. Every time he sat with the supreme court, we felt how greatly fitted he was for that particular work; he was careful, learned and direct in discussion and he aimed straight for the heart of the controversy. On the personal side, I admired him much: and it was an especial privilege every time I sat with him."

Writing from Stratford, Judge Howard J. Curtis, of the supreme court of errors saying: "Judge Greene was so fine and accomplished a man that the loss of his companionship is a profound deprivation. We all admired and esteemed him most highly, not only as a model judge, but also as a most able advocate."

From Stamford came a letter of condolence and appreciation from Judge John E. Keeler, in the course of which he wrote: "My association with him disclosed a man of marked ability and sincere devotion to duty, as well as a delightful personality."

Rt. Rev. Chauncey B. Brewster, Episcopal Bishop of Connecticut, sent an immediate and most sincere expression of sorrow for Judge Greene's death, while stressing his invaluable services to the church in Norwich and throughout the state. As a culmination of his ecclesiastical and personal tribute he concludes: "The diocese has lost one of its most distinguished men."

A sincere and just estimate of Judge Greene's character and service comes from Alfred N. Wheeler, clerk of the New Haven county court, who writes: "In all my association with him he was always the genial, lovable gentleman, as well as the distinguished man and judge. He loved nice things and nice people—and had no use for others. His courtesy was always present, and with his calm hearing, made him always a conspicuous member of any company."

Edward A. Harriman, of Washington, said in an especially fine tribute: "His sanity, his common sense, his genial dignity, his nice feeling in all cases for the appropriate, his sincere and loyal friendship, were all very dear to me."

One who has been associated with Judge Greene in much that pertained to the welfare and activities of the Episcopal church in Connecticut, in the Church Club, and in other lines, Burton Mansfield, writing from New Haven, said: "Judge Greene was such a fine character. In all his many relations with life he never faltered in the doing of his duty as he saw it and he made for himself a wonderful position in the hearts and minds of all who knew him. His work for the state and the church alike was of the highest order and worthy of the highest praise."

In this same connection, one who was thoroughly aware of Judge Greene's interest in any efforts for the special progress and welfare of Christ Church, Norwich, both being members of the vestry, William Tyler Olcott of Norwich in a letter from Useppa Island, Florida, where he is spending the season, wrote: "Our church relationship brought me close to him and the splendid example of a Christian gentleman that his life exemplified was ever a fount of inspiration and a source of encouragement and hope. In an age which fosters few of his sterling type. How the church will miss him—ever loyal to its beliefs and practices, ever generous to support it, ever glad to assist and promote its welfare with his able counsel and his sound judgment. There is no one to take his place. When I think of this irreparable loss, I am only consoled to carry on in the knowledge that he would have us do so with an ever-abiding faith in the Creator of our destinies."

John P. Allen, writing from Altamonte Springs, Florida, says of Judge Greene: "I never had a friend whose fineness of nature and splendid character so impressed themselves upon me as did your husband. Beloved by everyone, refined in the extreme, my life has been enriched and cheered by his association; and I feel personally bereaved."

From Yale University came an expression of sympathy from the office of the president, signed by James Rowland Angell, while with expressions of regret the death was announced by the secretary of the Class of '73, Yale, Frederick L. Shepherd, of Buffalo, N. Y.

That there was true significance to the often mentioned phrase, "Christian gentleman," in relation to Judge Greene is emphasized by an incident of the closing hours of his exemplary and useful life, which has become known to some of his friends outside the home circle. In that home it has ever been the custom to follow the traditional practice of having morning prayers. On the day when Judge Greene was stricken, while at the breakfast table, after a time, as he appeared easier, Mrs. Greene inquired if he would not like to have her read the prayers and he was able to express assert, evidently with great satisfaction.

On reaching the Creed, while he seemed unable to articulate, he made every effort to follow—and at the very end, by a most miraculous strength was able to utter with perfect distinctness, "The resurrection of the body—and life everlasting." It was almost his last utterance—a meet and consistent ending of a flawless Christian life, broad in its charity and firm in its faith.

WILL CLOSE OUT BUSINESS OF THE F. A. WELLS CO.

When one has spent all the working days and hours of over 50 years in meeting the multitudinous requirements that go towards establishing and maintaining a successful business at the present day, he is entitled to the rest that comes with retirement among congenial surroundings, remarked Will L. Stearns, in speaking of his intention to close out the business of The F. A. Wells Co., men's and boys' clothiers, at 84 Main street.

Since 1868 this well known clothing house has occupied this same location and the Wells name has come to be a household name in every hamlet throughout New London and Windham counties. In that year the business was established by Frank A. Wells, under the name of F. A. Wells & Co., in connection with the Foster combination of clothiers, and was conducted by Mr. Wells until his death in 1894. Upon the death of Mr. Wells the business was taken over by Mr. Stearns and conducted as a partnership with Mrs. Wells until 1904, when Mr. Stearns bought out her interest and since then has conducted it as sole owner.

Mr. Stearns entered the clothing business with his father in Winchendon, Mass., in 1872 and six years later went to work for M. C. Swift & Son in New Bedford, Mass. In 1879 he came to Norwich where he conducted the Boston and Norwich Clothing Co. in the Beckwith building on Main street until 1894 when he took an interest in the F. A. Wells Co., upon the death of Mr. Wells.

The progress and growth of the business under his ownership and management have evidenced his intimate knowledge of the men's clothing trade, his wise discrimination and foresight in meeting each new development and his determination to extend every courtesy and accommodation for the needs of his patrons, foundation stones upon which he has built up an enviable success through the years. The Wells name has been a quality mark that has been a synonym for satisfaction wherever it was known.

When questioned as to his plans for the future, Mr. Stearns replied that the better part of his days have been spent in Norwich, his friends are here and he feels as if this is where he wants to stay and he believes Norwich will continue to be his home. It will be a source of great satisfaction to his many friends that Mr. Stearns will continue to be a member of the community even though he is withdrawing from the business life in which he has for so long borne an active and honored place.

MOOSE HAVE LARGE CLASS FOR INITIATION

There were over 100 members of Norwich Lodge, No., 950, in attendance at Moose Home on Laurel Hill avenue Sunday afternoon when a large class of candidates was initiated into the order. Following the initiation refreshments were served a la Wunderlich and music was furnished. The next class for initiation will be in the early part of April and an entertainment is being arranged as a part of the program for that date.

It's a poor policy to judge a man's worth by the amount of insurance he carries.

WAUWECUS HILL ARRESTS FOR ILL-REPUTE HOUSE

In a raid about midnight Saturday in the Wauwecus hill section three men and two women were arrested at a place there on the charge of keeping and fercuenting a house of ill-repute and later on another man was arrested at his home, 25 High street, charged with being the proprietor of the Wauwecus hill resort.

The arrests were made by County Detective William Lewis, Constable George Hole and Sergeants John H. Casey and Matthew H. Delaney of the Norwich police force. The prisoners they brought in from the place were George Kripps, 25 of this city, and Mrs. Mae Pecor, New London, both accused of conducting the place; Tom Kodas, 28, Jewett City; Peter Stergos, 25, this city, and Mrs. Irene Blanchard, 23, Central Village, accused as frequenters. Nicholas Nesota, 37, who runs the Venice pool room in this city, was later arrested at his home at 25 High street and is held as the owner of the place on the story told by Kripps and the Pecor woman who claimed that part of the money collected was turned over to Nesotas. It is understood that the Central Village woman had been at the house only a day or two.

Kodas and Stergos furnished $100 bonds each for appearance in the city court, but the others remained locked up in default of the bonds called for, $2,500 in the case of Nesotas and $1,000 for each of the others.

PREACHES STRONG SERMON FOR UNION MEETING

The first words of Isaiah, "The vision of Isaiah the son of Amos, which he saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem," was the text selected by Dr. Charles E. Jefferson of New York for his sermon Sunday evening at the United Congregational church, opening a series of Sunday evening union services under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian association and made possible through a legacy, left to the association by Miss M. Louise Sturtevant.

In part Dr. Jefferson said:

It is strange that the one outstanding feature of our generation is the criticism of the Christian church. This does not come from ignorant people, but from learned, educated and cultured people, all over the world. The gentle say, "The Church is asleep". Those a little rough say, "the church is bigotted, narrow in creed, filled with denominational rivalries." Those who do not care how hard they put it say, "the church is filled with hypocrites, they say one thing and believe another."

We know that Christians are not asleep, we are satisfied that there are not many bigots in the church and we maintain that no fairminded person could ever claim that the majority of Christians are hypocrites.

A great scholar has asked, "Can Christianity Survive?" He advances the argument that Christianity is no longer a vital factor in our civilization; that it has influence only in narrow circles but is no longer reckoned with in wider circles in which the destiny of countries is decided.

It looks sometimes as though it would not do these things. It didn't stop the war in Europe, yet there are over 375,000,000 Christians in Europe and over 90,000,000 are Protestants. Europe under these churches, with millions of followers of the Man who is a friend of sinners and yet able to slide into Hell under their eyes. Something must be wrong with the Christian church or this could never have happened. When war came every Christian nation engaged in it turned to science to develop engines of death. Christians and churches did nothing to stop the war, it was stopped only when Germany became exhausted, the Church of Christ had nothing to do with it. Protestants and Catholics alike were saying their prayers and singing of peace up to the time the guns began to belch forth death.

Is not the individual conversion after all the one thing important, said Dr. Jefferson as he summed up his sermon, Civilization rests on individual character, everything rests on the regeneration of the individual. Isaiah was worried, he saw a sinful Jerusalem and he worried for it. He felt the need of teaching the right way, yet felt himself unworthy to preach, felt that he was not fit, that he could not condemn evil in others that was in himself. Yet he accepted the task and became the greatest of all Hebrew prophets, so great indeed, that Christ of Nazareth selected the text for His first sermon, from the text of Isaiah.

Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church opened the service with prayer and read the scripture lesson from Isaiah 55, after which General Secretary Edwin Hill introduced Dr. Jefferson as the speaker of the evening.

WHITE CROSS COUNCIL OBSERVES 40TH ANNIVERSARY

White Cross council, No. 13, Knights of Columbus, celebrated its 40th anniversary Sunday evening with a banquet at the Wauregan house, with covers laid for 130, and an excellent programme was carried out with Dr. John G. Coyle, past state deputy of New York, as the principal speaker of the evening. Dr. Coyle delivered an eloquent address in which he spoke of the foundation of the order in New Haven, its slow growth for the first 13 years, followed by a leap forward when a once obscure fraternal insurance society took an extraordinary grip upon the affections of Catholic men, emerged from its humble life in New England and entered many states of the United States and some of my provinces of the Dominion of Canada. It thus became a power for general local and national welfare, for Catholic education, enlargement of Catholic influence, spread of Catholic faith, protection of the home and intensification of Catholic solidarity and unity with resultant benefits to Catholicity in general and to human progress in this western hemisphere.

M. FRANK LEONARD

Dr. Coyle went on to speak of the cardinal principles of the order, charity, unity, fraternity and patriotism, the last named of which is the lesson of the fourth degree. In every one of the six countries where the order exists, the Knights will swear to uphold the fundamental organic constitution, to fulfill honorably the duties of citizens or subjects, to serve their land, to respect and honor its flag, to give, even of life itself, for country.

After the invocation by Rev. F. M. Coholan, and the singing of America, the toastmaster, Francis T. Diggins, lecturer of the council, gracefully welcomed all present and introduced Grand Knight M. Frank Leonard, who gave the following short sketch of the council's history:

"Forty years ago on the 17th of February, 1885, a charter was granted to White Cross Council, No. 13. The council at that time had a membership of 24 men banded together for the purpose of furthering the interest of Catholicity in our city as well as our state. The following Sunday they held their first meeting, for the election of their officers, in the office of Attorney Joseph T. Fanning, whom they elected as the first grand knight of White Cross Council, and who from that day until the day he died, which was only a few years ago, was always an active member of the council. Shortly after this meeting they procured rooms in Uncas hall, which is now known as Olympic hall, and started to work to increase their membership. They held their first third degree during Grand Knight Fanning's term, with a class of 60 candidates. At the next election of officers, Brother M. V. Murphy was elected grand knight, and from the information I have been able to gather, is the only charter member living in Norwich today. During Grand Knight Murphy's term the Knights of Columbus held their first ball, in Breed theatre, which proved to be a grand success both financially and socially. As time went on their membership increased, and they moved into better quarters, and today we have a large membership and a beautiful home on Broadway, a record of which I am sure each and every member should be proud. We also have the reputation, of being always ready and willing to assist in any enterprise, that is going to benefit our city or our country. And I am sure, if our members will continue in the same spirit during the forty years to come, our council will grow in the same proportion it has during the forty years past."

William J. Mulligan of Thompsonville, state deputy, responded to the toast, Knights of Columbus, preceding the address by Dr. Coyle.

The Palace theater orchestra played during the evening, and other musical numbers that were greatly enjoyed were the tenor solos by Warren Kane, who sang The World Is Waiting For the Sunshine (Seitz) and The Garden of Tomorrow (Dieppen); soprano solos by Miss Eleanor Donovan, whose selections were Love's Sorrow (Shelley) and Love Is a Merchant (Carew); tenor solos by Edward T. Connelly, who sang The Holy City and When Irish Eyes Are Smiling; baritone solos by Frank R. Murdy, whose numbers were The Trumpeter, On the Road to Mandalay and When Winter Comes; and piano solos by Henry J. LaFontaine who played The Sextette from Lucia (for left hand alone) and Percy Grainger's In a Country's Garden. An extra novelty was Sweet Adeline, by a quartette, Louis Combies, William P. Ward, Daniel O'Brien and Howard Ryan.

The banquet arrangements were finely carried out by the committee comprising: Francis T. Diggins, chairman, William P. Ward, Daniel J. O'Brien, Philip M. O'Brien, John W. Shea, Jr., William J. McKnight, James J. Brady, Walter G. Casey, Henry Gorman, James Mahoney, Napoleon Kerouack, Edward T. Connelly, James Redden, Michael J. Kirby.

MOTOR VEHICLE ACCIDENTS ARE ON THE INCREASE

Motor vehicle accidents in Connecticut reached a tota lof 1,201 for the past month, being at the rate of about 39 a day, according to statistics for January completed at the state motor vehicle department. It was an increase of 319 over January, 1923, indicating that accidents are occurring this year at a rate of about 10 a day in excess of the daily average for the corresponding period of last winter.

It is pointed out, however, that the number of motor vehicles, exclusive of motorcycles and jitneys, registered and in use in the state during the first month of 1925 was 20,350 in excess of the total for January, 1923, the whole number of such registrations appearing on the books of the department on the first day of the present month being 127,988, as against 107,638 shown to have been registered on that date of last year.

An idea of the rapidity with which the ownership of automobiles is extending in Connecticut may be gained from the fact that more motor vehicles were registered in this state in the single winter month of January, 1925, than were registered in an entire year only five years ago. The figures given in the second paragraph apply only to passenger cars and commercial motor vehicles. Taking in all classes, the total of registrations for the month amounts to 132,517, whereas the total for the year 1920 was 131,775. The department registered more cars for 1925 in one week than were registered in a whole year 10 years ago.

Fifteen fatal motor vehicle accidents occurred in January, 1925, an increase of two over the fatal accident record for January, 1924. Waterbury is the only municipality which reported more than one, the number of fatal accidents occurring in that city during the first month being three. West Willington, Wethersfield, West Hartford, Torrington, West Thompson, South Norwalk, North Canaan, Moosup, Lebanon, Hartford, Windsor and New Britain reported one each.

AT CANA—WITH CHRIST.

"Even so the Son quickeneth whom He will."—(John 5: 21).

The thirsty vine draws upward from the soil
Clear waters of the heavenly dews and rain,
Stores them, transfused, in purple clusters ripe
Given spicy juices rich with golden stain—
And Christ, the Guest who stood at Cana's Feast,
And marvlous crystal water turned to wine,
Can use His power divine, as leavening yeast,
To change to Love, the Self our hearts enshrine.

"I'm the True Vine"—rings out His gracious word,
"My Father is the Husbandman"—and He
Who in the vineyard subtle gifts has stored,
That water, thro' grape clusters, wine shall be,
Can well transform lives evil into good—
Jars brimming full, in pleasures wasted free,
Change thro' His grace and sacrificial blood
To wine of heaven, food for the soul to be.

Grave marvel this—His work; when New Life's given,
Salvation's "miracle"—Christ's saving grace—
Th' wine to be served in His New Kingdom, Heaven,
When from His Cup guests feast before His face—
With joys insipid of this present sphere
My soul, athirst, ne'er satisfied can be.
O Blessed Master of Life's Feast appear
And fill my water jars with wine for me
—Rev. George G. Phipps, in Boston Transcript.

A LITTLE PARABLE.

I made the cross myself, whose weight
Was later laid on me.
This thought is torture, as I toil
Up life's steep Calvary.

To think mine own hands drove the nails!
I sang a merry song,
And chose the heaviest wood I had,
To build it firm and strong.

If I had guessed—if I had dreamed
Its weight was meant for me,
I should have made a lighter cross
To bear up Calvary!
—Anne Reeve Aldrich.

Making synthetic rubber has resulted in the discovery in Germany of a synthetic chemical substitute for cocaine. Tutokain, the new compound, is made from the intermediate products which have been prepared in the manufacture of artificial rubber. The sale of cocaine has been discouraged in Germany because of its habit-forming characteristics. Tutokain is non-poisonous and may be sterilized by heat without decomposition. According to articles in the German medical press it has been used with great success as a local anaesthetic.

Citizens of Quebec are rejoicing in the fact that from now on the chimes in the towers of their beloved Basilica will peal forth as they have not pealed since fire destroyed the historic temple in December, 1922. The last of the four huge bells that make up the carillon, which recently arrived from France, was put in position January 27 and tested satisfactorily. The other three were placed in the tower last spring. The weight of the four bells making up the chimes is 12,850 pounds, and special hydraulic engines were called into play to raise the huge masses of metal from the ground.

Cats so treated show many signs of emotional excitement. The cat's hair stands on end, its claws are drawn out, and it scratches and spits. Sweat pours out over the paws, there is a great increase in the heart rate, and the blood pressure is high. These symptoms, however, are only incidental to the main purpose of the research, which is to discover what changes in the chemistry of the blood and body tissues accompany the emotions of anger and fear. The two most notable changes are greatly increased secretion of the adrenals, which are ductless glands located near the kidneys, and a fivefold increase in the concentration of sugar in the blood.

SENATOR BURSUM IS UNDER SCRUTINY DEP'T OF JUSTICE

Member from New Mexico Added to the List of Senators Under Investigation in Connection With Charges of Improper Use of Influence Before Federal Government Agencies—A General Denial of the Accusation Has Been Made by Senator Bursum—Senator Wheeler Might Appear Before Special Grand Jury Today.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The name of Senator Holm O. Bursum, republican, New Mexico, was added today to the list of United States senators under investigation by the department of justice in connection with charges of improper use of influence before federal government agencies.

Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana already is under indictment in his home state on a charge of accepting a fee for practicing before a government department, and the justice department made it known Saturday that it was investigating a similar accusation against Senator Selden P. Spencer, republican, Missouri.

Reports at the capitol that still another senator was under inquiry, were denied by justice officials. A new grand jury proceeding against Senator Wheeler is under way here, however and Senator Wheeler said today he might appear before the jury tomorrow on the invitation of the justice department.

Both Senator s Bursum and Spencer denied they had violated any federal statutes in connection with appearances before any government agencies and said they would welcome the most thorough inquiries. Senator Spencer so informed Attorney General Stone in a letter which he made part of the senate record after arising to a point of personal privilege.

Justice officials did not disclose the exact nature of the charges which have been made against Senator Bursum by Carl Magee, a New Mexico newspaperman, who was a witness in the Teapot Dome investigation. Assistant Attorney General Donovan said that thus far the investigation had developed nothing of importance, but that he intended to "see the matter through."

Senator Bursum, in denying Magee's charges, made the counter charge that the purpose was to embarrass him in the contest he has brought to retain his seat in the senate against Sam G. Branton who was elected on the face of official returns. He added that the charge grew out of efforts he made to sell cattle in Mexico some years ago. The New Mexico senator denied he had sought to obtain the consent of agents of the war finance corporation for the sale of the cattle on which the corporation had made a loan and out of the sale of which he was to receive a commission. His version is that, at the instance of bankers who had mortgages on the cattle, he had sought to arrange a sale in Mexico, but that when he had reported back the conditions under which the sale could be financed by the Mexicans interested, the matter had been dropped.

WHEELER MAY APPEAR BEFORE JURY TODAY

New York, Feb. 23.—Senator Wheeler, of Montana, said today he probably would appear tomorrow before the special grand jury which is investigating the charges against him.

Jack Johnson As Stokes Case Witness

Former Boxing Champion Was Reprimanded for Flippant Attitude on Witness Stand.

Chicago, Feb. 23—(By the A. P.)—Jack Johnson, former heavyweight boxing champion, testifying today for the state at the trial of W. E. D. Stokes, New York millionaire, and others on the trial for conspiracy to defame Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, said two negroes, co-defendants with Stokes, approached him and asked him to testify falsely that he had known Mrs. Stokes.

Johnson's flippant attitude on the witness stand caused Judge W. N. Gemmill to reprimand him for his demeanor after attorneys had complained that the former fighter "seems to think the trial is a boxing exhibition."

Johnson's statements that two of the defendants, negroes, Robert Lee of Chicago and Mrs. Hattie Johnson of New York, alleged former agents of Stokes, asked him to swear he knew Mrs. Stokes, were subjected to severe cross examination. Pinned down, Johnson said he was unable to give definite dates for his alleged interviews with the couple and admitted that his recollection of the conversations was very general.

"The witness is entitled to protection," said W. W. Smith, assistant state's attorney, after Charles E. Rathbun, counsel for the defense, who weighs about 125 pounds, had made a remark about Johnson.

"He will be protected when he answers the questions," said Judge Gemmill. "He has been volunteering remarks. Mr. Witness, answer the questions or you will be in trouble."

Johnson testified in effect that both Lee and Mrs. Johnson had approached him and asked him if he had known Mrs. Stokes, whom the estate charged the defendants were trying to prove had been an inmate of a notorious Chicago club and had associated with negroes.

Johnson said he told both Lee and Mrs. Johnson that he did not known Mrs. Stokes and that they offered him "good money" if he would testify that he had known her. He said he told Mrs. Johnson that he would not testify in court against a woman, even if he had known Mrs. Sotkes. He had never seen Mrs. Stokes, he said in reply to a question.

The court denied a motion to strike out Johnson's testimony because the alleged conversations appears from Johnson's testimony to have taken place "about a year ago."

ADVICE BY GOV. TRUMBULL IN WASHINGTON DAY ADDRESS

At Annual Banquet in Hartford of the Connecticut Society, S. of A. R.—Ehorted Citizens to Guard Zealously the Heritage Which George Washington Has Left for All American—Declared That Residents of Connecticut Should Consider Themselves as Stockholders in a Great Corporation—Henry F. Parker Reported for the Norwich Branch.

Hartford, Feb. 23. — The name of George Washington and of those who fought to make this country free were honored at the thirty-fifth annual banquet of the Connecticut Society, Sons of the American Revolution, this afternoon in the ball room of the Hotel Bond. The two principal addresses were made by Governor Trumbull and by Marvin H. Lewis of Louisville, Ky., president of the national solety. Ernest E. Rogers, president of the Connecticut branch, was toastmaster.

It is to the state of Connecticut to forever guard zealously the heritage which George Washington has left for all Americans, Governor Trumbull declared in his address. The state made up a deficit in funds resulting from the World war, and now is one of the few states having an ample sinking fund. Its citizens should consider themselves as stockholders in a great corporation doing about $25,000,000 business a year he said. As stockholders of this concern the public should interest itself in the welfare of the corporation and present to its officials, in concrete form, suggestions as to how the stockholders want the company's business to be run, the governor continued.

Connecticut is economically sound as a corporation, the governor explained. The state legislature is running its finances on apay-as-you-go policy.

George Washington is so great that we can make him no greater by words of praise, but we can better ourselves by appreciating him, said Marvin H Lewis in beginning his address. Washington's splendor won him the confidence of his country and the love of his colleagues, Mr. Lewis maintained. He established the credit and integrity of the nation.

Shore speeches were contributed by W. I. Lincoln Adams, of New Jersey, past president of the national society Rev. Dr. Frank A. Smith, of New Jersey, national chaplain and George A Smith, of Salt Lake City, Utah, national vice president. Between the talks selections were sung by the Hartford Tempo Quartet.

Starting the banquet, F. Clarence Bissell, president of the Jeremiah Wadsworth branch of this city, greeted the assemblage and following that Rev. Dr. Frank A. Smith gave an invocation.

Reports from local branches in the state were made by George F. Burgess of New Haven, H. Wales Lines, of Meriden, Major Charles H. Sprague, of Bridgeport, Henry E. Parker of Norwich, F. Clarence Bissell, of Hartford, Malcolm D. Rudd, of Salisbury. Showing of moving pictures taken at last year's field day in New London concluded the banquet.

RELIGIOUS DISORDERS PREVAIL IN MEXICO CITY

Mexico City, Feb. 23 (By the A. P.—One person was killed and seven injured in a clash at noon today between followers of the recently proclaimed Mexican Catholic Apostolic church and Orthodox Catholics, when women worshippers attacked a so-called separatist priest, Luis Monje when he attempted to celebrate mass in the Soledad church, a short distance from the national palace.

The police were summoned to suppress the disorder and fired in the air. The worshippers protested that they were the victims of armed separatists who had been guarding the church since it was seized Saturday night.

Despite the efforts of the police the women refused to leave the edifice and remained inside with the purpose of preventing Monje from conducting mass.

After the announcement last Wednesday of the formation of a national Mexican church and the publication of a manifesto in which Joaquin Peres, calling himself a former priest, proclaimed himself patriarch, about 100 armed men, led by the so-called Father Monje on Saturday night drove Father Alejandro Silva from the Soledad church. When the police arrived to preserve order and clear the nearby streets, the secessionists consented to leave the church, but only on condition that Monje should not be disturbed and that they be permitted to maintain five armed men to watch the place of worship.

Although it was announced that Monje would celebrate mass yesterday, the service did not take place, and when an attempt was made at noon today to conduct maas the women worshippers vociferously protested.

SPORTING MAN IN THE BRONX FATALLY SHOT

New York, Feb. 23.—The police tonight were searching for the man who early this morning fatally shot Michael Sullivan, sporting and political figure in the Bronx, in Taylor's inn, a Bronx cabaret. Three men believed to know the circumstances of the shooting are under arrest, while three others are being sought.

Sullivan was president of a Bronx Democratic club, owner of the Bronx Giants, a semi-professional baseball team, and at one time manager of "Harlem Eddie" Kelly, who boxed Benny Leonard in Philadelphia. Sullivan returned from Miami three days ago after spending five weeks at the races.

The police said that Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan came from a party early this morning, and that Sullivan then went around to a cigar store he owned nearby. When he returned to his residence he told his wife he was "worried about two of the fellows there," and went out again.

A little later he entered the inn, and was introduced by the proprietor to six men in a rear room. He was shot while in this room. Three of the men escaped, but the other three took Sullivan to Mt. Sinai hospital, where he died before the bullet could be extracted from his abdomen.

ATTEMPTING TO SOLVE THEIR LABOR PROBLEMS

New York, Feb. 23.—Upon the ability of employers to understand the viewpoint of wage earners, to secure their cooperation, and to develop leadership among them, depends the success of employe representation in industry, a report issued today by the department of industrial studies of the Russell Sage Foundation concluded. About 800 companies are now attempting to solve their labor problems by employes' representation.

"It is foolish to deny a divergence of interest between employers and employes," said a statement accompanying the report. "Every dispute over wages illustrates it. The need is to establish some means of adjusting these divergent claims without the wasteful conflict by which the power of each side is tested and the issue decided in favor of the stronger."

The report is based on a five year study of employe representation in the coal mines of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company, but it is pointed out that the analysis of worker-employer relations in this industry is true also of railroads, packing and textile industries, and other branches of business.

Philip Breault, Jr., of Coventry was fined $75 and costs, with $50 of the fine remitted on condition, when found guilty of the fraudulent sale of an automobile purchased by him on a conditional bill of sale, at the Monday morning session of police court. Breault pleaded not guilty although he realized that he had done wrong in selling the car. The machine in question was purchased from Harold A. Mastin of Temple street, September 8, last. Breault sold it to Arthur Delude of this city. Mastin alleged in the complaint that he had sold the car to Breault on August 27, for $192 and payments were to be made in September, October and November. Mastin failed to receive payments and February 13 he learned that the machine was in possession of Delude. Delude said he bought the car from Breault on a $50 deposit and that he knew nothing of the conditional bill of sale at the time. The machine was later returned to Mastin and he found himself $50 out. Judge Foss then remitted $50 of the fine and ordered Breault to return that amount to Delude. The assessment as paid by Breault amounted to $33.35.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain — the article did not fulfill the promise of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary trouble and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Earle L. Sparks, director of the Waterman Piano School was in Hartford Sunday, the guest of Harry A. Katz manager of the Waterman school and pianist at Le Bal Tabarin in the capital city.

Arthur Middleton, the great American baritone, whose popularity is so great that he spends from October to May touring in concert from one end of the country to the other, has his name on the roll of honor of a New York phonograph house as one of the "six best sellers."

A favorite selection is the record of the Largo al Factotum, from Rossini's, Barber of Seville, although the Bedouin Love Song and He giveth His Beloved Sleep are close seconds. In a prominent Edison shop on Fifth Avenue, New York, 700 of the Largo al Factotum records were sold in one week.

When Arthur Middleton sang in the Metropolitan Opera Co., his success was sensational. The constant demand for his concert appearances made it necessary for him to devote his entire time to the concert field.

This great artist is one of the operatic stars appearing in the American Grand Opera Trio in Slater hall on Friday evening, Feb. 27th under the asupices of the Norwich Free Academy.

The other artists of this trio are Mme. Helen Stanley, soprano and Paul Althouse, tenor.

Broadway Theatre.

We must agree with the capacity crowds who saw the show at the Broadway theatre yesterday by saying it is exceptionally good, each act being set off with special scenery and electrical effects.

Karle and Rovien in Fun and Thrills made a lively opening number in which some real thrilling acrobatic feats and comedy put them over fine.

Helen Brennan and Mae Winne in Modern and Old Time Songs held down second spot to very much applause.

Len Carle and Dolly Inez, that comedy couple, proved as usual to be a hit.

Melody and comedy, with original songs, and the general high tone of the offering, A Girl of Today, made Jack Fulton and Dorothy Quinette presentation the best of the program.

Kimball and Gorman & Co. in Setting the Style in Songs and Steps proved a great closing offering.

When one has the good fortune to see a photoplay like The Signal Tower, which is scoring heavily at the Broadway theatre, where it came yesterday, one comes away with a realization that there is nothing quite so interesting as daily life.

The Signal Tower is a Universal-super-Jewel in which Virginia Valli stars. The picture, a sensational story of railroad life, is marked by two spectacular railroad wrecks. But these are incidental to a gripping dramatic story laid about two men and a woman living in a lonely division point on a mountain railroad.

Rockcliffe Fellowes plays the husband. "The other man" is enacted by Wallace Beery.

Breed Theater

The witching winsome yet passionate Painted Lady will powder her pretty nose and apply the rouge for the last time today at the Breed where she's been charming capacity audiences, both men and women equally.

The Painted Lady, picturized by William Fox from Larry Evans' daringly novel Saturday Evening Post story, is one of the sweetest love stories of all time, and at the same time powerful, red-blooded, fierce drama. It has been acclaimed by audiences and critics alike as one of the new season's greatest pictures.

You'll like dainty Dorothy Mackaill as the temperamental painted lady, who, through no fault of her own, is caught and sucked down in the mighty maelstrom of metropolitan luxury, till on a South Sea island, she meets the Fairy Prince of her innocent girlhood dreams, and is saved, body and soul, by his mightier love. No wonder! He's played by George O'Brien.

The Pathe news, Felix the Cat and an Al St. John comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Two bombs which exploded when dropped from an automobile in the street near the Polish Falcon hall, Dunkirk, N. Y., rocked houses and rattled windows. None was injured. Police are investigating.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Danielson's prosperity is added to in a degree that is thoroughly worth while by the activity of the Paco Manufacturing company in one of its newly established departments at its Danielson plant—that of manufacturing curtains. At the present time 20,000 pairs of curtains are being manufactured here each week and shipped away for the market awaiting them. The Paco company has made curtains for years, but not until recently in Danielson. The plant here has in the past been engaged in manufacturing the material that went into the curtains, but now the actual making of curtains is included in the local manufacturing operations.

The generous supply of water that is now flowing along the courses of the Assawaga and Quinebaug rivers means much to manufacturing concerns that depend in some degree upon these streams for power for operating their plants. During the greater part of the winter the water shortage was so great that practically no power was available, at least not anywhere near what is normally expected from the rivers and the mills were put to the additional expense of developing power from other sources. In the dry weeks this matter of getting sufficient power added very materially to the operating cost of the mills.

A roadside sign—and out in a country section, too—advertising fresh eggs right at the farm for 75 cents a dozen got a good laugh, Sunday, from a party motoring out of Danielson, where eggs, direct from the farm, are being delivered to housekeepers for as low as 53 cents a dozen. The sign was taken as one more example of that peculiar state of mind which appears to believe that the owner of a motor car is a spendthrift and doesn't know values or much of anything else. For more than two years roadside vendors, from stands, of farm produce, fruits, etc. having been asking such ridiculously high prices that they have contributed largely to spoiling their opportunities to win business. Keen observers have found that prices out in the country were in many cases higher than asked right at home.

The bearers were Harry Hammond, Elmer Stone Harry Perkins and Elmer Ellsworth. A. F. Abod was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

PUTNAM

It was an amateur hold-up man who tried to rob the till at Roy Shippee's grocery store on Church street. Robert Sumner was back of the cash register when an undersized man entered the store and presenting five dimes asked to be given a half dollar in exchange for them. When the cash drawer was opened the stranger made a grab for the bills that were in sight. Sumner is the larger man and he easily frustrated the attempt at robbery. He closed the drawer and started around the counter after the would-be hold-up but the latter beat a retreat, having lost his nerve as well as his five dimes. The affair was reported to the police, but it is believed that the man has left the city.

The banks of the city were closed and there was no afternoon session of the public schools Monday but Washington's birthday passed here without observance all of the stores being open all day and the mills running all day. Exercises of a memorial character were held in some of the schools.

Stickney, a locomotive fireman who lives in the Gary district of the town of Putnam. The petitioner sets forth in his complaint that he married May Flannery, now of Hartford, June 21, 1917, and alleges desertion since December 1 of the same year. Stickney is the locomotive fireman who was riding home from work on the passenger engine of the train that ran into the open switch and freight train on the siding, on the evening of October 24 last. He was badly injured and was at the Day Kimball hospital for weeks, during which time his leg was amputated below the knee.

SENATE TO CONSIDER THE WARREN NOMINATION TODAY

Washington, Feb. 23.—Further consideration tomorrow of the nomination of Charles B. Warren of Michigan, to be attorney general was agreed upon today by the senate judiciary committee after a brief discussion of the matter.

Senators favoring as well as those opposing confirmation predicted that the nomination would be ordered reported, and some administration leaders expressed confidence that favorable action would be taken by the senate.

A fight on the floor is in prospect, however, and leaders were not at all certain that action could be had at this session. They expect, as the first move of the opposition, an effort to have the nomination taken up in open executive session instead of secret session.

Opposition thus far has centered largely around the testimony given by Mr. Warren in the "sugar trust investigation" years ago. Some administration leaders had discussed the question of calling Mr. Warren before the committee to make a statement in that respect but they apparently have abandoned that idea.

The testimony was reviewed by President Coolidge and some of his advisors before Mr. Warren was appointed, and the position was taken that there was nothing in it that in any way reflected upon Mr. Warren.

EMPLOYMENT CONDITIONS FOR GARMENT WORKERS

New York, Feb. 23.—Wage increases of from 10 to 15 per cent. and unemployment insurance of $10 per week, were obtained by about 30,000 workers, mostly women and children, in a new contract signed today between the Cloak, Skirt, Dress and Reefer-Makers' union, and the associations of employers in those industries, union officials said.

They estimated that the unemployment insurance expenditure will be about $2,000,000 annually. The insurance fund will be derived from contributions from employes of two per cent. of their labor cost, and from employers of one per cent. of their salaries. No worker can receive more than $120 per year for unemployment benefits.

The agreement, the officials said was signed for two years with about 175 open shops, against which there has been a strike, and with about 300 union shops where there was no strike. This settlement is distinct from that with the striking white-goods garment workers last week.

The agreement also requires employers to label garments to show they have been manufactured under sanitary conditions.

If mirrors portrayed us as others see us we would not use them.

THE SALARY RAISE.

A bothersome matter before the president at the present time, because of the complications that are involved, is the pay increase for the members of congress. It runs counter to his efforts in behalf of economy, and is open to the claim that what is being saved at the tap in other ways is being wasted at the bunghole in this large increase.

On the other hand the president has also been vice president and he knows the handicaps in that office to the present salary. He is disposed to take the view that such salaries are matters which rest with congress, and he is perfectly well aware of the fact that he cannot pass judgment upon any portion of the bill but must act upon it as a whole. The salary raise is being rushed through as a rider to the legislative appropriation bill, thuh forcing the president to veto the whole measure and give a desperate chance of having the rest of the bill pushed through or saving the measure passed over his veto. What his judgment under present circumstances might be had no salary raise comes up separately is another matter.

When congress undertakes to raise its own salaries while it is adhering to a programme of economy and disposed to keep down other salaries, it does not create a favorable impression. General knowledge of the expense that is involved in being a member of congress is meager. Men would ignore little what the salary is but there is much to be said in behalf of the statement that if a man stays in congress long enough he will end in the poorhouse. It only requires a little experience to have this fully demonstrated.

But it is safe to say that the salary issue at this time, and particularly the manner in which it has been made, does not receive popular approval. While there might be a disposition to take a different view of the matter had it followed the regular course and been made to stand on its own feet, there is a widespread feeling that this is not the time for such action.

AS WAS TO BE EXPECTED.

When those members of the republican party started a new political organization to gain the presidency of the United States, and in doing so announced in no uncertain terms the republican platform and republican policies, they were perfectly aware of what they were doing. Their action was deliberate and intended to be embarrassing. They were doing all they could do to give comfort to the democrats. The fact that they didn't succeed in carrying out their plan doesn't reduce the character of the offense. Their intentions were unmistakable and they picked their course with their eyes open.

Thus when it is announced that those members of congress who signed themselves with the third party leader and organization are to be regarded henceforth as being outside the republican ranks and given committee assignments in keeping therewith, quite the same as democrats, socialists or farmer-labor members it is only what was to be expected.

How could they depart from and denounce the republican party and at the same time they should receive the benefits of members in good standing?

How can they want to be considered members of a party which they have said has so many evils?

The fact is that they are out in the cold, left stranded by the November election and they are expecting that they can get the republicans to overlook their conduct and pass out the prizes. They are standing in the position of the dog that bites the hand that feeds him and yet expects whining for more food and personal consideration.

But as now planned the third party leaders and followers are to be given minority places on committees, resulting in the loss of chairmanships and their present ranks on these committees, they must realize that it is only what they invited. They are reaping in accordance with what they sowed. They hoped to stamp the republicans and clean house in much the same way that the republicans are planning to do. They have slight reason for complaint.

TEACHING A LESSON.

One of the first things a person learns if a relative gets into trouble, especially if that relationship is that of parent and child, is to hasten to the assistance of the individual. For the most part there is an eagerness to provide aid, to get someone to do something that will get the person out of the toils of the law, or minimize the effect of any punishment.

Circumstances alter cases, however. There are times when aid and influence are deserved, and there are times when they are not. One of the interesting cases of this character of late is that of the son of Governor Donahey of Ohio who was arrested for speeding and sent to jail for three days. One might expect that a governor would bring his influence to bear and be able to effect the release of his son. He attempted nothing of the kind. It was necessary for the son to be in jail over Sunday, but the governor didn't go near him. He pointed out that it was against the jail rules to have visitors on Sunday and he did not propose to ask for any special privileges. He didn't make a great fuss over his son's arrest and try to have the matter overlooked. His attitude was that his son was no better than anyone else when it came to a deliberate violation of the law, and if the law was to be enforced it must be enforced on all alike.

Governor Donahey was one of those broadminded men who sought no special privileges. He likewise probably realized that the young man deserved the lesson that he was getting and that more harm would be done by undertaking to bring the influence of the governorship to bear than by giving him a chance to come to a realization of the fact that a governor's son was no more immune from the effects of the law than the son of a laborer. The fact of the matter is that those in high places too often figure that what they or theirs do will be overlooked just because of their office. Not so with the governor of Ohio, and he is to be commended for his viewpoint. He knew what the situation required and he wasn't afraid to have the young man take his medicine. It is likely to be the best prevention for the future.

NOT A COMPLETE WASTE.

According to Congressman Porter who headed the American delegation to the opium conference in Geneva the time has not been entirely wasted. The American delegation withdrew before the conference ended when it became apparent that no progress could be made with the American proposals, but the congressman is confident that the moral force of the world will rise to the job of suppressing the drug traffic. It will take longer than had been hoped, but he is not discouraged.

There is satisfaction felt over one result that "the world has been informed of the drug situation "and gratification was expressed over the fact that "Japan and China stood by the United States throughout the conference."

From all indications it is going to be some time before the desired restriction of the production of opium is going to be accomplished. The conference has served to emphasize the growing opposition to opium and has placed before the representatives of the various countries the conditions in other countries. Evidently from some of the statements made at Geneva, including the words between the American and British representatives there is even now too much misinformation relative to the consumption of opium. Every bit of educational work is certain to have its influence in that hard, uphill fight which must be made against those countries which are profiting from the production and sale of the raw opium. The cause is of such importance that it is gratifying to note that the head of the American delegation considers there was some constructive benefit obtained from the first international effort.

TESTING DIRIGIBLES.

From the statement made by Admiral Moffett of the bureau of naval aeronautics, that he hoped to have the Los Angeles make a round trip to England before the end of summer for the purpose of testing out the possibility of such a mail service, the trip last week to Bermuda must be loked upon as a test preparatory to such a transatlantic effort.

The conditions encountered on the Bermuda trip were such as to provide an excellent test for it was obliged to go through a storm and encountered such conditions at Bermuda that a landing was not attempted. The performance, however, appears to have been satisfactory, and if the idea of crossing the Atlantic with dirigibles for the speeding up of the mails is not adopted it is not out of the bounds of reason that a commercial dirigible line might be established between this country and Bermuda for the purpose of overcoming the characteristically rough trips that are insured in getting to the island by boats. The dirigibles would not carry as many as the steamers, but they would do it in much less time. Then might arise the question in the minds of those seeking the delightful Bermuda as to whether they would take the chances with the airship for the sake of skipping the agony that might be anticipated from a boat trip.

What the future of the dirigible is by no means certain. Through tests that are being made and those in contemplation much will be determined that will have an important bearing upon this type of airship.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

No one can tell. Perhaps congress will decide that the gasoline prices are not high enough.

Poison gas is now being urged for the mosquitoes. But suppose they refuse to become interested?

Has the distribution of silver dollars by the treasury department reached your pocketbook yet?

The man on the corner says: Success is something more than keeping away from conflict with the law.

Congress is apparently getting ready to complain that it hasn't time enough in which to do all that is asked of it.

If you haven't been convinced that the budget bureau was a good thing, the fact that it has saved a billion and a fifth in three years ought to be convincing.

Pennsylvania wants a bond issue of $50,000,000 for highway improvements. The one big surprise in this connection is that the money wasn't obtained by raising the tax on coal.

The robbers who got 24 to 26 years in Boston after pleading guilty are not going to threaten the lives and property of law abiding people for some little time. Enforcement seems to be at work.

While a $10 prize has been offered for the best way of cutting down expenses in the White house, congress dips into the treasury for an increase of congressional salaries that entirely ignores any thought of economy.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, Feb. 23.—Had the late Senator Brandegee lived he would unquestionably have been elected president pro tempore of the senate for the 69th congress. And it still seems a foregone conclusion that a man from New England will be selected for that office, in the person of Senator Moses of New Hampshire.

The office of president pro tempore is second only in political rank to that of the president and vice president of the United States, the third highest office from that standpoint is the speaker of the house.

The office of president pro tempore is coverted by every state. Connecticut has furnished no such official since 1865, although the honor has thrice fallen to the state. In the sixth congress it was filled by two Connecticut senators, Uriah Tracy and James Hillhouse; in 1865 Lafayette S. Foster was elected president pro tempore.

New Hampshire secured the first president pro tempore ever elected by putting John Langdon into that office at the opening of the first congress and he also served in the second congress.

It is an office of great power and prestige for the man so elected must have the confidence of all factions of his own party, he must be an efficient presiding officer and be an authority on the rules and procedure of the senate. In the absence of the vice president as presiding officer, he automatically takes over the full power of that official in the senate even to the signing of passing bills.

Moses is an admirable presiding officer, and has the added qualification of being acceptable alike to the regulars and the insurgents, for although he fights the latter bitterly and unrelentlessly on the floor, LaFollette, Norris, Ladd and even Brookhart are his warmest personal friends and can often be seen "chumming" with him, if so undignified word may be used in connection with senatorial friendships.

The removal of Lodge as floor leader by his recent death, and the elimination of Gillett as speaker of the house, through his election to the senate cleared the way for electing a New Englander and silenced the hue and cry that "New England was in the saddle." It cleared the way for Moses as president pro tempore and unquestionably will land Tilson of New Haven in the floor leadership.

Tilson will make an admirable floor leader, and his election seems assured at this moment. He is practically certain to be chosen to fill that position if Longworth wins the speakership. Moreover Tilson will get a bigger vote than Longworth can command, as Tilson has not friends in the Longworth faction but many of the Madden adherents also believe Tilson should be elected as their floor leader.

Senator Bingham appeared before the naval house committee a few days ago and testified as an experienced aviator regarding the air craft measures now waiting a vote in congress.

Senator Bingham believes in the immediate passage of the Wadsworth-Winslow bill. He urges that air craft be made a study at Annapolis and West Point and that all officers of the army of high rank shall have a well grounded knowledge of aviation. Not necessarily as fliers, but a technical and practical knowledge of aviation as a science.

Senator Bingham advocates the development of commercial aeronautics along the same line as a bureau of navigation. So far as a unified air service is concerned Senator Bingham says the idea is attractive but unsound. He believes army and navy should control its own forces. He paid a tribute to the boys in air service saying in part, "The fact remains that the air service, composed largely, as must be, of high strung, venturesome boys willing to take unheard of risks in their enthusiasm, and facing extraordinary dangers even in the ordinary course of their daily drill and training, need intelligent, sympathetic consideration. "He also advocates that the general staff must require its officers to fly or else include among them a large number of air pilots. The senator stated that air planes need not be under military control any more than the manufacture of arms and munitions carried on by the Winchesters and the Colts.

In his talk before the committee Senator Bingham further advocated that cadets at West Point be required to devote as much attention to aviation as to horsemanship and general staff officers earn the right to wear wings as well as spurs. The senator closed by saying "the remedy for the present trouble in the army air service is to aerify the general staff, rather than to suffocate it by depriving it of air."

The republican caucus of the house on the 27th will settle the vexed question of who is who in the race for the speakership left vacant by the promotion of Speaker Gillett to the senate. There is but small doubt but what John Q. Tilson of New Haven will get the election. He is the most popular man in line and regarded as by far the best presiding officer in the house. He will not be an active candidate till Longworth is elected speaker or refuses to stand for the floor leadership in case of failure to get the bigger position. But Tilson is a conditional candidate for the office and will not only get the vote of the Longworth crowd, but will get a big slice of the Madden voters as well, for he has antagonized neither faction.

The old time democrats of the senate deplore the aggressiveness of some of the newer members, in trying to prevent the confirmation of men selected by the president for his cabinet. They believe, as do the republican leaders, that a president has the right to pick his own advisers and that it not only is bad form but bad politics to hamper his choice by delaying or refusing confirmation. Whether or not the nomination of Warren to succeed Stone as attorney general will get through the ranks of obstructionists or not is still a matter of doubt. Walsh of Montana is especially bitter against Warren, and the Walsh-Wheeler element may prevent the confirmation. But the tide is fast turning against such methods and it would not be surprising if the confirmation went through in the last hours of the session. The president will not withdraw it, and if confirmation is not forthcoming before noon March 4th he will submit Warren's name for the incoming congress, as soon as the senate convenes later in the day of the 4th.

Except that a platform is nearly erected on the east front of the capitol, there are but few indications that the inauguration is at hand. The president is determined that the ceremony shall be simple, dignified and without a big expense to the country. He will have a splendid military escort of about 7,000 troops that are stationed in or near Washington, but beyond that, there will be but little display. The annual charity ball is to take the place of the official ball on the evening of the inauguration, and although neither President nor Mrs. Coolidge will attend, Vice President and Mrs. Dawes have promised to do so. That is the policy carried out at the Harding inaugural, when President and Mrs. Harding spent the evening quietly at the White House, but Vice President and Mrs. Coolidge were guests at the charity ball.

The conferees of the postal pay bill say unhesitatingly that they believe an agreement will be reached that will make the bill certain of passing congress and meet the approval of the president as well.

Predictions here today are to the effect that the president will submit only a few nominations on March 4th and that the session will last but a few days. It is of course possible that the Isle of Pines treaty may come up but even then no long special session is anticipated. Incoming senators will take their oath March 4th and the business of the special session of the senate begins at once.

Incidentally one hears frequent comments on Senator Bingham of Connecticut. "He is making good, and will be one of the first class men of the senate," remarked a leading republican senator today.

As soon as congress adjourns Mr. and Mrs. Freeman sail for Cuba and Congressman Tilson sails for France to bring back his family who have spent the winter there. The plans of the rest of the Connecticut delegation have not been announced.

Grey Gave Up Baseball

Zane Grey, a baseball player of no mean ability, had risen from a bush nine to be a professional star with a future, but his parents wanted him to give up the game and be a writer.

In Zanesville, Ohio, the city of his birth, this son of a doctor attended the public schools, indulged in out door sports and tried to write a book. As a "ringer" in a game at little Baltimore nearby his pitching was so clever that he was accused of throwing a "crooked ball" and had to hide in a cornfield to escape the rival Jacktown rooters.

While a freshman at the University of Pennsylvania he defended himself from a crowd of sophomores by throwing a volley of potatoes, and was put on the college nine. After his graduation at 21 he played with the Newark, N. J., Findlay, O., and Jackson, Mich., teams, saving his earnings for the time when he could become a writer. Chances of winning a place in the major leagues were bright, but he quit the profession and became a dentist in New York. At 29 he went to Lackawaxon, Pa., to give all his time to authorship.

Publishers had not accepted his first book, Betty Zane, written in his little New York flat, so he borrowed funds and published it himself. His next two books were rejected. After a trip to Arizona with Col. J. C. (Buffalo) Jones, he enthusiastically wrote The Last of the Plainsmen, which also was rejected. Now married and a father, he feared poverty.

In the cold, bare room of a cabin he next wrote The Heritage of the Desert, at 35. It won success, but magazines would not serialize his next work, Riders of the Purple Sage, and only by persistent effort did he enlist the backing of a publisher. Its sale brought greater success and more than 1,000,000 copies of this book alone have been sold.

Other successes followed until more than 2,500,000 copies of Grey's works have been published, many of his stories have been filmed, and Grey, at 49, has an income of nearly $250,000 a year from his literary efforts.

TEMPTING FATE

"I've had two matinee tickets sent me—come on and go!" said the lively young woman from across the hall.

"Oh, dear!" sighed the snub-nosed girl who still was pretty, leaning the floor duster up against the wall. "Oh, I just can't! I've so much to do today."

"Oh, chocolate fudge!" scoffed the lively young woman, sitting down just as though she intended to stay awhile. "Whoever heard of work dying or running away or otherwise removing itself if you neglect it? It'll be right here when we get back tonight and you don't need to worry! C'mon!"

"Hmph!" the snubnosed young woman sniffed scornfully; "maybe you can get away with that stuq, but as for myself I have learned that I am not intended to be a gay, insouciant person taking things as they come and, likewise leaving them! Retribution always hits me like a brick. Oh, I've heard lectures on not being a slave to toil and letting your spirit expand and snatching every good time that comes along, and who sees the dust in the corners, anyway? But it's no use! When I was a child in school I always got caught if I whispered. Little girls on all sides of me could buss their heads off and be marked 110 per cent, whereas if I opened my lips once I did it when the teacher was looking that way, and she was pained and grieved most thoroughly.

"All my little friends could slip away and go on picnics and parties which had been forbidden them simply by saying they were going ever to Mamie's, mother, to do geometry, but if I grew bold and tried the stunt my unsuspecting parent invariably had to run over and see Mamie's mother about some committee work or to borrow a cup of sugar and was greatly surprised to learn that I was nowhere near the spot. She would wait up for me till I got home and I noted, even then, that nothing seemed to irritate an adult so much as being kept from his rightful slumber.

"It was the same way with beaus. Invariably I went to parties with some boy I hated or I entertained by the hour beneath the parlor floor lamp some suitor whom I could have seen depart for Siam or the north pole without blinking an eyelash. My best friends remonstrated with me in vain, pointing out how easy it was to get a headache, to forget a date, to invent sudden family visitors who demanded my presence.

"When Lemuel Billposter was coming to call for the sixth time in one week and a real nice man I liked asked me to go to the theater I just phoned Lemuel that he'd have to let me off as mother was having company and needed my help. Lemuel had the seat right back of us at the theater, of cqurse. There were ten other good shows and he had to pick that one. He stuck right there and never even had the grace to go out between acts and it was considerable of a damper on my conversation.

"There have been times when I have neglected my house, too. Soon after we were married I wanted to go away on an all-day jaunt and hesitated because I had been neglecting routine work and the flat looked like the mischief. Everything was where it didn't belong—the dust showed, bureau drawers needed straightening, there was a pile of cooking utensils on the kitchen sink to be specially scoured, and papers and magazines were all over the living room, but I concluded not to be a slave to my work and went to the party. Tom wouldn't notice at night and I'd fix things the next day. I returned to find Tom's mother had arrived to spend a week with us, Tom having brought her home when he couldn't rouse me on the phone. She believes to this day that her son lives amid a welter of dust.

"There is nothing for me but to keep in the straight and narrow way, so just run away with your matinee tickets! I'm doing all the odd jobs that should have been done two months ago. If I leave them—"

"It's the Sallydoodle Sisters in that cute comedy," murmured the lively young woman casually.

"What!" cried the snubnosed girl in anguish, beginning to take off her apron. "Oh, I just can't miss that! I can't think of a thing that can happen to me this time, but I suppose it will anyway! I'll be ready in ten minutes."—Exchange.

Four years later he assumed directorship of agronomy work in Kansas State Agricultural College and in 1913 he became president of that institution. As head of agricultural production in Kansas during the World war, Dr. Jardine won national fame. BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peter Has a Tight Squeeze

Of those who laugh his laugh is best
Who waits 'till after all the rest.
Reddy Fox.

My goodness, Peter was in a tight place! Was he scared? Well, what do you think? How would you feel if you should see some one of whom you were very much afraid coming into a room in which you were, and you knew that there was no way out

Reddy grinned, "I'm perfectly safe here," said he to himself excepting by the door through which that enemy was coming? If you can guess how you would feel you will know just how Peter Rabbit felt.

There he was in Buster Bear's bedroom, which was a cave in the rocks. And there was Reddy Fox coming in by the only entrance. Peter jumped over Buster Bear, who was fast asleep, and began to hunt for something to hide under or behind. He hadn't any hope of finding anything, but he hunted just the same. He had to do something.

Reddy Fox stopped when he reached Buster Bear. Reddy didn't feel quite easy in his own mind yet. He first must make sure that Buster Bear really was sound asleep, so sound asleep that there was no chance that he would awaken. Reddy paid no attention to what Peter was doing. He gave all his attention to Buster Bear. At last he was satisfied. There was no doubt that Buster was still in that strange, deep sleep that lasts for weeks.

Reddy grinned. "I'm perfectly safe here," said he to himself. Then he looked across sleeping Buster Bear to where Peter Rabbit had been. He was just in time to see Peter's hind legs just disappearing in a little hole in the back of the cave. Reddy stopped grinning. Instead he snarled and jumped over Buster Bear. He rushed to that little hole, but he was just too late. Peter's hind legs were drawn out of reach just as Reddy got there. That hole was too small, very much too small for Reddy to get into. He couldn't get more than his sharp nose in it. He thrust a paw in at the hole. He could just touch Peter, but couldn't get hold of him. My, such a rage as Reddy flew into! You see, he had felt absolutely sure of catching Peter this time, and his disappointment made him lose his temper.

"You think you are smart, don't you, Peter Rabbit?" he snarled. "Well, let me tell you something. You've got away from me now, but I'm going to keep you in there until you have to come out or starve. You can laugh if you want to, but I am the one who will do the laughing later."

But Peter Rabbit wasn't laughing. Peter was very far from laughing. The entrance to that hole was so small that it was all Peter could do to squeeze through it. He had quite squeezed his breath out in getting through it. And now that he was in that hole he wasn't much better off. He couldn't sit up. In fact, he had to lie down flat. You see, that was a very small hole and a very low one. It was one of the tightest places Peter had ever been in, and of course it was one of the most uncomfortable places he had even been in. But he had escaped from Reddy Fox, and he had this to be thankful for at least. (Copyright, 1925, by T. W. Burgess)

Stories That Recall Others

The Chief Justice and the Pickaninnies

The famous Taft smile and chuckle have lost none of their charm since the former president became chief justice of the United States. Moreover, like the Constitution he so stoutly upholds, they know no "discrimination on account of race or color."

A few days ago, when Mr. Taft came out of the court room and was waiting to take the private elevator to the street floor of the capitol, the little children of a colored school were passing along that corridor on a sight-seeing trip. There were about a hundred of those little pickaninnies, and when the teacher called their attention to the chief justice and told them who he was, they stopped and gazed awestruck at his towering figure. Then it was that the face of the chief justice broke into one big beaming smile. He said a few kindly words to the children and they moved along, with necks craned and heads turned far back to catch the last glimpse of the man they had read about but never expected to see. Then a wee bit of a girl, black as the proverbial ace of spades and not bigger than a pint of cider, as they say way down east, broke from the ranks and scampered back, timidly holding out her little dusky fist to Mr. Taft. And did he ignore it? Not a bit of it. Bending far down to the tot whose head came scarcely to his knees, the chief justice chuckled merrily, took the little black hand in his own and bestowed on the child a smile as cordial as though greeting a person of high degree in the social or political world. The kid grinned back confidingly, then darted away to join her comrades.

She was a member of the Scott Hill Baptist church which she joined 60 years ago.

The family lived at Colchester for a time and then conducted a store in Malden, Mass., a few years afterwards they went to Georgia where Mr. Corey conducted a store. PRESTON REGISTERS STRONG PROTEST OVER PROPOSED ANNEXATION BILL

Such opposition by the Preston town authorities to the annexation of a part of the town of Preston by Norwich, according to a bill that is now in the legislature, was shown at a conference Monday afternoon at the Norwich state hospital that it is expected the bill will be withdrawn.

The section covered by the proposed annexation is an area of about one mile square and including the grounds of the Norwich state hospital as well as some other land south of the city line on Laurel Hill. The southern boundary of the proposed tract would be Poquetanuck cove, the eastern boundary the hospital brook, the western boundary the Thames river and the northern boundary the city line.

Only one person living in this area was present at the conference and he was in favor of annexation, saying that his property would benefit by probably getting city lights, city water and fire protection. The opposition was from town officials and residents of parts of the town of Preston outside of the section which it has been proposed to annex.

Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox, superintendent of the state hospital, presided in an informal way at the conference which was attended by selectmen of the two towns, assessors and town clerks and members of the board of trustees of the hospital.

The Preston opposition took the ground that the proposed annexation would withdraw from the Preston grand list real estate of about $40,000 in value, automobiles of about $17,000 in value owned largely by employes at the state hospital and a considerable amount of personal property. The claim was made that the section covered represented about 6 to 8 per cent. of the taxable list of Preston, on the amount of $1,700,000 as assessed by the state. Reference was made to the way sections of Preston had been added to adjoining towns, Griswold having taken some and Norwich some more, and it was claimed that if this proposed section is annexed to Norwich, that town ought to assume about $30,000 of the town debt of Preston. This amount was disputed as far too large by the town officials of Norwich.

A bill that is in the legislature to reimburse towns for real estate taken for the use of state institutions is reported to have a bearing on the situation as Preston would not want Norwich to get the benefit of any reimbursement for the state hospital land, if such a bill were passed.

It is understood that the reason for bringing up this proposed annexation at this time is because of the fact that the Norwich water department is supplying water to the state hospital is outside the territory in which the department can legally furnish water, but by bringing the state hospital into the limits of the town of Norwich this difficulty would be overcome.

A hearing on the bill has been scheduled for Wednesday at the capitol at Hartford.

COLCHESTER LEATHER CO. SUFFERS $20,000 FIRE LOSS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Colchester, Feb. 23—With a loss of $20,000 the building occupied by the Columbia Kid Kurler Co., on Hill's avenue, was destroyed by fire which started about 7.45 o'clock this morning from an explosion in the oil heating system. A leak in one of the pipes is thought to have caused the explosion which resulted in the total destruction of the plant. The pumper and chemical of the Colchester fire department responded but the fire spread so rapidly that it was impossible to save the building. The flames ate their way between the ceiling and the floor on the upper story. No one was injured.

The building was owned by the M. and C. Leather Co., of New York and was occupied by Reuben Shuster, of the Columbia Kid Kurler Company. The company manufactured pocket books, tobacco pouches and leather novelties. In the plant were between $4,000 and $5,000 worth of goods packed and ready for shipment. With the exception of a small quantity of the goods gotten out of the building, they were destroyed. Mr. Shuster had no insurance on the equipment or stock in the plant and his loss is estimated at between $5,000 and $6,000.

The building was two stories high, 40 feet by 80 feet with a long shed used as a storehouse and a boiler room. The structure was built about 20 years ago by the Columbia Canning company.

MISS SCARLETT AT 90 RECEIVES BIRTHDAY GIFTS

Two birthday cakes, one of them in a special Washington birthday design, bouquets of roses, carnations, violets, tulips and a pretty basket of straw flowers, with a number of post cards and calls from friends, remarked Miss Caroline B. Scarlett of 46 Grove street of the good wishes of friends upon her birthday Monday.

Blessed with bodily and mental vigor that goes with many years less than the four score and ten, Miss Scarlett enjoyed the day thoroughly and remarked that seventy years of her life have been spent in Norwich, 68 years of that time in the house that is still her home, at the corner of Grove and Broad streets. In fact she has always lived on Grove street, since coming here from Massachusetts with her uncle, Richard Colburn, who died twenty-five years ago. For ten years they lived in the house on the other side of the street, which is now the home of Herbert W. Gallup, and then they moved into her present home. At that time there were two little cottages next to it, which were the only other houses on that side of the street, but a Doctor Wilson, who was at once a physician and a preacher, was putting in the foundation for the residence that is now the home of the family of the late Capt. D. J. Twomey. All the other present houses on that side of the street have been built since then. When she first came to Norwich, the Academy had not been built and the court house was just being built.

Although a lameness with which she suffers has prevented her from walking out of the house for the last twenty years, Miss Scarlett is well posted on local history and changes that have occurred in the city, having been an every day reader of The Bulletin ever since it was first published in 1858. Her uncle, Mr. Colburn, was the second person to subscribe for a full year's issue when the paper started and she has been a constant reader since then.

An occupation which takes up much of her time and interest at present is piecing patchwork quilts, which she does with much skill and taste. In the past two years she has made the tops of six quilts, finding this an occupation in which she maintains a lively interest.

PROSPECT OF MUSCLE SHOALS LEGISLATION GROWS SLIGHT

Washington, Feb. 23—Prospect for enactment of Muscle Shoals legislation at this session of congress were reduced today with the recommitting of the Underwood leasing bill to conference by the senate.

By a vote of 45 to 41, the ruling of President Cummins that the conferees had exceeded their authority by writing new matter into the bill, was sustained. The ruling had been debated for three days and was on a point of order raised by Senator Norris, who is leading the fight for government ownership.

Party lines were completely submerged in the vote, republicans and democrats alike dividing almost equally. Twenty three republicans voted to sustain Senator Cummins on the appeal taken by Senator Underwood, democrat, Alabama, author of the leasing measure, and 24 republicans voted against.

The division among the democrats was wider, twenty voting to support the ruling and 17 casting their ballots in favor of the Underwood appeal. The two farmer-labor senators, Johnson and Shipstead supported the ruling.

Immediately after the vote, Chairman Keyes of the senate managers communicated with Chairman McKenzie of the house managers with a result that the conferees probably will get together late tomorrow for reconsideration of the measure.

O'BRIEN KNOCKS OUT CHANEY IN MAIN BOUT OF ELIMINATION TOURNAMENT

New York, Feb. 23—(By the A. P.)—Tommy O'Brien of Milwaukee, sprang a startling upset in lightweight circles tonight when he knocked out George (K. O.) Chaney, of Baltimore, in the sixth round of a ten round match at Madison Square Garden. The fight was the headliner of two matches in the lightweight elimination tournament staged under the auspices of the New York State Athletic commission.

In the other tournament fight, Jimmy Goodrich of Buffalo won a judges' verdict over Eddie (Kid) Wagner of Philadelphia. This fight was declared a draw at the termination of the tenth round and was ordered to go two more rounds by virtue of the commission's ruling on even decision in ten round encounters. Goodrich was given the decision at the end of the 12th round. The crowd voiced its disapproval at the verdict in a boisterous demonstration which lasted for 15 minutes after the match had ended.

The elimination of Chaney was an upset as the Baltimore lad had been figured the outstanding favorite to win the title vacated by Benny Leonard.

After tthe fight it was announced that O'Brien had broken a bone in his right hand early in the fight when he upset the Baltimorian with a wicked right.

Prior to the end, Chaney had been winning all the way, O'Brien having been floored once in the first round for a count of nine and hurt by the relentless body attack which the hard hitting Chaney had directed at him.

The knockout came with dramatic suddenness. O'Brien had been running away from Chaney when out of the air O'Brien swung a wicked right, almost in self defense. It caught Chaney off balance and he stretched on the rosined floor for a round of six. He was up and at O'Brien again but the Milwaukee boy did not follow up his advantage.

Chaney landed two or three more body blows which caused O'Brien to writhe in pain but he continued to punch away at Chaney while backing up. Then again that right sailied forth toppling Chaney to the floor. He rolled up in a heap and it looked as if the fight was over but at the count of eight he bounced to his feet and started to cover up. O'Brien, encouraged by his success, followed through and floored Chaney again, this time for the full count. The end came after one minute and two seconds of fighting in the sixth round.

The Goodrich-Wagner affair was a less spectacular contest, than the finale. Wagner fought an aggressive fight, outboxing his opponent but Goodrich rallied in the latter rounds and was given a draw decision. He continued his work in the two extra rounds and was given an unpopular decision.

O'Brien came in for the main go at the top weight of 135 pounds while Chaney weighed 134 3-4. Goodrich weighed 134 1-2 and Wagner 132 1-2.

Dr. Walker, of the New York state commission, surgeon, announced tonight that O'Brien had one fractured bone in his right hand and possibly two. He said the extent of O'Brien's injury could not be determined until an X-roy was taken tomorrow. This may eliminate O'Brien from the tournament, as Dr. Walker said it would be seven or eight weeks before he could fight again.

NURMI FAILS TO BREAK RECORD IN BALTIMORE

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 23.—(By The A. P.)—Paavo Nurmi raced to triumph tonight in a two mile race featuring the Johns Hopkins-Fifth Regiment indoor games but the Phantom Finn failed to hang up any new records in spite of a pace that forced four of his seven opponents to drop out.

Nurmi failed by margins of from about eight to twenty seconds to displace his own world's indoor standards at the five distances for which he was clocked, in a race that had its chief featufe otherwise in the dogged pursuit of the invader by Vene Booth, lanky former Johns Hopkins distance ace and ex-intercollegiate champion.

Booth gave a gritty exhibition in an attempt to keep close to the flying Finn. Over the last part of the route, Nurmi opened a gap of about 25 yards but Booth refused to drop back any further until the last lap. Here Nurmi spurted, but the best he could do was add about ten yards to his advantage, finishing 35 yards in front.

Nurmi was clocked at the finish in 9.18 4-5, well behind the spectacular two mile record of 8:58 1-5 he set in New York a little more than a week ago.

After the meet officials announced they would apply for a new standard for Nurmi at 3,000 yards, where he was clocked at 7:54 3-5, in spite of the fact that the Finn covered the same distance Saturday at the Georgetown university games in Washington in 7:46 2-5.

JOIE RAY CAPTURES FEATURE RACE AT BOSTON

Boston, Feb. 23.—Joie Ray, star Chicago miler, easily captured the "Legion Mile" feature event of the American Legion games held here today, when Willie Ritola, Finland's Olympic distance champion, failed to appear at the meet and Lloyd Hahn, B. A. A., present world's indoor mile record holder, withdrew from the race after covering three-quarters of the distance. Willard Tibbetts, Harvard miler, came out of the ruck with a rush to win second place from Leo Larrivee, of Holy Cross. The time was 4 minutes 21 3-5 seconds.

Charles Gorman, in charge of the games, announced after the meet that he had wired Murry Hulbert, of New York, president of the A. A. U., asking that Ritola be barred from further competition because of his action.

Ugo Frigerio, Italian Olympic walking champion, set a new indoor record in winning the 4,000 meter handicap walk. Frigerio quickly made up the liberal handicaps allowed his local opponents and succeeded in lapping the field, covering the distance in 18 minutes 20 2-5 seconds.

Frank Hussey, former schoolboy champion sprinted away from the field in the fifty yard handicap dash in 5 3-5 seconds. Hussey caught Ernest Merrill, with a five foot handicap, and George Mittleodert, of Colby, at the halfway mark, winning easily. Hussey and Mittleodert ran from scratch.

Walter Vulvehill, Holy Cross, captured his second leg of the Colonel Garton 600 yard trophy staving off the rush of Pat Mahoney of Boston college in the last few yards. G. J. Lenes, M. I. T., was third. The time was 1 minute, 18 3-5 seconds.

Four New England A. A. U. champion events brought new titlists in the two mile, 1,000 yard and 600 yard events. Jimmy Henigan, Dorchester club, lapped his field in the distance run by a wide margin. Edward Higgins, Holy Cross, won a close victory in the 600 yard run.

The field was built especially for Babe Ruth, members of the Yankees squad pointed out today, since the right field boundary, marked by a hedge instead of a board fence, is 295 feet from the home plate. CONNECTICUT AGGIES BEAT TRINITY FOR THE SECOND TIME THIS SEASON

(Special to the Bulletin)

Hartford, Feb. 23—In their annual pilgrimage to this city tonight the Connecticut Aggie hoop team defeated Trinity for the second time this season, when they doubled the count on the blue and gold five. The score was 44 to 23 and it gives a fair estimate of the worth of the respective teams As is customary for the Trinity Aggies game the entire student body from the state college as well as faculty members and a large delegation of alumni were on the sidelines to support the Connecticut five. Following the game the Hartford local Alumni club of the Connecticut Aggie Alumni association tendered an informal supper to the team, at the Hartford City club.

The game tonight started off at top speed with the Trinity team showing a great brand of play, uncorking a clever offense that was built around Thompson and Orrick, two freshmen stars. The hill toppers worked the ball down the floor where Orrick sank a pretty basket from a side court for the initial score of the game. He followed with two more in rapid succession shortly afterwards, putting his team six points to the good. Trinity was displaying a perfect five-man defense during the early minutes of play and eight minutes had elapsed before Eddy cut through for the first Connecticut basket. Makofske followed with a spectacular shot from mid-floor and Schofield knotted the count at six-all with a pretty shot from the side. Trinity went into the lead 7 to 6 when Orrick made good his free throw from the foul line, but Schofield sent the Aggies to the front with a field goal immediately afterwards. Up to this point the Trinity team had been playing a great game and already its supporters could see visions of victory and a spectacular upset of the Aggie five.

The offense of the Connecticut five gained momentum towards the end of the first half and the Storrs combination steadily pushed to the front. The Aggies were playing at a killing pace and it started to tell on the Hill-top five as the first half ended with the Storrs team leading 20 to 14.

The second half saw the Connecticut five outplaying its opponents in every department of the game. Starting off with the first whistle Makofske, Schofield and Balack took turns in dropping the ball through the Trinity net and the Aggies added eight points to their score in less than two minutes as the second half opened. Trinity took time out but on the resumption of play the Storrs offense swept on as before with the same three Aggie men doing most of the damage. The Trinity defense cracked before the speed and cleverness of the Aggies attack and though they fought hard it was impossible to stop Captain Balock and his men. The entire Aggie team was in top form during the game, every man giving all that he had. Schofield gave the crowd a pretty exhibition of basket shooting and his long one handed shots for a basket from the side court was a feature. Orrick was easily the star of the Trinity team making 11 points for his night's work. It was his shooting in the first half that kept the Trinity team in the running. The score:

QUERY TO NEW LONDON REGARDING COURT RECORD OF JOHN O'BRIEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Feb. 23.—Richard B. McSweeney, parole clerk at the Massachusetts reformatory, Concord Junction, Mass., today communicated with the New London police, requesting the local police court record of John O'Brien, who was committed to the Massachusetts reformatory the 17th inst., charged with violation of parole. O'Brien, Victor Selvaggio and Joseph Lesowski were taken into custody at Norwich March 14th, 1924, by New London officers, who pursued O'Brien, Selvaggio and Lesowski to that city, following the trio's burglarizing the Chinese laundry of Eddie Young, 212 Main street and rifling the cash register of $55. O'Brien was fined $200 and was sentenced to six months in jail.

Peter Truken, of Chesterfield, was arrested last midnight by State Police Officers Giles Watson and Fred Carcn charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor and operating a motor vehicle while his operator's license was under suspension. This afternoon at 4 o'clock Truken, who had been held at the New London police station over night, was presented before Justice of the Peace Frederick L. Goss in Waterford, and fined $10 on each of the two counts. Truken, who has been arrested many times for various offenses, was detected operating his automobile in Waterford shortly after 11 o'clock last night. When Officers Carcn and Watson held up Truken it was evident that he was intoxicated and knowing that Truken's license had long ago been suspended, the double charge was made against him.

The annual banquet of Thomas Hose Co., No. 3, took place tonight when about 18 members of the organization and guests, the latter including city officials, had a bountiful feast at the quarters of the company, Williams street. Foreman Manuel J. Martin was toastmaster.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Fred Brown, Post Hill place, have returned home, having spent several weeks touring in the south.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lloyd have returned to their home, Belmont, Mass., after having been summoned to New London last week by the death of Mr. Lloyd's father, Hugh H. Lloyd.

Charles Hevegam, 55 Prest street, and Sam Eskanharian, 162 Jefferson avenue, were arrested tonight, charged with breach of the peace. The accused furnished a surety on their respective bonds of $50 for their appearance in the police court tomorrow morning, Attorney Thomas E. Troland qualifying as surety on Eskanharian's bond.

Hevegam and Eskanharian are employed at the plant of the Edward Bloom Silk company, Jefferson avenue. Late this afternoon while at their work they became involved in an argument and finally Hevegam is alleged to have struck Eskenharian several blows on the face. After taking at least a half dozen punches, Eskanharian, it is claimed, became enraged and attacked Hevegam, with the result that Hevegam was administered a severe beating. Hevegam lodged a complaint with the police with the result that Eskanharian was arrested by Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolman Patrick Sheehan. When Eskanharian told his story at the police station Hevegam was also held on the same charge as that entered against Eskenharian.

Joseph "Soldier" Wilson, former soldier and ex-prize fighter, who is a frequent offender against the law, will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning charged with breach of the peace. Wilson is locked up at the police station. Wilson was about the city this afternoon and visited several places where liquor is dispensed. He finally became intoxicated and went to the pool room in the Armstrong building, Bank street, conducted by Nick Stamador. There Wilson became abusive to patrons of the place and when Stamador endeavored to induce Wilson to leave the pool room the latter created a disturbance that attracted a crowd. Stamador lodged a complaint with the police and Wilson was taken into custody by Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolman Patrick Sheehan.

A man about 40, a passenger on the Gilt Edge express, which arrived in New London at 8.11 o'clock this evening was taken from the train by Patrolman David Nagle and Edward J. Montgomery, special agent of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, charged with evasion of fare. The man was much the worse for too much drink and refused to pay his fare. When searched at the police station he had two bottles of "gin." When asked his name, the stranger replied "Try and get it." He will be in the police court tomorrow morning.

Tony Caldrello, a taxi driver, was out of luck when, Friday night, he entrusted his car to an acquaintance to take it to a garage to have it washed. The owner had been engaged all night and was tired out, so he delegated an acquaintance to take the taxi to a garage, that it might be ready for him when he appeared for business in the morning. The acquaintance started off but proceeded only a short distance when the car became stalled. The fellow hurried to a garage to get the Caldrello car towed in, but in that he did not succeed, so he left it in Pearl street far away from the curbing and there it was found by Officer W. J. Corcoran. The latter tagged the car and Tony had to answer in the police court today for violation of the parking ordinance. Judge Prince heard the explanation and then suspended judgment, as he regarded Tony as not a wilful offender, nor one who had control of the circumstances.

There was no meeting of the city council this evening because this was a holiday.

The stores of the city were quite generally closed today in recognition of the Washington's birthday holiday. The banks were closed to business, but workmen toiled where they had the opportunity to do so. They decided that they needed the money they would earn more than they required the rest, as they had been idle during the 24 hours preceding.

The funeral of Lyman Baker Pendleton was held this morning at 11 o'clock at 15 Masonic street and was attended by perhaps 100 friends and acquaintances, including former associates, attorneys, bankers, merchants and others. Every walk of life was represented in the three rooms that held the mourners. There were many women in gathering. The post office was represented by a delegation of carriers, and the Spanish War Veterans by members of that order. Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth read the scriptures and spoke feelingly of the life and character of Mr. Pendleton. He was followed by [illegible] Hammond, an acquaintance of Mr. Pendleton, who referred to Mr. Pendleton as a man so honest that he could see no dishonesty in others. There were beautiful floral offerings. The bearers were the former captains of the three companies that went from this city into the Spanish-American war, and Lieut. William Basely, who was a lieutenant of cavalry in that war. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery, where Mr. Pendleton's parents are buried.

Tony Grippo is in financial straits. During the war he erected a handsome building at the intersection of Truman and Bank streets, but the building has not proven a paying investment. He is said to have secured a $15,000 mortgage on the structure and there are other claimants for debts of $8,000. The latter seeks now to collect the debt owed them and the property must be sold to satisfy the claims. Mr. Grippo saw good times ahead during the war, as did others, and he put his money into the building. It has been a source of expense to him since then, in taxes, insurance and upkeep.

Lawrence Donohue, formerly of New London, now located in Boston, is spending a few days in this city, being the guest of his sisters, the Misses Donohue, of Connecticut Avenue.

John Dunbar of Williams street; Alphonzo Quattronani, Westerly; Miss Marjorie Starr, Hempstead street; Mrs. Doris Landrum, Groton; Earl Stone, Lyme; Mrs. Earl Lamotte and infant daughter, of Groton, and Charles F. Brown, Woodbridge street, foreman of Niagara Engine company, who suffered a fractured bone in the foot by falling from a ladder at the fire that threatened to destroy the Max Fern residence, Pequot avenue, several months ago, were patients dismissed at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital today.

The City of Fall River, one of the oldest steamers of the New England Steamship company, is at anchor in the lower harbor, having been towed to this port from Providence Saturday. The steamer will be junked by the Merritt-Chapman-Scott Wrecking company.

The annual Washington's birthday banquet by the Jibboom club took place this afternoon in the banquet hall in the Odd Fellows' building on Bank street. The customary street parade was omitted today.

The body of Mrs. Seraphine Merrill, wife of Donald Merrill, sailor, stationed at the submarine base, whose death occurred Friday, was forwarded to Mrs. Merrill's former home in Biddeford, Me., today, where the funeral and burial will take place.

Private funeral services for Edward R. Burckle were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Mr. Burckle's residence, 906 Bank street. Mrs. Harding, a spiritualistic reader, of Somerville, Mass., officiated. The body will be forwarded to Brooklyn, N. Y., tomorrow for burial in Cypress Hills cemetery.

Costello in the Groton town court, McKone pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs. Parks pleaded not guilty. The charge against him was nolled. McKone and Parks became involved in an argument with Buddington, Sunday night, on Buddington road, Groton, relative to the manner in which McKone parked his automobile. During the argument McKone punched Buddington on the jaw and a complaint was made against the former. McKone explained his act by stating that he struck Buddington when the former believed Buddington about to draw a revolver.

Frank Maschana, of Mystic, was charged with violation of the automobile laws in not giving right of way, but as the case appeared to be one where civil action should be brought, rather than a criminal action, Judge Costello advised Maschana to endeavor to make a satisfactory adjustment of damages with the woman with whose automobile Maschana's car was in collision on Sunday. Maschana was operating his automobile on the outskirts of the borough and apparently refused to allow the car operated by the woman to pass. A collision resulted, but the damage was not of consequence, it being estimated that the damage sustained by either automobile would not amount to $25.

TWENTY-NINE STATE PARKS COVER 2,484 ACRES

The biennial report of the state park and forest commission is now in print and may be secured by addressing the commission at Hartford. It contains 54 pages of text and 16 plates and should be studied by all who wish to see the state go forward in this work.

The state parks now number twenty-nine (the Pomfret Wolf Den having been added since the report went to press), covering 6,072 acres of which 2,484 acres have been donated and the remainder purchased at a cost of $272,812, of which nearly one-half was used at Hammonasset Beach.

Among the recommendations of the State forester is that the state should establish a nursery for the distribution of trees for forest planting as has been done by several other states including Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire, New York and Pennsylvania. Reforestation work in Connecticut has been handicapped by the scarcity of seedlings. Such a nursery would be limited to the production of stock for forest planting and would not compete with ornamental nurseries.

During the twenty years since the inauguration of the forestry program in Connecticut only 10,000 acres of state forests have been acquired. In a much shorter period Massachusetts has acquired 75,000 acres and Vermont, a relatively poor state, 90,000 acres. Pennsylvania has 1,131,376 acres and has a referendum before the people for a bond issue of $25,000,000, for additional purchases. New York has 1,990,000 acres of state forests and recently voted a large bond issue for such forests. The state forester reiterates the desirability of an early acquisition of 200,000 acres of state forests in Connecticut while land is still cheap. During the past two years the area of our state forests has been increased by 33 per cent, at an average price of $6 an acre. As the state pays taxes on these tracts at an average cost of 15 cents an acre a year, towns lose nothing by having them taken over by the state. Planting is progressing as rapidly as funds permit. During the past three years about 200,000 trees have been set out on abandoned farm land.

The report contains statistics about the forest fires of 1923, showing that there were 708 fires during the year, which burned altogether 20,900 acres. An improvement in the service is observable from the fact that there were only three fires which burned more than 1,000 acres each and that the total area burned was only about half the average for the past fourteen years. The equipment for fire fighting throughout the state is being increased as rapidly as funds are available. Pumps and water are being effectively substituted for the old fashioned methods of back-firing. Two forest protective associations are functioning effectively. These are the Central Fairfield County Association and the Talcott Mt. Association of Hartford County.

The forester recommends an aerial survey of the state. Such a survey would form a basis for an accurate census of our natural resources and would be useful in many other ways. The only maps of Connecticut now available are based on the work of the U. S. Geological Survey, which was done over thirty years ago. Many changes have taken place during that time, especially in the construction of reservoirs.

At the end of the report is a summary of the reforestation work done by the various water boards and water companies of Connecticut. Altogether about 45,000 acres in the state are held under such ownership, of which about 19 per cent. has been reforested.

REQUEST DR. EVANS TO INVESTIGATE CANCER CURE

Mr. and Mrs. Byron H. Evans of Court street recently received information concerning their eldest son Dr. John H. Evans, formerly of Norwich, which stated that he had been requested by the American authorities to investigate the Molotkoff system, a new method for the treatment of cancer, in behalf of American medical institutions. Dr. Evans for the past three or four years has been medical director of the Near East relief for southern Russia. Since being engaged in this work Dr. Evans has attained such wonderful achievements that it has been said of him by a person returning to the United States from that field: "Dr. Evans is one of the big men over there. He has not only been very successful in his conscientious endeavors, but has made many friends and is looked up to and esteemed by all."

Professor Molotkoff of the Neurological academy of Leningrad, Russia, since announcing this new method, has been flooded with letters and appeals from cancer sufferers in the United States, some of whom have offered to come to Russia if he will treat them.

At a meeting of Leningrad medical men it was insisted that Molotkoff's treatment had brought out numerous cures, in proof of which several patients alleged to have been cured of cancer were exhibited.

It is because of this, and also due to Dr. Evans' judgment and skill, that he has been asked by the American authorities to make this investigation in behalf of suffering humanity.

Allen's Lung Healer

As a Cure for Consumption

But we do claim and have proven times without number that it will prevent the disease in many cases by its remarkable healing and germicidal properties. Its action on the lungs and bronchial tubes fortifies them against attack if used in season. An obstinate lung cough weakens the lungs and opens wide the door for tubercular germs to enter and find lodgment. Allen's Lung Healer cures these obstinate lung coughs, thereby preventing consumption. If your lungs are susceptible to colds, you should take the Lung Healer on the first symptoms of a cold, thereby preventing further trouble.

Your child—

should have the right candy

Scientists now agree that it is far better to let children have the right kind of candy regularly.

Then they are less inclined to over-eat.

The active growing bodies of little folks need sugar to replace the energy they burn up so quickly in play.

You can find no more ideal candy for children than Life Savers—the mints with the hole. Youngsters like these china-hard circles of pure goodness. They eat them slowly because they are hard; also, because they love the wonderful flavors and want them to last longer.

Six flavors displayed at all good stores so you may help yourself.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

IN the United States today, it is estimated that over half a million people a day are cleaning their teeth in a new way. These are people who used to have dull and dingy teeth. That is why you see gleaming teeth wherever your eyes turn.

Now leading dentists tell how to clear up dingy teeth. A method that supplants old type dentifrices—combats, without harsh grit, the stubborn film that covers teeth and makes them ugly.

Swift & Company Produce Plant, Nashville, Tenn.

Every-Day Service

Butter, eggs, and poultry are every-day items of household purchase. Their story is more than "every-day."

Swift & Company's 1925 Year Book, which has just been issued, tells about our produce plants located in the best farming communities, how we buy cream and produce the best grade of butter, which goes under the Brookfield Brand.

It tells how, in order that nothing may be lost, we use the buttermilk mixed with grain to feed chickens so that they are good enough to carry our famous Premium Milk-Fed Chicken and Golden West Fatted Fowl brands. Eggs also are purchased, carefully candled and graded and the best marketed as Brookfield.

The growth of the produce business from a haphazard, itinerant occupation and its development into a scientific industry are fascinating. The story will be found on page 39 of the Year Book. There are many other interesting stories, also.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

The building operation in Norwich showed a slight decline during the past week, there being no permits for new building granted at the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton. There were, however, several applications for permission to build and plans are being figured for a number of new buildings in the outskirts of the city. Local architects are working on plans for alterations to a number of business blocks in the center of the city but the owners are not yet ready to give them out.

The work on the Sellas block on Franklin square is progressing favorably and the weather during the past week has materially aided building operations in the city. The work on the block has reached the roofing stage, the walls being erected and the roof girders set in place.

At the Norwich State hospital take work on the Nurses' home and the new ward building has been practically completed by the H. Wales Lines company and the plumbers are at work installing the steam fitting and covering the pipes. t is expected that another new ward building will be erected during the coming year.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 4 sales of real estate as compared to 12 sales for corresponding week in 1924. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $32,812 and $19,800.

There were 6 sales of real estate in New London last week, exactly the same number as for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $14,100 and $85,960.

Building Situation

Although building operations in Connecticut and other eastern states during the first six weeks of the current year have been considerably under the totals for the corresponding period of 1924, due largely to weather conditions, the building industry for the country as a whole has made a favorable start for the year. This is indicated in the reports of heavy demands for starting materials and for structural steel, as well as in the national monthly survey by S. W. Straus & Co. "The year 1925 has started off under most propitious circumstances," says the survey. "January building permits for the whole country were within 3.5 per cent of the amount issued in the same month last year, while in the 25 leading building cities the month's volume of permits issued this year was one per cent ahead of last year. The initial period of the year finds the building materials markets generally stabilized with a slight upward trend. Labor conditions as a whole are good. There are disturbances here and there but not of sufficient magnitude to menace the general healthy national building shortage, which, in a survey made by S. W. Straus & Co. last fall, was found to exceed 44,000,000, the continuation of large building permit figures is not surprising. In this connection, a high government authority recently estimated a present housing shortage of 500,0000 homes."

State Building Permits

While the number of building permits issued in the leading towns of the state falls short of the total issued in the like week of last year, the 138 permits granted comparing with 162 for the same week of 1924, the total cost of construction for the week was greatly in excess of the previous year, the $1,156,954 spent for new construction comparing with $758,889 in the week of 1924. These figures compare with 85 permits granted in 1923, for construction amounting to $790,904.

New London

Plans have been prepared for alteration to the former Bath & Beach Club property at Ocean Beach, recently purphased by Abraham Rakowsky, of The Metro Store, Main street, from the Hebrew Sick Benefit Society. The building, which has a 50-foot frontage on the boardwalk, will be remodeled to provide a large dining room and kitchen and five bedrooms on the two upper floors. The owner plans to lease the building after the improvements are completed.

A local architect has completed plans and specifications for a dwelling on Montauk avenue for Abraham Gordan, 41 Federal street. The house will be of frame construction, 29x67 feet, and will contain two seven-room tenements. There will be steam heat, tile baths, fireplaces and all other improvements.

The revised contract calling for the preparation of plans and specifications for the proposed school building on the Harris property at the corner of Mercer and Williams streets has been approved by the city council. The contract for the plans, which will provide for a building to cost $150,000, has been awarded.

The permit has been issued to John N. Osterman and J. M. Henrikson, 26 Rosemary street, for a dwelling on Terrace avenue. The house will be 26x32 feet, of frame construction, arranged for two families. The cost will be about $5,000.

Alterations are being made at The Moorings, the former Home Memorial Hospital building on Pequot avenue. Extensive interior work is being done, including new plumbing and electric wiring.

Several bills are to come up for action before the general assembly during the next fortnight, the most important of which is the appropriation of $25,000 with which to purchase egg-bearing lobsters from the fishermen at prevailing market prices. At Noank a meeting is to take place in the office of S. Z. Chesebro for those concerned, to impress the legislators the necessity of this bill.

George Horborn of Pittsburgh, Pa., was a recent caller on local friends.

Mr. and Mrs. King of Springfield, Mass., are spending a few days at their cottage at West View.

HONEST NEWSBOY'S REWARD IS A POLITE "THANK YOU"

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Noank, Feb. 23.—Does honesty have its reward? A little newsboy found a purse while delivering his papers. Fortunately the purse had the owner's name in it and contained $20 and some change. Hustling over his route the boy at once delivered the purse to its owner, who rewarded him with "Thank you!"

PLAINFIELD

At the Weavers' hall Saturday night the J. F. F. Girls' club dance and social was a big success. A large crowd attended and the girls put over a real snappy entertainment. Music for dancing was furnished by Cloutre's orchestra. Sandwiches, cake, soda and ice cream were served.

An old-time dance was held at the Plainfield Community house Saturday night.

The radio concert at Salisbury's was well attended Sunday afternoon.

A pleasant afternoon was spent at the Community house by the Uke club boys.

Thursday evening the Lincoln club held its February meeting in the vestry of the Congregational church with a good attendance. The men sat down to an excellent supper served by the Ladies' Aid society, young ladies of the church waiting on the tables. The favors given were large pins with the picture of Lincoln. The president, Walter D. Cleland, announced the following interesting program: Ukulele duet, Miss Florence Leach and Miss Mildred Leach; violin solo, Miss Florence Leach; piano solo, Miss Mildred Leach; vocal solo, Sidney Mathewson.

The speaker was Rev. G. Leon Wells, pastor of Moosup Methodist Episcopal church, who spoke on Taffy and Epitaphy. His address abounded in wit and was a call to men to a life of goodwill and brotherhood, stressing the big brother idea. He was listened to with close attention. Rev. Ralph E. Knight, pastor of the Congregational church in Canterbury, was also a guest of the evening and responded with greetings from Canterbury in words cordial and fitting.

This fourth anniversary meeting was one of the best ever held, with interest sustained in things worth while. The executive board is to meet with the president this (Monday) evening to plan out the next meeting, which comes March 9th.

Rev. Charles E. White, missionary in China, now on furlough at the Boston headquarters, will be the speaker at the evening service next Sunday at 7 o'clock at the Congregational church. Mr. White is well known in this section as the young divinity student who supplied some years ago the Congregational church at Ekonk. Mr. White has a most remarkable story of his work in China, interestingly told and illustrated by stereopticon views.

The state highway is in a little better shape at present, as the roadmen have been working the past week filling the holes and ruts with sand.

One week more remains to drive on the 1924 year operator's license.

The minstrel given by the Plainfield High sophomores Friday night at the Best theatre was a big success.

Miss Mary Burke, local teacher, is spending the week with relatives in Boston. Miss Burke was bridesmaid at the wedding of her cousin, Miss Agnes Burke, of Dorchester, and Francis Gunning.

Miss Celia Israel spent the week end with Worcester relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Connell motored to Brookline, Mass., and spent the week end with frineds.

Mr. and Mrs. George Eastham are planning a trip to California and expect to leave in a week or two.

Miss Lillian Heap is home for the week-end from Boston, where she is a student.

A large district meeting of the Councils of Union St. Jean Baptiste was held at the club house Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. About 350 persons from different councils were in attendance.

A fine program was carried out after the meeting and refreshments were served by a committee.

BALTIC

John C. Stevens, who has been running the Baltic Mills Co. boarding house for the last 25 years has moved to Stamford, Conn., where he and his son, Clarence, will run a rooming house. While here Mr. Stevens has been active in town politics serving on the board of selectmen board of assessors, school board and other offices and was for a number of years chairman of the republican town committee. Mr. Stevens' place at the boarding house has been taken by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Busch of Norwich.

Mrs. John Cronin of Depot Hill is at St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, recovering from a surgical operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lancourt of Troy, N. H., Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mercier and son Raymond of Jewett City and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Mercier and daughter Gloria of Taftville were the guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Stanislas Mercier.

Louis Dubois and family of Arctic, R. I., were guests Sunday of Mrs. Theophile Dubois, of Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lacroix and A. P. Cote were delegates of Conseils, No. 187 and 188 of L'U. St. J. B. d'A. to the district convention of the order held in Community hall, Plainfield, on Sunday afternoon.

Oscar Racine and family of New Bedford, Mass., spent Sunday as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Omer Racine.

When the Baltic Rifle Club held its weekly shoot at Walnut Hill range, some fine scores were made with rifle and pistol, as follows:

50 shots at 50 yards, one inch ring, Harry Sargent 440, George Grieshamer 477, Walter Watson, 440, Clinton Watson 444.

10 shots with 22 pistol, George Grieshamer 94, Walter Watson 90, Harry Sargent 64, Clinton Watson 63, William McGill 62.

Several of the boys expect to compete in the National Rifle association matches to be held during the coming season.

Crack shots from all over the country take part in these matches and stiff competition is always expected.

Life is short, and it only takes two seconds to fight a duel.

DO THIS AFTER SEVERE ILLNESS

How to Speedily Gain Strength and Put on Needed Weight.

Nothing like the wonderful vitalising vitamines in Cod Liver Oil to help, convelescing people to quickly get strong and well — everybody knows that.

But nobody wants to take the fish-smelling, horrible tasting stomach upsetting oil itself, so nowadays, up to date medical men are ordering a tablet of Cod Liver Oil and it surely has proved a blessing to thousands of people who have been sapped of their natural strength after a severe illness and especially after the Grippe or a stubborn cough or cold.

Ask Lee & Osgood or any regular druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. They cost but little, are sugar coated and as pleasant to take as candy.

Skinny men and women take them to speedily put on plenty of good healthy solid flesh and for this purpose they are so extremely good that thin men and women often take on 5 pounds or more in 30 days. As a matter of fact, your druggist will return your money if you don't take on 5 pounds in 30 days.

Great for weak, skinny, backward, run-down children, too, and gives them a hearty appetite.

Be sure and ask for McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets — 60 Tablets—60 cents.

ASKS WHICH NATURE IS TO PREDOMINATE

The subject presented at the noon meeting Monday of the Richmond Radiator Co., Monday by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts was Up or Down—Which? The meeting was under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

The speaker said in part as follows: As we partake of two natures we live in two worlds, and the question is which of the two shall predominate. The urge in both directions is very strong, but which of the two shall we heed? The one which is calling us down to a lower level, or the one that is bidding to come up higher? These two worlds have different names such as: lower and higher, earthy and heavenly, physical and spiritual, material and immortal. Both cannot be the custodians of our destiny, on the principle so plainly stated by Christ, "ye cannot serve two masters," hence the question which shall it be?

The speaker then showed the four types of people who habitually live in the lower world. 1. The sodden type, those who are purely animal, who seems to live wholly to gratify the lower animal nature such as the drunkard, the libertine and the glutton. 2. The sordid type as the money grabber. If nothing else is seen in life but wealth, living is a failure from the Biblical standpoint. 3. the selfish type, those who think only of their own welfare. He may be the intellectual and literary aristocrat, who is concerned with his own material success. 4. The solitary type, those who have no social trends. Such people have no interest in schools, churches or fraternal societies. They "let George" do their polite work. They move aimlessly through life and they are dead ten years before it is generally known.

What ought such people to do? 1. To look up. An illustration was here taken from the bitten Israelite. If there is any life whatever one can look up. 2. To reach up. By looking strength is imparted. Paralysis passes from arms and hands. We never climb steep mountains with hands in our pockets. If we lift up our hands there is always somebody near who is kind enough to give us a lift. 3. To get up. The story of Peter at the Beautiful Gate was used here. Peter took the poor fellow by the hand and helped him up. At once "feet and ankle bones grew strong". Peter only helped the man to get up; the man himself had to do the main part. 4. To stay up. Don't go back again to the mud and slush from which you have been delivered! "Let no man take your crown from you." While your two feet are on the solid earth look up to the stars and the hills that are touched with God's eternal light!"

GREENEVILLE

In St. Andrew's guild room Friday evening under the auspices of the different societies of the parish a musical programme was given to a very large audience. The first part included the following:

Piano selection, Miss Hazel Banfield; vocal solo, Samuel Armitage; vocal solo, Mrs. Henry Church; reading, Miss Shearer; solo, George Hollingsworth; solo, Miss Eunice Taft. Hawaiian selections, Filipinos of the Sub Base; solo, Mrs. Henry E. Church; solo, James Lockart; reading, Miss Shearer; solo, Miss Amelia Erwin; duet, Mrs. William Crowe and Mrs. Henry Church; pianist, Miss Mary Gray.

The Russian choir, of twenty-two members of St. Nihaloas church, of Greeneville, under the skilled direction of Simeon Andreyoff gave the second part of the evening's programme.

The Russian programme was divided into two parts, the first of sacred music of the church, and the second to secular songs.

In the first half the Psalms were sung to the music of Archungelsky and Eppositoff Ivinhoff followed by the Wedding Anthem.

Under the secular head were two solos by Mr. Andreyoff, accompanied by Alfred Bruchsch. Mr. Andreyoff has a sweet tenor voice and his rendition of the difficult Russian music was nothing short of wonderful. The third number consisted of a duet, Where Art Thou Going My Happiness, by Mrs. Micunos Sukoloff and Mr. Andreyoff, accompanied by Miss Barbara Sukoloff. Mrs. Sukoloff's rich contralto blended perfectly with Mr. Andreyoff's tenor and this very difficult music seemed to live and breath. Very delightful folks songs followed which again indicated the splendid training of the choir, which was organized last October.

Friday night's concert promises that beyond all doubt the young Russian director is more than a director, he is a genius.

ENDED HER LIFE ON EVE OF WEDDING

Dorothy Doby, 24, of Windsor Locks who last summer was a patient at the Norwich state hospital, suffering from nervousness, ended her life Sunday night by jumping into the Connecticut river near the Yellow Tavern railroad crossing, on the eve of her wedding. She had been riding with her fiance, Alex Manau of Waterbury, whom she was to marry Monday and had left him to walk along the river bank. He heard her scream and a search revealed only her footprints in the snow leading to the edge of the water. She was formerly employed in the office of the Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co., in that city. An investigation by the police revealed no cause for holding Manau.

The body was recovered Monday.

Early February Pussy Willows.

It was reported to The Bulletin office Monday evening that little Rose Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Davis of Scotland road, Baltic, had picked several sprigs of pussy willows on the Davis farm the 7th of February.

NORWICH DELEGATION WILL APPEAR AT WASHINGTON HEARING WEDNESDAY

A second hearing before the United States board of army engineers relative to the deepening of the Thames River channel near Norwich will be held Wednesday, February 25th in Washington. The local Chamber of Commerce has been making consistent efforts to bring this project to a successful issue. So far the local efforts have been successful and the present hearing is the final one for the project at this time.

The Chamber of Commerce will be represented at the hearing in Washington by Hon. A. M. Brown; L. M. Carpenter, representing the eastern Connecticut Manufacturers' Association; C. J. Twist, representing the Norwich Manufacturers Association; Lucius Briggs, H. F. Dawley and J. E. Smith, representing the shippers of Norwich; Ernest E. Fuchs, manager of the Thames River Line, and Secretary John J. O'Rourke of the Chamber of Commerce.

In order to save time, and that an opportunity be given to Senators McLean and Bingham and Congressman Freeman to learn the present status of this project, Secretary O'Rourke will confer with the United States Senators this (Tuesday) morning, and with Congressman Freeman, Tuesday afternoon. A conference with the Norwich delegation and the Connecticut national representatives will follow on Wednesday, preceding the hearing to be held in the afternoon before the board of army engineers. The Norwich men will leave for home Wednesday night.

The citizens of Norwich have always shown the keenest interest in the maintenance and the development of this navigable stream. Away back in 1805 a company was incorporated known as the Norwich Channel company. Its purpose was to keep the channel of the river open and a depth maintained suitable for the vessels of that day. Simeon Breed, Joseph Perkins, Peter Lanman, Dwight Ripley and Jabez Huntington were very prominent in the project of these days.

In 1836 the United States government made its first appropriation and the present channel of 14 feet was begun. During 1833-1836 The Merchants Bank of Norwich expended $3,679 in dredging channels in the vicinity of Norwich. The original depth of the channel at Norwich was six feet.

As time went along radical changes have taken place in the type and construction of vessels for navigation. At the present time there are available not more than five or six coast-wise vessels that can navigate the river to Norwich. The box barge vessels are also being made for greater carrying capacity and in time, not far distant, this type of vessel will be unable to approach the harbor of Norwich.

In 1923, 487,164 tons of freight, valued at $22,648,804 was carried on the Thames River, north of, and exclusive of New London. The greatest portion of this freight came to Norwich. It is safe to say that should Norwich have no navigable channel, that its citizens long ago would have connected Norwich to the sea through the building of a ship canal.

While on the way to Washington Secretary O'Rourke kept an appointment in New York on Monday with representatives of a large industrial concern. The chamber has communicated with this industrial project, in an effort to interest them to locate in Norwich. This is the fourth attempt since October, to secure a new industry for Norwich. Personal contact was made in one of the previous attempts.

POSTAL CLERKS FAVOR WAGE INCREASE BILL

Bridgeport, Feb. 22. — Joseph Cranker of New London was elected president of the Connecticut Federation of Postoffice Clerks at the fourth annual convention held here today. The meeting passed resolutions favoring the passage of the Kelly-Moses wage increase bill and in favor of abolishing all night work except on first class matter and daily newspapers.

Other officers chosen were: William Groves, New Haven, first vice president; Albert B. Shippee, Bridgeport, second vice president; E. Edward Lawton, Jr., Hartford, third vice president; John Sheehan, New Britain, secretary, and James H. Smith, Ansonia, treasurer.

The federation went on record favoring increased salaries for congressmen, senators and cabinet members. Another resolution favored suspending all business in the postoffice department on Saturday afternoons. Double time pay for overtime work is also asked. Double time off to make up for time worked on Sundays, instead of the present pro rata system for such work, was recommended in a resolution "to discourage all Sunday work."

The clerks voted to favor the Stanfield retirement bill providing optional retirement after 30 years' service and a retired annuity of $1,200 financed by a 3 1-2 per cent. deduction from salaries. The present retirement annuity is on a 2 1-2 per cent. deduction and a $720 annuity, which, delegates argued, is not sufficient today.

The two delegates to the national convention at Kansas City will be Fred Parmlee of Middletown and James H. Smith of Ansonia.

A silent tribute was given to the memory of the late Thomas L. Reilly of Meriden, former congressman; the late Edward Cantwell, former national secretary of the Letter Carriers' association, and to Samuel Gompers.

Speaking at the afternoon session, National President Leo E. George declared:

"The postal salaries bill fully justified itself regardless of any deficit or surplus in the postoffice department, especially in view of the fact that the productivity of the postal worker has increased until with an increase in mail volume of 200 per cent. since 1907, there has been up to now only an increase of 60 per cent. in the working forces. In the same time the workers' salary has gained but 50 per cent., while the cost of living has mounted more than 100 per cent."

George denounced the introduction of "speed up" methods in the department and urged support of the Snyder bill which would abolish any measuring systems for determining the amount of mail handled by the individual clerk. "Every man in an office would be pitted against the others in a speed test," said George.

Following a banquet, the delegates, numbering about 100, adjourned to the Knights of Columbus gymnasium for a social and dance.

THREE BOUND OVER TO SUPERIOR COURT

Nicholas Nesota of this city was bound over to the criminal superior court under bonds of $2,500 when he was presented in the city court Monday morning on a charge of illegally receiving money from the earnings of women. Nesota was one of six men and women arrested by County Detective William Lewis, Sheriff George Hoxie and Police Sergeants John H. Casey and Matthew Delaney late Saturday night in a raid which the officers made on a house in the Wauwecus Hill section. It was one of the most important cleanups made by the police in Norwich for some time. The cases were evidently of considerable interest as there was a large audience on hand when court opened at 2 o'clock with Judge Arthur F. Libby on the bench.

Nesota, also known by the name of Nesto, 27 years of age and whose home is at No. 25 High street, was presented before the court on a charge of illegally receiving money from the earnings of women. Probable cause was found and he was bound over to the May term of the superior court under bonds of $2,500 which he could not secure. He went to jail to await his trial.

Mrs. Mae Pecor, charged with being in business with Nesota, was bound over to the superior court, her bonds being fixed at $1,000. In default of bonds she went to jail.

George Kripps, 25, charged with keeping a house of assignation, drew a sentence of 30 days, suspended for one year. On a second charge, violation of the liquor law, he got 10 days in jail and a fine of $200 and costs which he could not pay. He went to jail and will have to work out his fine and costs, totalling $220.16.

Mrs. Irene Blanchard, 23, of Central Village, who was in the house when the raiding party made the arrests, told the court of the way the house was conducted. The charge of frequenting preferred against her name was nolled, and it is understood that she left town.

Two other frequentors, Tom Kodas and Peter Stergos, were fined $15 and costs each, the individual bills totaling $25.71 and $25.70 respectively, which they paid. The successful raid cleaned up one of the most disreputable places in this part of the state. It is said that of late there has been a steady stream of automobile parties nightly going to and coming from the house which is located about a mile and a half from the main road.

Stewart Long was presented before the court on a charge of violation of the automobile law in driving while under the influence of liquor. Witnesses testified in behalf of Long that he was not under the influence of liquor as charged and the charge was dropped. However, he was fined and paid $8 on a charge of not having his automobile driver's license with him while operating a machine.

Sam Lombrelli, 39, of this city, who was arrested for violation of the motor vehicle laws in driving without a license drew a fine of $20 and costs, totaling $40.50. He got into difficulty Sunday through violation of the local traffic rules and it was discovered that he had no license to drive. He came to the attention of the police when he drove the wrong way one a one-way street.

Five other drivers paid $5 each for violating the local traffic rules.

FOUNDRY SMOKE MAKES NEEDLESS FIRE ALARM

Two boys who did not know how to pull in a fire alarm sent in a jumbled alarm from Box 24, corner of North Main and Roath streets, about 6.45 o'clock Monday evening and gave the fire department a needless run for a supposed fire in the Vaughn foundry plant on North Main street. Salamanders had been lighted in the plant and smoke which started to seep into the street from the building gave the impression that the place was on fire. The boys noticed the smoke and made for the box but being unfamiliar with the workings of the fire box evidently yanked the hook up and down and the result was a jumble of bells. The firemen succeeded in getting the box number after several rounds had come in.

As there was no fire the apparatus was not needed. As usual a long string of curious automobile drivers thronged North Main street on both sides and at one time there was a steady stream of machines up and down the street that threatened to hopelessly tie up traffic.

SISTERS OF DIAMONDS TO APPEAL TO GOV. SMITH

Misses Lena and Sally Diamond, sisters of Morris and Joseph Diamond, now in the death house at Ossining prison, have been visiting their brothers planning an appeal for clemency to Gov. Alfred L. Smith.

The fate of the Diamonds is of eastern Connecticut interest, since Morris served a term in Brooklyn, Conn., jail for threatened gunplay at Woodstock. The sisters were with the brothers for an hour in the visiting cages of the death house Sunday. Within two weeks Governor Smith will hold a hearing, according to prison employes, to listen to arguments of relatives and counsel for a reprieve or commutation.

John Farina, accomplice of the Diamond brothers, had no visitors during the day. All three men were convicted of the murder of William McLaughlin and William Barlow, messengers for the West End bank, who were shot down and robbed of $47,000 at the New Utrecht Avenue elevated railway station in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Georges Enesco's Great Success

Many of the Norwich people, who enjoyed the marvelous playing of Georges Enesco, in the second concert of Slater Hall concert series on Jan. 12th have been interested to hear of his great artistic successes in New York and the larger musical centers. Socially too, he has been entertained by many including his own countrymen and among royalty, besides some of the French and Russian nobility in New York.

The concert given by this distinguished artist was greatly enjoyed and appreciated by the Norwich musical patrons.

Much bright hope is exchanged for gloomy experience.

APPROACHING LENT.

Thou knowest, Lord, the weariness and sorrow
Of the sad heart that comes to Thee for rest;
Cares of today, and burdens of tomorrow,
Blessings implored, and sins to be confest;
We come before Thee at Thy gracious word,
And lay them at Thy feet; Thou knowest, Lord.

Thou knowest all the past! how long and blindly
On the dark mountains the lost wanderer strayed;
How the Good Shepherd followed, and how kindly
He bore it home, upon His shoulders laid;
And healed the bleeding wounds, and soothed the pain,
And brought back life, and hope, and strength again.

Thou knowest all the present; each temptation,
Each tollsome duty, each foreboding fear;
All to each one assigned, of tribulation
Or to beloved ones, than self more dear,
All pensive memories, as we journey on,
Longings for vanished smiles and voices gone.

Thou knowest all the future; gleams of gladness
By stormy clouds too quickly overcast,
Hours of sweet fellowship and parting sadness,
And the dark river to be crossed at last,
Oh, what could hope and confidence afford
To tread that path, but this? Thou knowest, Lord.

Thou knowest, not alone as God, all knowing;
As Man, our mortal weakness Thou hast proved;
On earth, with purest sympathies o'erflowing,
O Saviour, Thou hast wept, and Thou hast loved;
And love and sorrow still to Thee may come,
And find a hiding-place, a rest, a home.

Therefore, we come, Thy gentle call obeying,
And lay our sins and sorrows at Thy feet;
On everlasting strength our weakness staying,
Clothed in Thy robe of righteousness complete;
Then rising and refreshed we leave Thy throne,
And follow on to know as we are known.

—Jane Borthwick (1859).

WOULD HAVE "BAD" DRIVER FILE A FINANCIAL BOND

Motor Vehicles Commissioner Stoeckel Favors Requirement of Assurance of Financial Responsibility of Automobile Drivers Found Guilty of Having Caused Death or Serious Injury of any Person or of Having Caused Property Damage in Excess of $100—Proposes Measure as a Substitute for Bill Requiring Every Driver to Have $10,000 Insurance.

Hartford, Feb. 24.—Evidence of financial responsibility will be required of the "bad" driver under a plan outlined before the legislative committee on roads, bridges and rivers this afternoon by Motor Vehicle Comissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel. A tentative draft of the proposed bill is now in the hands of the clerk of bills for revision and the measure will be considered as a substitute for a number of bills heard by the committee today which would require every automobile driver to take out liability insurance for $10,000 or file a bond for that amount before he could receive authorization from the state to operate his car.

As outlined by Commissioner Stoeckel, the bill would require that anyone guilty of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, reckless driving or evading responsibility and those who in the operation of their cars cause the death or serious injury of any person or cause property damage in excess of $100, may be required to furnish evidance of their financial responsibility. Under the plan outlined by the commissioner, if such evidence was demanded, it would be necessary for him to accept a certificate of an insurance policy or a bond as evidence of such responsibility, and discretionary whether he accept as such qualifications cash, collateral or real estate.

Commissioner Stoeckel criticised the bills before the committee, requiring insurance of all drivers, as hitting good and bad drivers alike, when the real object was to get the "bad" driver from whom a judgment could not be collected after it had been secured. The motor vehicles department, he said, thought of the matter in terms of administration and the matter of qualifying the same 250,000 auto registrants in the state was a super-human task which would make intolerable delay and tremendous expense. Under his plan, he estimated that perhaps 15,000 cases a year would be considered, which he said, was feasible from the administration viewpoint.

Commissioner Stoeckel went on record as opposed to the bills from the standpoint of their administrative difficulties.

Senator Frank L. Wilder, of Bridgeport, the state grange and the Connecticut Manufacturers' association were recorded in favor of the principle of providing some means of making an autoist responsible.

John Elliott of New Haven opposed the bills before the committee on the ground that they were paternalistic in that they sought to compensate for injuries in accidents, but did not seek to prevent accidents. He charged that with insurance, drivers would become more careless that the bills would put a premium on carelessness and that it is not necessary for the state to establish itself as the conservator over its citizens. He claimed that compulsory insurance for all autoists would increase insurance rates as the careful driver would be forced to pay for the results of the careless driver's accidents.

HEARING IN COMMITTEE ON COMMON CARRIERS

Hartford, Feb. 24.—What constitutes a common carrier and whether the supervision which the state now exercises over railroads, trolley lines and motor bus lines should be extended to motor trucks which, as common carriers operate between definite termini over fixed routes, resulted in a verbal pyrotechnic display before the legislative committee on roads, bridges and rivers in the senate chamber at the state capitol this afternoon.

The bill to place such truck lines under the supervision of the public utilities commission also brought about the usual spectacle of the representative of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce opposing the counsel of the Connecticut Manufacturers' association who was supported by truckmen from all parts of the state.

The climax of a lively session came when A. P. Marsh, of New Britain, representing the truckmen's association, branded the measure as a "New Haven" road bill and added "I serve notice on the railroad, and the trolley company, if necessary, that we are on the offensive from now on." He charged that the history of the "New Haven" road "is a stench and stinks yet" and "instead of doing railroading, the road is always at the legislature trying to attack the industry which has saved the industry of the state," meaning the truckmen.

TO SEEK EXTRADITION OF ALBERT P. RUSSELL

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 24.—District Attorney Arthur K. Reading of Middlesex county, announced today that he would renew with the state government of Texas proceedings for the extradition of Albert P. Russell of Wichita Falls, Texas, indicted by the Middlesex grand jury in December, 1923, for desertion, non-support and abandonment of his wife and child who reside in Winchester. Special Officer Charles Mallahan, sent to Texas for Russell, reported on his return today that James Ferguson, husband of Governor M. A. Ferguson, presided at the extradition hearing and refused the Massachusetts application on the ground that removal to this state would "hurt Russell's business."

"The proceedings as reported to me seem most unusual," District Attorney Reading said in a formal statement. "It appears that the hearing on Russell's extradition was held before the governor's husband rather than the governor. It seems that this husband acted as governor without authority and denied Governor Fuller's application for extradition when under the law extradition should have been granted. I shall leave no stone unturned to bring this man Russell back to Massachusetts to face the charges against me."

Russell now in business at Wichita Falls, was recently arrested there for Middlesex county authorities. Mallahan was sent to Texas representing the Middlesex district attorney and as an agent of the state of Massachusetts bearing the requisition of Governor Fuller for Russell's extradition.

The agent said Ferguson refused to give him back the extradition papers, saying that he would send them direct to Governor Fuller of Massachusetts with his reasons for refusing the application.

The despatch adds that the American legation has declared that the prohibition is practically a ban on American flour. The Greek government is submitting the dispute to an expert investigation.

THREE RAILROAD EMPLOYES KILLED IN COLLISION

Newark, N. J., Feb. 24.—Three railroad employes were killed and about forty passengers were injured, a few seriously, in a rear-end collision between two Pennsylvania Railroad passenger trains at Manhattan Transfer this morning. A local train from New York to Philadelphia washed into the Atlantic Coast Line Express, from New York for Washington and the south.

The dead are:

Joseph Petric, Jersey City, and George Ruther, Newark, both coupling inspectors, and L. E. Johnson, negro dining car cook, Jamaica, L. I., at first reported missing.

The inspectors were preparing to couple an engine to the express. The nine-car train was thrown forward into the engine by the collision and the two men were crushed.

Pennsylvania Railroad officials attributed the accident to "man failure or brake failure."

The fast train had stopped at Manhattan Transfer to change from an electric to a steam locomotive. The local train, both brakes and "reverse" failing to stop its momentum, collided with sufficient impact to overturn the diner, the last car of the train which was well filled with passengers. Fire started quickly in the overturned and badly wrecked car, but all passengers succeeded in escaping.

Most of the injured are said to have suffered cuts and bruises.

The overturning car tore out a section of the station platform.

CONFEREES AGREE ON POSTAL PAY AND RATE INCREASE BILL

Washington, Feb. 24.—A postal pay and rate increase bill in substantially the form as that passed by the house, was agreed to today by conferees on the senate and house measures.

The only important modification in the house measure was made in second class rates, the conferees accepting some of the lower rates in this class carried in the senate bill.

Representative Kelly, republican, Pennsylvania, said the bill as agreed to would raise $60,000,000, or $2,000,000 less than the original bill. He plans to call it up tomorrow in the house.

The second class rates which have formed the center of controversy the measure, as now provided would be, for advertising matter, two cents a pound for the first and second zones, three cents a pound for the third zone, six cents a pound for the fourth, fifth and sixth zones, and nine cents a pound for the seventh and eighth zones.

The differential would be maintained, however, for religious, educational and philanthropic publications which would be charged at 1 1-2 cents a pound. The rate on second class reading matter would be 1 1-2 cents a pound. The two cents service charge on parcel post packages is provided by the compromise bill as well as a new "special handling" service for parcel post to be charged 25 cents a package.

President Coolidge today asked Postmaster General New to furnish him an analysis of the house bill. He is giving particular attention to the provision making the pay increase retroactive to January 1, and the rate increase effective April 5. These provisions, Mr. Coolidge believes, would involve a direct tax on the treasury of $22,000,000 and such an outlay is giving him some concern.

DEATH OF FORMER PREMIER BRANTING OF SWEDEN

Stockholm, Feb. 24.—Flags were at half-mast throughout the country today out of respect to Hjalmar Branting, former premier, who died shortly after noon. All classes of people, the opponents of the former premier as well as his followers, expressed their regret at the passing of one who was regarded as among Sweden's greatest statesmen.

Branting had been ill for several weeks and serious complications developed during the last few days. Gallstone inflammations set in while his vitality was already ebbing.

One of the political effects of his death is expected to be the development of a tension—if not a complete split—within the ranks of the socialist party which has been held together by the great force of Branting's personality. The former premier's nearest followers were Minister of Defense Hansson, and former Minister of Finance Wilhelm Thorsson. Both of these men belong to the more conservative element of the party, while Rickard Sandler, present head of the cabinet and minister of finance, and Ernst Wigfors are known as being radical in tendency.

The former premier had been ill since Nov. 30, when he contracted influenza. On Jan. 24 he resigned as premier. Little hope of his survival has been held out since Feb. 8, when the gallstone trouble appeared.

The dead statesman is survived by a widow, Anna Branting, who for 40 years has been well known as an authoress; a son, George, a lawyer; a daughter, Sonja, also a lawyer, and a brother Axel, a journalist.

CITIZENS' PLAY JURY ACCEPTED IN NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 24.—District Attorney Joab Banton announced today that he had accepted the citizens' play jury inspection plan as a solution of the situation which has existed on Broadway since thirteen productions were investigated by the police because of their alleged improprieties.

The system will function under the surveillance of the district attorney's office, Mr. Banton said.

The decision to try the plan was reached today after John Emerson, president of the Actors' Equity association, had informed Mr. Banton that a panel of 130 jurors had been drawn and that equity performers were bound by contract to withdraw from productions condemned by a play jury.

"Desire Under the Elms," which Mr. Banton once ordered to close by tomorrow under penalty of grand jury action, will get a trial by the new tribunal, the district attorney said.

To forestall attempts by press agents to exploit for box office purposes the fact that a play is to be tried by the play jury, Mr. Banton said that hereafter the names of productions against which complaint have been made, will not be made public. If exploitation results despite this precaution, the district attorney announced that he would reserve the right to submit offending productions to the grand jury and deny their right to trial by a play jury.

Siege Declared on Turkish Kurdistan

Action Taken by National Assembly at Angora to Suppress Rebellion.

Constantinople, Feb. 24.—(By The A. P.)—A state of siege for one month throughout Turkish Kurdistan was proclaimed today by the national assembly at Angorffa. An insurrection in that terroitory, said to be headed by the Kurdish irregular chieftain, Shiek Said, is reported to have spread into open rebellion against the Angora government.

Sheik Said is the leader of an important Dervish confraternity with ramifications in Persia, Khiva and Bokhara, and counts among his adherents a number of Turkish officers, who, under the treaty of Lausanne, were not allowed to return to Turkey.

It is understood that the insurrection was planned for the end of March, but broke out prematurely. President Kemal Pasha presided at a special cabinet council this afternoon to consider the situation and several of the extremist deputies are reported to be agitating for an extension of the state of siege to Constantinople and Trebizond.

KELLOGG FAVORS GOLD BASIS FOR WHOLE WORLD

New York, Feb. 24.—Frank B. Kellogg, retiring ambassador to Great Britain, who becomes secretary of state on March 4, returned on the Berengaria late today.

Mr. Kellogg declined to discuss or forecast his policies as secretary, but did say that he was bringing back no plan for a limitation of armament. Asked to indicate whether his official attitude towards Russia would be similar to that of Secretary Hughes, he replied:

"I do not care to discuss that question at all. So far as our government is concerned, that is in the hands of the administration."

Mr. Kellogg said that in the last year Europe had "taken a great step forward."

"The Dawes plan," he continued, "has had much to do with the stabilization of the currency of Europe. Germany is now on a gold basis. England soon will be. South Africa goes on a gold basis on July 1, and many of the smaller countries of Europe are approaching the gold standard.

"There is nothing of greater importance to the American people than that Europe, and, in fact, all the world, should go back to the gold basis or single standard. Nothing could do more to promote commerce and industry. Everything is tending that way. Fluctuating currencies make it impossible to carry on commerce and trade, and as we have always been on a gold standard it is good to have the world on that basis."

The secretary-designate said Europe realized there was no "short cut or magic cure for the evils growing out of the great war," and that economy in private enterprise and in government was the only means of rehabilitation.

Mr. Kellogg asked reporters who interviewed him at Quarantine, where the Berengaria was held for several hours because of a heavy fog, who had written the story that he was about to retire because of ill health. "I never felt better in my life," he asserted. "That man should write another story."

"And how did the climate of England affect you?" someone queried.

"All right," Mr. Kellogg replied. "All climates agree with me."

"Will the Washington climate agree you?"

"I think it will," said the former senator, smiling. "I lived there for six years and found it very good."

Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg plan to remain in New York for several days before going to Washington.

West Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 24.—A woman, identified today as Mrs. Fulton Bagley, society woman of New York city, was drowned last night near a hotel pier here. That some of the women's clothing was found on the pier, at first led the police to express the belief that she had committed suicide.

Mrs. Bagley, whose New York address was given "somewhere near Park avenue and 34th street," had been a guest at a hotel here in company with Mrs. Foster Gilroy, also of New York.

Later the police said they had not satisfied themselves as to the exact circumstances of the death.

PONZI CLOSES ARGUMENT IN HIS OWN DEFENSE

Boston, Feb. 24.—Charles Ponzi, on trial in the superior court here on a charge of larceny of $9,500 from investors in his financial scheme which brought him millions of dollars, made his closing argument to the jury today. Ponzi, who has conducted his own defense in the larceny case, has served a term in the Plymouth jail after being convicted in the federal court on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

Ponzi declared that testimony of state witnesses to the effect that it would have been impossible for him to transact the business he had claimed to be carrying on in international postal reply coupons had no bearing on the present larceny charge. He said that he was penniless at the present time, declaring that he had turned over all his money either to investors or to his trustees in bankruptcy.

Ponzi's wife denied that their household expenses amounted to $145,500 in 1920, and said that they had not lived any more lavishly during her husband's period of prosperity than before it began. The only gift she received from her husband during 1920, she testified, was a bar pin worth $800. She said that Ponzi abandoned plans to visit Italy in 1921 because of the condition of his business affairs.

It is expected the case will go to the jury tomorrow morning.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Asserting that the interstate commerce commission was "hopelessly divided," on the proposal for revocation of the 50 per cent. surcharge, Representatives Barkley, Kentucky, and Parks, Arkansas, democrats, today filed minority views as members of the house commerce committee, favoring legislation for its elimination.

The committee, which voted recently overwhelmingly to report unfavorably on na surcharge elimination proposal, was declared in the minority report to have held hearings so that the majority report "might influence members of the house to vote against the senate amendment," having the same object, attached as a rider to the independent offices appropriation bill.

Except for the senate rider, "the house would not have been given an opportunity to vote on the proposition at all," the minority charged.

New York, Feb. 24.—J. Frank Lilly, a part-Indian who gave up a promising career as an educator and opened a Wall Street bucketshop, was ordered to Sing Sing prison tonight to serve three to six years for first degree larceny.

When his brokerage firm failed in 1919 there were only $50,000 of assets to cover $1,500,000 liabilities. The number of customers who later presented claims was 2,062, and they finally got a cent and a half on the dollar.

"All the evidence points conclusively to the fact that Lilly deliberately went into business for the sole purpose of opening a bucketshop," said General Sessions Judge Collins in passing sentence.

Lilly was born in Texarkana, Tex., 39 years ago, the son of a quarter-breed Hatteras Indian father and of a quarter-breed Chickasaw Indian mother. He won a bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees at the University of Missouri. He became superintendent of education at the Chickasaw nation's school at Tishomingo, professor of psychology at the Eastern Central Normal school of Oklahoma, and then professor of biology there.

Lilly protested at the severity of his sentence. He was innocent of technical wrongdoing, he said, and he regretted that the law did not require the licensing of brokers, for then, he said, he never would have been permitted to become a broker.

JEWETT CITY

The news of the death of Lafayette Kinney, 79, was received in town on Monday. Mr. Kinney had a slight shock two weeks ago, at the home of his niece, Mrs. John Stewart in Franklin, Mass. He was born in Voluntown, the son of Spencer and Lucinda Brown Kinney. He lived in Griswold most of his life and followed the trade of painter and paper hanger. He was twice married, his first wife being Mrs. Capwell, and his second wife Mrs. Isbel. Several nieces and nephews survive him. Mrs. Sheridan Burdick of Voluntown and Mrs. Ella Millett, of Mecsup are two of the nieces. The other relatives live in Rhode Island, Ohio and Massachusetts. For a long time Mr. Kinney was a patient at the Backus hospital, Norwich, where finally one leg was amputated. His nieces have cared for him for sometime. He was past chancellor commander of Undaunted lodge, No. 34, K. of P., of Jewett City. He was an attendant at the Methodist church. His body is to be brought to the Jewett City cemetery for burial.

Few men ever lived in Jewett City, who enjoyed the companionship of as many true friends as "Safe" Kinney. He was a man of no pretention. Always standing ready to defend, whatever in his opinion seemed right.

Handicapped as he was, with painful physical ailments, yet no one remembers that he was ever morose or downcast. What help he was able to give in any line was always offered with ready hand. Forty odd years ago he won some distinction as a debater in the then famous Hopeville lyceum. There are those in Jewett City today who will say, that when the current topics there were none locally better posted than he. What he knew he possessed the capability of presenting in the line of almost indisputable argument.

The danger from grass fires that has menaced this section for the past three days is over for the present. Griswold got away with only two, one quite serious, the other of small account. When Chief Howard L. Stanton, of Norwich, gave his address here at the firemen's meeting, he gave much valuable information, included in the list was the definite manner in which he set forth the value of the chemical extinguisher at its best. The liquid supplied from a chemical tank is of little avail as a chemical, when applied to a blaze out of doors, like on a roof or grass fire. It of course has its value as so much water applied to a blaze. The chemical is at its best for inside fires in a closed house or room. Oxygen is a supporter of combustion; no blaze can live without it. Inside of a building or chimney, the chemical is invaluable, for in addition to the water, the chemical solution liberated makes its own pressure, and more yet, it generates carbonic acid gas, which is death to flame, because it eliminates the oxygen from the surrounding atmosphere. In a lot, or on a roof, this gas is blown away, and there is too much oxygen to overmoce.

Belisle, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Belisle and Louis Belisle of New London; Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Raille and Virginia La Bonne of Plainfield, and Mr. and Mrs. Horace Myott of Baltic.
